Mortars Hurled At U.S. Positions

Red Shells Shatter Quiet In Bloody Dak To Sector

SAIGON (AP) — Communist troops fired 25 to 30 mortar shells today at American positions in the Dak To sector, which had been quiet for 24 hours after the bloodiest battle of the Vietnam war. A field dispatch said there were some casualties.

American artillery responded with counterfire at suspected positions of the mortar crews, presumably detailed from five North Vietnamese regiments mauled in the three-week fight.

The show of Red opposition in that region of the central highlands followed up 19 separate mortar and flamethrower attacks on South Vietnamese military posts, provincial capitals and hamlets from an area north of Saigon of the fertile Mekong delta in the south.

The government said its troops killed at least 110 of the raiders in one attack near Phuoc Binh, about 70 miles north of Saigon.

The Communist predawn attacks, most with mortars, left at least 34 persons dead—17 South Vietnamese soldiers and 17 civilians—and 140 wounded, including 92 military.

Fourteen mortar shellings came in the delta, which the Viet Cong controls, in an apparent effort to show that the government cannot provide adequate protection for the people.

U.S. troops operating north of Saigon also had a brief encounter today with an unknown sized Communist force. A company from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division on a sweep operation 36 miles northwest of Saigon came under heavy small arms, automatic weapons and grenade fire. The 15-minute firefight left two U.S. infantrymen dead and 23 wounded. Communist casualties were not known.

In the attack near Phuoc Binh, the Communists fought men from the same South Vietnamese battalion that killed 143 Viet Cong in the same area Oct. 27. The earlier attack appeared to be a diversionary assault before the Reds' massive but unsuccessful drive to overrun the district headquarters town of Loc Ninh, 30 miles to the west near the Cambodian border.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said today's attack might herald another Communist attempt to take Loc Ninh.

Despite the earlier defeats at Loc Ninh, where the Reds lost a reported 918 killed in one week early this month, and later at Dak To, U.S. officers expressed belief that the enemy high command aims to press a dry season offensive in the jungles north of Saigon.

Near Phuoc Binh today South Vietnamese headquarters said an estimated battalion of guerrilla troops—perhaps 400 men—made three assaults on the perimeter of a company of government troops outnumbered by two-to-one. Each time they were repulsed with the aid of artillery and air strikes, a spokesman said.

Most of the Viet Cong dead were strung just outside the government perimeter. Some enemy soldiers managed to breach the perimeter but were quickly gunned down before they could get to the last line of defense. Government casualties were six killed and 40 wounded.

The South Vietnamese said they captured 39 weapons including five antiaircraft machine guns, two flame throwers, and 22 Chinese Communist AK47 assault rifles.

In the delta, one of the mortar attacks was on the provincial capital of Can Tho, the biggest city in the delta, 75 miles southwest of Saigon. Several rounds of 82mm mortar fire landed near the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 4th Logistical Command, less than a mile south of Can Tho. The headquarters was not damaged, but eight civilians were killed and 17 others wounded.

About 15 miles to the north, the Viet Cong slammed 50 rounds of 82mm mortar into a district and pacification headquarters. Six civilians were killed and 17 wounded. The mortars also set fire to a power plant, a barracks and three jeeps.

Two Youths Hospitalized After Series Of Crashes

Two youths were hospitalized after their car struck two autos and knocked over a St. Clair Ave. utility pole Friday night, and three other youths were injured when their car struck three parked autos on Dresden Ave.

Larry A. Vincent, 18, of Coolidge Ave., East Liverpool RD 2, was charged by Patrolman Homer (Clyde) Dillon with two counts of leaving the scene of an accident and reckless operation after his auto reportedly struck an auto at Walnut and E. 3rd St., then continued on and struck a second auto on St. Clair Ave., and finally hit a utility pole on St. Clair about 60 feet south of Park Blvd.

Police said Arthur J. Tiller, 25, of 2114 Ohio Ave. had halted for a stop sign at Walnut and E. 3rd St. when Vincent's auto came around the corner and struck Tiller's auto.

Vincent then proceeded on, taking route which brought him out St. Clair Ave. where the second and third accidents occurred.

Invasion Fears Lessen

Bids For Cyprus Peace Spurred On Four Fronts

U.S. Envoy Offers Plan At Ankara

Compromise Said To Ask Withdrawal Of Rival Forces

NICOSIA (AP) — American-made Turkish jets screamed over Cyprus again today, but fears of an imminent invasion lessened as peacemakers worked on four fronts to head off a clash between the U.S.-equipped armies of Greece and Turkey.

U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance carried to Ankara what a Greek foreign ministry source described as compromise proposals, and met for two hours with Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil.

The plan Vance outlined reportedly called for withdrawal of Greek and Turkish troops from the island and guarantees for the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. The proposal seemed a substantial Greek concession in the face of a superior Turkish fighting force.

A Turkish spokesman said the council of ministers would discuss the plan before a meeting later in the day of the nation's war planning group, the National Security Council.

Cyprus' ambassador to the United Nations, Zenon Rossides, had charged earlier before the Security Council in New York that the Turks planned to attack by Sunday. This, he said, "is the knowledge of all governments."

The new overflights by Turkish RF-84F jets today came shortly after the council voted unanimously to ask both Greece and Turkey to pull back from "the brink of war" and refrain from acts likely to aggravate the situation.

Three bomb blasts, called the "work of Turkish saboteurs" by police, rocked Greek communities without causing damage or injury.

There were also these moves toward peace:

—The Security Council threw its support behind an appeal from Secretary General U Thant for "greatest moderation" and his recommendation that Greece and Turkey eliminate a pact which permits Greek and Turkish troop contingents on the island.

U.N. Council Joins In Plea To Avert War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council unanimously joined Secretary-General U Thant today in an appeal to Turkey, Greece and Cyprus to pull back from the brink of war over the disputed Mediterranean island.

Meeting past midnight, the council noted Thant's peace efforts and urged all parties to show the "greatest moderation" and abstain from any act which might aggravate the situation.

Earlier in the emergency session—called by Cyprus— U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg and Lord Caradon of Britain hailed Thant for his initiative and urged both the council and the disputants to join in efforts to head off a conflict.

Cypriot Ambassador Zenon Rossides called on the council to protect his nation from what he called an "imminent threat of attack and invasion" by Turkey.

"It is the knowledge of all governments that this weekend

'Down To Last Bar Of Gold'

U.S. Will Back Dollar To Fullest

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and key American and international financial leaders have reaffirmed pledges to back the position of the American dollar "down to the last bar of gold."

The promise came after a day of hyperactive gold buying in international markets in the wake of the devaluation of the British pound. The drive to buy gold was seen as part of a broad movement to change paper money for the solidity of metal.

The dollars-for-gold rush was described as a temporary flurry by Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the 107-nation International Monetary Fund. He said in a Voice of America interview it will be halted by the determination of financial powers to support the pound and maintain the value of their own currencies.

White House and Treasury officials said they were fully confident that American and world gold reserves were sufficient to prevent the dollar from following the pound into devaluation.

Schweitzer said the United States "still has a very large gold reserve compared to its international obligations, and it is certainly quite adequate to meet any possible request for conversion."

He said he expected action by the fund's directors by Monday to establish a $1.4 billion credit by member nations to support the pound.

Presidential press secretary George Christian reaffirmed for newsmen in San Antonio, Tex., President Johnson's assurance of last Saturday that the United States is determined to maintain its guaranteed price of $35 an ounce to anyone wanting to buy gold.

"We believe the world supply of gold is sufficient in the present situation," Christian said, declaring that a devaluation of the U.S. dollar and a consequent disruption of world money markets will not occur.

Treasury officials in Washington said the storm of speculative buying was "just about the kind and intensity we expected.

"When a major country devalues its currency, there is bound to be a shakeout afterwards," an official said.

William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has often declared the board's intention to support the dollar by selling gold at the guaranteed price "right down to the last bar of gold."

Chairman Henry Reuss, D-Wis., of the House International Finance subcommittee predicted speculators who are exchanging dollars for gold would end up in a losing position because gold is becoming obsolete as the international support for currency.

When it no longer occupies that role, he said, its price will drop to "something much closer to $6 an ounce than to $35."

Reuss said he expects the Treasury to push for removal of the requirement that part of the nation's gold stock be frozen as a reserve for federal reserve notes once the present wave of speculation subsides. About $10 billion of the nation's $12.9 billion gold reserve is presently frozen as a backup.

London gold dealers said buying orders were piling up in "near panic" dimensions from around the world. Dealers on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange in South Africa reported "near pandemonium" as speculators, hoping the price of gold will rise, rushed to buy gold mining stocks.

The Swiss National Bank advised that nation's leading banks to stop temporarily forward sales of gold in a move to protect its supply of dollars. The London Metal Market reported the price of silver had risen to a new high of $2.10 an ounce.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — How can I remove ink stains from polished or bare wood surfaces?

A. — For a polished or varnished surface, mix powdered pumice stone and linseed oil to a creamy mass, and rub with a piece of felt or heavy-bodies cloth dipped in the mixture. Always rub with the grain and continue until the ink disappears. On a bare wood surface, apply repeated coatings of liquid oxalic acid with a brush, this liquid being made by dissolving a tablespoon of oxalic acid granules in a pint of hot water, and is used cold. Caution: Use rubber gloves, and don't splash any of this acid on your skin or clothes!

Q. — How can I, when frying hot bacon, prevent the hot grease from popping out of the pan at me?

A. — By dipping your bacon strips in milk and rolling in flour. This also seems to make your bacon go farther, because it doesn't shrink as much.

Q. — How can I prevent dark clothes from streaking when I starch them?

A. — Try adding a little liquid coffee to your starch.

Q.—What can I do when loose brush bristles threaten to spoil a varnish job on furniture?

A.—Tape a piece of screen wire against your varnish can with a few inches of the screening extending upward. Wipe your brush across the end of the screen, and it will remove any loose bristles — insuring a smooth-as-glass varnish job.

Q.—How can I keep leather chairs and other leather articles clean and shiny looking?

A.—By regular practice of rubbing them with egg white which has been beaten to a stiff consistency. Many other such tips on leather care are included in my household manual.

Q. — How can I remove ballpoint pen ink stains from leather goods, such as wallets, luggage, etc.?

A. — One effective remover of these stains is ordinary cuticle remover.

The pole was knocked down, police related, and three wires and two other cables were on the ground.

After the third accident, Vincent and his passenger, Ronald Possage, 19, of Lisbon RD 2, were taken to City Hospital by a passing motorist. The two were in "fairly good" condition today. Possage received a laceration of the right forearm and lacerated fingers. Vincent suffered abrasions of the hand and complained of a pain in his neck. Neither Tiller or Arcuragi was hurt.

Arcuragi said he was headed north on St. Clair when he was overtaken by Vincent. While passing, he added, Vincent's vehicle struck his left front fender and continued on. He said Vincent, instead of halting, accelerated his vehicle.

Arcuragi followed him, and found the wreckage of Vincent's auto where it struck the power pole.

A witness said he saw Vincent's car spin around in the road several times before striking the pole.

Vincent's car was demolished.

Earlier in the evening, three were injured when their auto struck three parked cars on Dresden Ave.

Charles Mossor, 21, of New Cumberland RD 2, the driver, Thomas Landy, 25, of Price St., and Kenneth Adkins, 23, of Crawford St., passengers, all were treated and released at City Hospital after treatment.

Police said Mossor was driving on Dresden Ave. and reported he was forced into the guardrails by an oncoming auto.

Mossor's auto struck the guardrail, came to the other side of the roadway striking a parked car owned by Anna Mae Warrick of 911 Dresden Ave., continuing on and hitting another parked vehicle owned by Elizabeth Wotring of 915 Dresden and shoving it into a third parked car owned by Douglas Reynolds of 632 Inez Ave. There were no arrests.

The mishap occurred on Dresden nearly 300 feet north of the Moore St. intersection about 10:49 p. m. Friday.

Two other minor mishaps were reported.

An Ohio Power Co. pole was damaged about 7:06 p. m. Friday when it was struck by an auto driven by William L. Montgomery, 17, of Lisbon St.

Montgomery said he was driving west on E. 3rd St. and turned south onto Walnut. Then, he related, the car headed across the street and when he applied his brakes he found they did not work.

Flameproof household fabrics reduce the danger of a blaze, but such fabrics are not fireproof, cautions Mrs. Ruth F. Funk Extension Home Economist, Beaver County.

Wool is a natural flame-resistant fabric. When lighted, its natural protein fiber snuffs out the flame as the fiber curls from the heat and carbon dioxide gas smothers the flame. Wool blankets and 100 percent wool garments provide protection against flames and severe burning.

When fabrics are not flameproof, you can treat them with a chemical solution to make the flame resistant. However, flameproofing fabrics does not produce fireproof fabrics. Specially treated fabrics won't burst into flame — they only char or glow. This reduces the hazard of a fire should clothing, curtains, draperies, or other household fabrics be too near an open flame or fireplace.

Here is one flame - retardant solution you can make and safely use on household fabrics except on rayon and resin - treated cotton. Thoroughly mix seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid and two quarts of hot water in a clean glass container. Soak fabric in the solution for five minutes, then hang to drip dry. You must repat this treatment after each laundering, reminds Mrs. Funk.

Other flame - retarding solutions are described in a U.S. Department of Agriculture leaflet. To get a copy of Leaflet 454, "Making Household Fabrics Flame Resistant," send your name and address with 5 cents to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

B52 bombers continued their daily pounding of suspected North Vietnamese escape and supply routes in the area and hit suspected Communist troop concentrations 14 miles northeast of Dak To today.

Most of the air strikes launched against North Vietnam Friday were confined to the southern section because of monsoon rains, but Marine A6 Intruders flew to within 15 miles of Hanoi and made radar-guided bomb drops on the Song Dong army barracks. The Nam Dinh rail yard 40 miles southeast of Hanoi was the target for other Intruders.

In one of the key strikes in the panhandle to the south, Navy Skyhawk pilots said they damaged a highway bridge eight miles north-northwest of Dong Hoi.

In a political development, South Vietnam's official news agency reported that Nguyen Van Huong, a close associate of President Nguyen Van Thieu, has been appointed his secretary general, one of the most powerful posts in the new government.

Huong will take charge of all agencies run by the president's office and serve as a liaison with other government agencies, including the legislature.

The U.S. mission released, meanwhile, a document it said was captured from the Communists and spelled out "the Viet Cong high command's intention to reject all peace negotiations except as a diversion, under cover of which to increase its military and political offensive."

Uncle Good Guy To The Rescue

It remains to be seen what results may come out of our government's latest rescue expedition in Cyprus. But saving the peace of the world by stepping in between the Greeks and Turks in their age-old quarrel over Cyprus is going to have one predictable result.

Good old Uncle Good Guy will get it in the diplomatic shins and neck from both combatants.

Both Greeks and Turks will curse him for not letting them get on with their perennial feud. They will feel about U.S. diplomatic intervention to keep the peace the way the Hatfields and McCoys felt about peacemakers in the heyday of their blood-letting. If military intervention ensues, both sides will fire on Old Glory.

Accursed is the peacemaker for he shall taste the venom of all.

The United States now knows how it was when the sun never set on Britain's commitments to keep belligerents from destroying one another. Cyprus used to be one of Britain's chronic trouble spots. That was the reason British troops were withdrawn without regrets just before the beginning of this decade — and ever since then the Greeks and Turks have been trembling on the brink of genocide. They can hardly wait to start a historic blood-spilling over their feud.

They are only the latest feudists on Cyprus. It has been dominated by Phoenicians, Assyrians, Egyptians, Persians, Romans, Byzantines, Moslems, Crusaders, Venetians and Turks. Its current animosities are fired up by the fact the majority of its inhabitants are Greek and are accused of being unfair to the Turkish minority.

Turkey, therefore, repeatedly threatens to take over the island by military force to protect Turkish Cypriots. But because Cyprus is a republic and Greece and Turkey both belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, good Old Uncle Good Guy must rush in.

It makes a patriot wonder sometimes where the old fellow gets all his gumption and how he remembers whether he is in the Far East, the Middle East, the continents of Asia, South America, Africa, the subcontinents of Europe or Australia — or a goat-nibbled island in the Mediterranean.

There's no limit to intervention, once you get used to it.

Better Every Year

The Columbiana County Junior Miss Pageant has reached a new record in its fourth year, not just in number of girls but in the attractiveness and talent of the candidates.

The three - day event, which began with the appearance of the young lovelies in Friday night's Christmas parade and continues tonight with a banquet, achieves its moment of truth Sunday when the title is bestowed after much judgement of comparisions of beauty and ability.

Welcome to all the candidates, guests and visiting dignitaries, and a deserved salute to the Wellsville Jaycees for their sponsorship of this entertaining and worthwhile annual event to select the county's representative to the state competition.

And may the best gal win . . .

Happy Holiday Mail Crush

Now that Thanksgiving Day is history, it is time to think seriously about the mail-early campaign.

The axiom that familiarity breeds contempt is true of the annual harangue about early Christmas mail. People have come to accept it along with shopping crowds and street decorations. It's there but so what? What's the big deal?

The big deal is that the postal system is anticipating handling nine billion pieces of holiday mail—800 million more than last year—in addition to regular mail.

A late December onslaught in 1962 caused such a crush that 300,000 temporary employes were hired to get the job done.

Automated processes and use of zip code numbers make Post Office Department officials hopeful that only half that number will be necessary to get this season's work out of the way.

In addition to helping the 610,000 regular clerks and carriers in the postal service, early mailings will insure arrival of cards and packages before Christmas.

The public also is urged to mail early in the day as well as early in the season, to break a holiday pattern of light mailings in the morning and heavy mailings in the evening.

Packages destined for distant places should be mailed by Dec. 4 and out-of-town greeting cards by Dec. 10. On local deliveries, parcels should be mailed by Dec. 13 and greeting cards by Dec. 15.

Put something in the Post Office Department's Christmas stocking this year—but don't wait!

What's New In The News?

Announcement that this is the end of the line for Universal Newsreel and News of the Day, both familiar to moviegoers, is a jolting commentary on the changing pattern of communications.

A generation ago, movie theater patrons looked forward to the newsreel as a source of up-to-date information. It was the visual presentation of events they had read about and noted in still pictures in newspapers.

The newsreel was standard fare for people who wanted to keep informed, just as the motion picture was standard fare for people who wanted to be entertained.

Television has changed the pattern. It brings visual presentations of the news into millions of homes and business places several times each day. In the same way that it has taken the edge off spot news reporting in newspapers, it has taken the edge off newsreels.

Yet, it is only reasonable to wonder as two newsreel presentations prepare to fade out if this is the end of the line after all. One has only to think of those TV documentaries that deal with things in the news, instead of with the bare bones of the news, itself.

What is to keep movie houses from stealing a page from television? After all, television frankly admits it would be in big trouble if it didn't have moving pictures to beef up its programming.

Purely Personal Observations

No matter how hard I try, I can see no reason taxpayers in general should cough up subsidies for mass transportation in over-congested cities whose denizens refuse to pay the realistic cost of hauling them to and fro. No one subsidizes the cost of MY transportation.

After a generation of official explanation, most people I know still think revenue from Social Security taxes should be handled like insurance payments; namely, invested in something that produces income. They are shocked when they learn this isn't true, never was true and never could be true. The government eventually would own everything.

I see no reason to change an opinion that crystallized years ago—that if communism hadn't existed as a spur to capitalism we capitalists would have had to invent it, and this is similarly true of communism, which uses capitalism as a spur, too.

People who buy wood for fireplaces complain that the price is steep. I suggest they spend a day working out with saws, axes, wedges, sledges and stubborn brush, then tell how much firewood would cost if they had to get it ready for burning.

It would be interesting, along with the instant replay of spectacular runs in televised pro football, if we viewers could learn how fast some of those gents are covering ground. Some must be running at a rate of 10 seconds per 100 yards in full football regalia.

Soon Our Comrades In The South Can Take Over; Pssst! Wake Up There, Boy!

Victims Of Demonstration

WASHINGTON — Had it been a television script, the U.S. marshals would have been the tall fellows in white hats, with six-shooters slung in side holsters, open shirts, striding along the mall at high noon. But this was, grimly, real life. And "in person" appearance. It wasn't high noon. It was 10 a.m., Sat., Oct. 21 — just about the time the sandwich-laden teenagers and stalwarts in their early twenties began arriving for their antiwar demonstration.

Victor Riesel

The story of the gay demonstrators has been told — but what of the 50 U.S. District of Columbia marshals who earned their daily bread that weekend helping to protect the Pentagon? Why has no one reported how they earned this bitter bread, their union wants to know. Why indeed?

The U.S. marshals were spat on by the whooping paraders. The marshals were hit by gravel, sneakers, a soldier's helmet. Two of them were strewn with garbage hurled by the cultured crowd — and had to wear stinking clothes for some 28 hours.

The marshals, unarmed, never fought back. At least 13 of them were hurt. One of them had his hand broken. Another was hit in the face with glass. Still another collapsed when some of the "youths" rushed him. And President John Griner of the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL-CIO) says the chap may have to retire prematurely. If this marshal does have to go on pension prematurely, who will help?

But the marshals took it. After a while it all glazed into one massive throng of hooters, one grating roar of booing, one vast march past of fresh demonstrators as fatigue set in on the civil service men.

THEIR CHIEF, who is a Dept. of Justice official, had called them out for 10 a.m. check-in. They were mustered out, the record now shows, at 4 a.m. the next Monday morning. This made the shift an almost eternal one of 42 hours. The union says 44 hours in all considering the routine and chores of checking out.

And then many of them were called in for regular work later Monday morning. And because they had fallen behind in their process serving and paper work, they were ordered to work the following Saturday to "catch up."

Most oft he marshals were on their feet for the entire 42-hour shift. Some had cots in the Pentagon cafeteria. But those who were allowed to rest at all got little sleep. The closed circuit radio blared around the clock.

For this service to the country, the U.S. marshals were paid, of course, but somewhat in the tradition of South Pacific Bloody Mary's complaint about the "Stingy B— ——s."

The marshals are paid for only six hours overtime after the first 40 hours, regardless of the length of their work week. It can run 60 to 80 hours in an emergency. But six hours is all the premium pay they get. And at that, not at time and a half, but with a Scrooge-like 15 per cent differential. There is no compensatory time off either.

MOST OF THEM have a GS 7 rating. Some have a GS 8 rating. This means they earn, in 10 tough steps, over the years, anywhere from $6,450 to $9,100. Since they work in business clothes and do not wear those gallant white hats, they supply their own "outfits" which are frequently smeared, torn, or stolen.

Mr. Griner tells of one marshal who had to wait a year for the Justice Dept. to settle his claim for an overcoat ripped off him and torn by a man angered when the officer served him with a warrant.

Union officials say that "conditions are so oppressive in the Dept. of Justice that the marshals will not allow themselves to be quoted. They are afraid to let us use their names even in our own newspaper."

The same union men say the government overworks the marshals because the District is understaffed. Some 10 years ago the Justice Dept. got authorization for a staff of 96 men to help keep order, serve subpoenas, and handle tremendous amounts of paper work. Since the 96-man force was authorized, process service alone has increased 100 per cent. Yet the quota never was filled. The men are at the breaking point, says Mr. Griner. The antiwar shouting accomplished that.

"I say the way these loyal servants were repaid for this obnoxious chore (protecting the grounds and taking abuse)," says Griner, "is a national disgrace and a bitter commentary on Dept. of Justice employe-management relations."

Now that the marshals have had garbage and glass and gravel heaved at them by the demonstrators, who will demonstrate for the men who stood by in the field and at the gates and in the courts?

Or, now that they've done their duty, does no one care — until the next time?

Letter From Max

Dear Truman Twill:

If ever a plan was destined to backfire it is Hanoi's effort to encourage opposition by Americans to the Vietnam War.

Hanoi reports the Vietcong has set up a South Vietnam People's Committee for Solidarity With the American People, to foster resistance in the U.S. to the war.

Broadcasts by enemy radio said the committee aimed at increasing desertions by U.S. troops and civilian officials and expressed support and sympathy for demonstrations in the U.S. against the war.

It would be hard to imagine anything short of bombing the U.S. — which would tend to unite Americans more against Hanoi and to silence war opposition.

Hanoi's action is a ready-made club for hawks against doves.

But many doves will give the back of their hand to Hanoi and continue to oppose the war; not because it is bad for Hanoi but because it is bad for the United States.

Remember what Sen. Fulbright said when someone asked him how he could oppose the war and still vote appropriations for the war?

He said, "No one wants to deny the men in the field anything."

Most of the differences of opinion in this country over the war are honest.

Anyone who raises the issue of patriotism in criticizing opponents of the war is doing a disservice to American principles.

There is no open opposition to the war in North Vietnam and any dissent there is unheard of.

IT WOULD BE interesting to know what goes on in the inner sanctums of the U.S. Supreme Court, but it probably is just as well we don't. Of such things is history made.

Two justices, one of whom is a traditionalist, dissented when the court ruled against taking a case involving men who refused to serve the military because they claimed the Vietnam War was illegal.

Years ago, a Supreme Court justice, possibly Brandeis, said, "Today's dissents are tomorrow's majority opinions."

MAJOR deterrents against Communist domination, such as espionage, nuclear bombs and the Cuban missile confrontation, are well and good, but in many minor matters it appears that if the Communists are given enough rope they hang themselves.

The rift between Moscow and Peking — and the inability of Moscow to muster agreement for a world Communist conference are signs of this.

In addition, it was pointed out in a recent article that China has stubbed its toe in efforts to step into Mongolia, Japan, India, Ceylon, Indonesia, Cambodia, Eastern Europe and countries in Africa.

Just to show how mixed up things can get, here is a quote by David Dellinger, chairman of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, which organized the big demonstration in Washington.

He said, "My grandmother was active in the DAR. I guess that shows a long history of fighting for independence in our family."

DAVID LAWRENCE

Federal Purse

Attempts in the House of Representatives to give local city machines control of disbursement of federal grants bear a resemblance to the way politics paid off in the presidential election of 1936.

In that year, nine counties with the highest "relief" appropriations throughout the country contributed majorities big enough to swing the electoral votes of nine of the biggest states. These, together with only one-half of the "Solid South," provided the minimum necessary to elect Franklin Roosevelt president.

The controversy going on now in the House concerns a basic question — how shall welfare programs be administered and what part shall city and county governments play in the spending of vast sums of federal money?

MANY REPUBLICANS have been endeavoring to give community organizations authority to by-pass the local governments and deal directly with federal agencies.

But Democrats have been supporting a different procedure — namely, one that would make it possible for the local governments or political machines to have a big voice in how the money is spent.

An idea of what's at stake politically can be gleaned from the fact federal grants-in-aid in 1950 amounted to only $2.5 billion while currently such appropriations are running at an annual rate of 17 billion.

Much of this money is spent locally. Hence, from a political standpoint, it is important for leaders in major cities — where the largest portion of the funds is disbursed — to have a voice in, if not control of, the distribution.

In recent years, there has been criticism because of the tendency of the federal government to bypass state governments and deal with municipal or county authorities. State governments have been expressing opposition to these procedures.

During the last five sessions of Congress, more than 50 federal laws have been passed creating more than 100 separate programs which deal with various manpower problems and the development of human resources. In the federal government the responsibility has been divided among five different cabinet officers.

The states claim the results are inefficiency, duplication, overlapping and delay. The problem is made more complex when state governments find it necessary to "match" federal funds and yet cannot exercise authority over how each project shall be operated.

The controversy is not likely to be settled altogether by what the House of Representatives does, because the same issues will arise in the Senate when it is confronted with the action expected to be taken by the House.

SOME PROJECTS — Such as those dealing with poverty and air and water pollution—are, it is argued, only practicable when handled by the federal government without regard to established lines of jurisdiction.

It is obvious that if politics had nothing to do with these appropriations, and particularly the administrative machinery, there would be greater efficiency, and perhaps large sums of money could be saved. But as long as politics is a way of life in America, local leaders and machines want to see their particular areas treated generously with public funds, because this can play an influential part in the outcome of future elections.

With the presidential campaign a year away, it is natural for members of Congress to find themselves under pressure from local politicians who want to have the city hall or the county court house exercise the dominant and controlling role in the handling of federal funds.

Neither party is united on the question because influences are exerted back home not only by state officials but by local governments.

In the background, however, is the potential impact of federal funds on the 1968 presidential and congressional elections.

Ever since the days of the first "pork-barrel" project, the spending of federal money has had a definite relationship to vote-getting.

The antiwar shouting accomplished that.

"I say the way these loyal servants were repaid for this obnoxious chore (protecting the grounds and taking abuse)," says Griner, "is a national disgrace and a bitter commentary on Dept. of Justice employe-management relations."

Now that the marshals have had garbage and glass and gravel heaved at them by the demonstrators, who will demonstrate for the men who stood by in the field and at the gates and in the courts?

Or, now that they've done their duty, does no one care — until the next time?

Letter From Max

Dear Truman Twill:

If ever a plan was destined to backfire it is Hanoi's effort to encourage opposition by Americans to the Vietnam War.

Hanoi reports the Vietcong has set up a South Vietnam People's Committee for Solidarity With the American People, to foster resistance in the U.S. to the war.

Broadcasts by enemy radio said the committee aimed at increasing desertions by U.S. troops and civilian officials and expressed support and sympathy for demonstrations in the U.S. against the war.

It would be hard to imagine anything short of bombing the U.S. — which would tend to unite Americans more against Hanoi and to silence war opposition.

Hanoi's action is a ready-made club for hawks against doves.

But many doves will give the back of their hand to Hanoi and continue to oppose the war; not because it is bad for Hanoi but because it is bad for the United States.

Remember what Sen. Fulbright said when someone asked him how he could oppose the war and still vote appropriations for the war? He said, "No one wants to deny the men in the field anything."

Most of the differences of opinion in this country over the war are honest.

Anyone who raises the issue of patriotism in criticizing opponents of the war is doing a disservice to American principles.

There is no open opposition to the war in North Vietnam and any dissent there is unheard of.

By Martin Miller

IT WOULD BE interesting to know what goes on in the inner sanctums of the U.S. Supreme Court, but it probably is just as well we don't. Of such things is history made.

Two justices, one of whom is a traditionalist, dissented when the court ruled against taking a case involving men who refused to serve the military because they claimed the Vietnam War was illegal.

Years ago, a Supreme Court justice, possibly Brandeis, said, "Today's dissents are tomorrow's majority opinions."

MAJOR deterrents against Communist domination, such as espionage, nuclear bombs and the Cuban missile confrontation, are well and good, but in many minor matters it appears that if the Communists are given enough rope they hang themselves.

The rift between Moscow and Peking — and the inability of Moscow to muster agreement for a world Communist conference are signs of this.

In addition, it was pointed out in a recent article that China has stubbed its toe in efforts to step into Mongolia, Japan, India, Ceylon, Indonesia, Cambodia, Eastern Europe and countries in Africa.

Just to show how mixed up things can get, here is a quote by David Dellinger, chairman of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, which organized the big demonstration in Washington.

He said, "My grandmother was active in the DAR. I guess that shows a long history of fighting for independence in our family."

DAVID LAWRENCE

Federal Purse

Attempts in the House of Representatives to give local city machines control of disbursement of federal grants bear a resemblance to the way politics paid off in the presidential election of 1936.

In that year, nine counties with the highest "relief" appropriations throughout the country contributed majorities big enough to swing the electoral votes of nine of the biggest states. These, together with only one-half of the "Solid South," provided the minimum necessary to elect Franklin Roosevelt president.

The controversy going on now in the House concerns a basic question — how shall welfare programs be administered and what part shall city and county governments play in the spending of vast sums of federal money?

MANY REPUBLICANS have been endeavoring to give community organizations authority to by-pass the local governments and deal directly with federal agencies.

But Democrats have been supporting a different procedure — namely, one that would make it possible for the local governments or political machines to have a big voice in how the money is spent.

An idea of what's at stake politically can be gleaned from the fact federal grants-in-aid in 1950 amounted to only $2.5 billion while currently such appropriations are running at an annual rate of 17 billion.

Much of this money is spent locally. Hence, from a political standpoint, it is important for leaders in major cities — where the largest portion of the funds is disbursed — to have a voice in, if not control of, the distribution.

In recent years, there has been criticism because of the tendency of the federal government to bypass state governments and deal with municipal or county authorities. State governments have been expressing opposition to these procedures.

During the last five sessions of Congress, more than 50 federal laws have been passed creating more than 100 separate programs which deal with various manpower problems and the development of human resources. In the federal government the responsibility has been divided among five different cabinet officers.

The states claim the results are inefficiency, duplication, overlapping and delay. The problem is made more complex when state governments find it necessary to "match" federal funds and yet cannot exercise authority over how each project shall be operated.

The controversy is not likely to be settled altogether by what the House of Representatives does, because the same issues will arise in the Senate when it is confronted with the action expected to be taken by the House.

SOME PROJECTS — Such as those dealing with poverty and air and water pollution—are, it is argued, only practicable when handled by the federal government without regard to established lines of jurisdiction.

It is obvious that if politics had nothing to do with these appropriations, and particularly the administrative machinery, there would be greater efficiency, and perhaps large sums of money could be saved. But as long as politics is a way of life in America, local leaders and machines want to see their particular areas treated generously with public funds, because this can play an influential part in the outcome of future elections.

With the presidential campaign a year away, it is natural for members of Congress to find themselves under pressure from local politicians who want to have the city hall or the county court house exercise the dominant and controlling role in the handling of federal funds.

Neither party is united on the question because influences are exerted back home not only by state officials but by local governments.

In the background, however, is the potential impact of federal funds on the 1968 presidential and congressional elections.

Ever since the days of the first "pork-barrel" project, the spending of federal money has had a definite relationship to vote-getting.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION

Losing Our Faith

In John 6:66 — 69 we read this: "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

In this passage we are told of some who were losing their faith in the Lord. However, at the same time while some were losing faith, there were those who held on to faith very strongly. Some were turning and leaving the Master. There were others who were proclaiming boldly that they believed in Christ and that he was indeed the Son of God.

As we think about this passage, we are reminded of just how similar the state of the world is today. I recently read of a "so-called" religious leader who was calling his people to abandon many of the things that they had believed and taught for many years. Now if he were calling on them to give up the many doctrines and commandments of men, I could agree heartily. However, he was not asking the people to give up the ideas of men but was suggesting that they abandon such fundamental principles of truth as, the inspiration of the scriptures, the divinity of Jesus Christ, the virgin birth of Christ, etc. Yes, he was calling on men and women to abandon faith. It is probably so that there will be some who will follow the teaching of this man. Some will give up their faith in these Bible doctrines. They will make "Ship-Wreck" of their faith. 1 Tim. 1:19.

However, at the same time when there are those who are letting loose of their convictions concerning these basic Bible truths, there are also those like Peter and other Apostles who will stand firm in their convictions. They realize that to abandon Christ is to abandon all hope. These Bible facts are just as true to us today as they ever were.

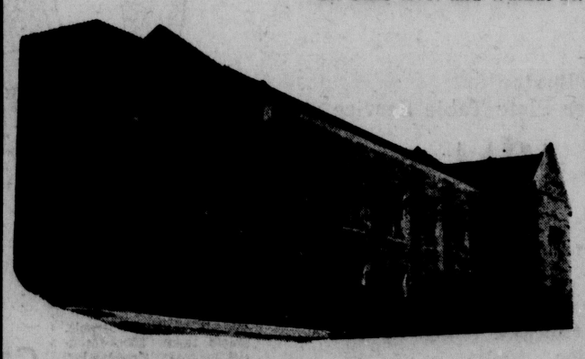

Instead of calling upon men and women to give up faith in these things, we believe that it is time that all begin urging people to have a stronger faith in God and His Word. Jesus Christ is our only answer to our problems of life. The Word of God is still the only guide book that God has given for us to follow.

Yes, we would like to see people give up every idea and doctrine of man so that we can be united in Jesus Christ. No, we ought not give up our faith in the inspired scriptures. Many may fall by the wayside but some will allow their faith in Christ to carry them on.

You are cordially invited to attend the services of the Church of Christ tomorrow.

Methodist Bishop Plans Eight Special Meetings

CANTON, OHIO — Vietnam, the tensions in Hong Kong, unrest in the Middle East and world missions will be among the topics covered in a series of special meetings the next two weeks featuring Methodist Bishop Francis E. Kearns and Mrs. Kearns.

Returning to Ohio last week from an extensive around-the-world mission tour, the Kearns will present findings from their firsthand study of developments in the countries of Asia.

Traveling by plane, jeep, boat and on foot, Bishop and Mrs. Kearns represented Ohio East Area Methodists and the Methodist Council of Bishops in Vietnam, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Taiwan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, India and Israel.

In their visit to these areas, the Ohio couple gave particular attention to the institutions, projects and missionaries supported by the church.

Each quadrennium, the bishops of the Methodist denomination are expected to make an extended tour to view the church's missionary endeavors and the political and social climate of the overseas countries. This is the first such tour for Bishop Kearns since his election to the episcopacy in 1964.

A MOMENT OF MEDITATION

Losing Our Faith

In John 6:66 — 69 we read this: "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him. Then said Jesus unto the twelve, Will ye also go away? Then Simon Peter answered him, Lord to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

In this passage we are told of some who were losing their faith in the Lord. However, at the same time while some were losing faith, there were those who held on to faith very strongly. Some were turning and leaving the Master. There were others who were proclaiming boldly that they believed in Christ and that he was indeed the Son of God.

As we think about this passage, we are reminded of just how similar the state of the world is today. I recently read of a "so-called" religious leader who was calling his people to abandon many of the things that they had believed and taught for many years. Now if he were calling on them to give up the many doctrines and commandments of men, I could agree heartily. However, he was not asking the people to give up the ideas of men but was suggesting that they abandon such fundamental principles of truth as, the inspiration of the scriptures, the divinity of Jesus Christ, the virgin birth of Christ, etc. Yes, he was calling on men and women to abandon faith. It is probably so that there will be some who will follow the teaching of this man. Some will give up their faith in these Bible doctrines. They will make "Ship-Wreck" of their faith. 1 Tim. 1:19.

However, at the same time when there are those who are letting loose of their convictions concerning these basic Bible truths, there are also those like Peter and other Apostles who will stand firm in their convictions. They realize that to abandon Christ is to abandon all hope. These Bible facts are just as true to us today as they ever were.

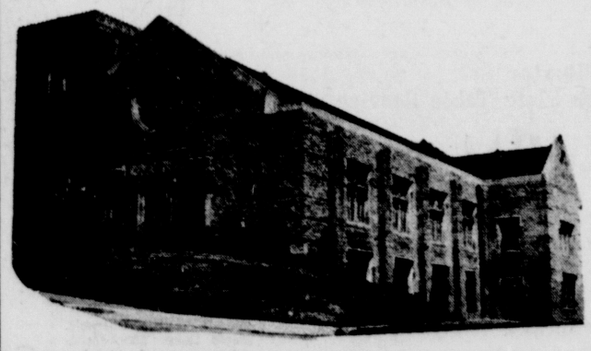

Instead of calling upon men and women to give up faith in these things, we believe that it is time that all begin urging people to have a stronger faith in God and His Word. Jesus Christ is our only answer to our problems of life. The Word of God is still the only guide book that God has given for us to follow.

Yes, we would like to see people give up every idea and doctrine of man so that we can be united in Jesus Christ. No, we ought not give up our faith in the inspired scriptures. Many may fall by the wayside but some will allow their faith in Christ to carry them on.

You are cordially invited to attend the services of the Church of Christ tomorrow.

Church Here Sets Crusade

The Oakland Free Methodist Church is conducting a "Spiritual Life Crusade" which will continue through Dec. 3, with the Rev. O. R. Tessaro of Pittsburgh speaker.

Rev. Tessara, a converted Roman Catholic, recently returned from a second tour of South America and has conducted crusades in England, Ireland, Wales, the United States and Canada.

On Sunday at 2:30 p.m., he will begin a review of the first half of his life story. It will be concluded Monday night.

"Is the Jew, the Roman Catholic or the Protestant Right?" will be Rev. Tessaro's subject Tuesday night. A "healing service" will be held Wednesday night, with letters to be read from various parts of the nation.

Wilbur Richardson, general superintendent, has planned sessions so that Rev. Tessaro may speak to the Sunday School. This Sunday he will address the Adult Department beginning at 10:10 a. m.

Music for the crusade, to be directed by Maynard Walker of Steubenville, will include selections by the "Lois Trio" of New Kensington, congregational singing, choir, quartet and solo presentations. The Rev. J. M. McKeown is pastor. The public is invited.

Appeal Slated By Adventists

The East Liverpool Seventh-Day Adventist congregation is preparing to begin its annual world service appeal today seeking a goal of $1,360.

Volunteers in the local congregation will visit homes throughout the city in the next six weeks. All will carry identification. The money will be used to further humanitarian activities of the church, with allocations to local, state, national and international programs, based on need.

The church supports mission schools, leper colonies, clinics, hospitals and relief units in foreign lands. On a worldwide basis, the church gave aid last year to 8.2 million persons, distributed more than 9.6 million articles of clothing, donated 10.7 million hours of volunteer time and contributed $4.6 million in food and cash for welfare programs.

The annual World Service Appeal is the only appeal to the public made by the Adventist church. About seven percent of the total budget of the Adventist church world welfare programs is received through community campaigns. The balance is donated by the members.

Mrs. Carmen Melvin of 713 Orchard Grove Ave. is in charge of local welfare activities of the Adventist congregation. Help for the needy can be arranged by phoning her. Elder Harold Flynt is pastor.

Group Will Play 'Santa' At Home

HIGHLANDTOWN — The WSCS of the Methodist Church made plans to visit the Town and Country Rest Home in Salineville Dec. 18 and present Christmas gifts when it met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Nadine Leatherberry.

It also will visit the County Home at Easter. Twelve, including members and their husbands, paid a visit Nov. 20 to the Salineville rest home and took a fruit and candy treat for Thanksgiving.

Roll call response was "What I Am Thankful For." Mrs. Peggy Rose, president reported on the singspiration service and the collection for the classroom fund of the church. Members reported 46 sick calls made during the month.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Catherine Leatherberry, who used the topic "Beware of the Tragic Sin of Unthankfulness".

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Carol and Mrs. Catherine Leatherberry and Mrs. Rose.

There are 132 rooms in the White House.

There is something about a candle . . . something about a flame . . . something about fire itself . . . that has fascinated man throughout the centuries. Despite the fact that you can translate fire, these days, into a known chemical formula, it is still a mystery, a wonder, and sometimes a fear.

It is an elemental thing that this little girl is studying as she watches the candle flicker. And, like so many of the elemental things—like Nature itself, and like Faith, for that matter—it is awesome.

Faith, too, is a mystery and a wonder. Yet the only fear that Faith engenders is the fear, deep within one's heart, that it might be lost.

So that this essential ingredient of life does not elude you and does not diminish during misfortune, make it a habit of attending the church of your choice regularly. Here you will be given spiritual strength and inspiration and kindle the mystery of love and joy within your heart.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Church Here Sets Crusade

The Oakland Free Methodist Church is conducting a "Spiritual Life Crusade" which will continue through Dec. 3, with the Rev. O. R. Tessaro of Pittsburgh speaker.

Rev. Tessara, a converted Roman Catholic, recently returned from a second tour of South America and has conducted crusades in England, Ireland, Wales, the United States and Canada.

On Sunday at 2:30 p.m., he will begin a review of the first half of his life story. It will be concluded Monday night.

"Is the Jew, the Roman Catholic or the Protestant Right?" will be Rev. Tessaro's subject Tuesday night. A "healing service" will be held Wednesday night, with letters to be read from various parts of the nation.

Wilbur Richardson, general superintendent, has planned sessions so that Rev. Tessaro may speak to the Sunday School. This Sunday he will address the Adult Department beginning at 10:10 a. m.

Music for the crusade, to be directed by Maynard Walker of Steubenville, will include selections by the "Lois Trio'" of New Kensington, congregational singing, choir, quartet and solo presentations. The Rev. J. M. McKeown is pastor. The public is invited.

Appeal Slated By Adventists

The East Liverpool Seventh-Day Adventist congregation is preparing to begin its annual world service appeal today seeking a goal of $1,360.

Volunteers in the local congregation will visit homes throughout the city in the next six weeks. All will carry identification. The money will be used to further humanitarian activities of the church, with allocations to local, state, national and international programs, based on need.

The church supports mission schools, leper colonies, clinics, hospitals and relief units in foreign lands. On a worldwide basis, the church gave aid last year to 8.2 million persons, distributed more than 9.6 million articles of clothing, donated 10.7 million hours of volunteer time and contributed $4.6 million in food and cash for welfare programs.

The annual World Service Appeal is the only appeal to the public made by the Adventist church. About seven percent of the total budget of the Adventist church world welfare programs is received through community campaigns. The balance is donated by the members.

Mrs. Carmen Melvin of 713 Orchard Grove Ave. is in charge of local welfare activities of the Adventist congregation. Help for the needy can be arranged by phoning her. Elder Harold Flynt is pastor.

Group Will Play 'Santa' At Home

HIGHLANDTOWN — The WSCS of the Methodist Church made plans to visit the Town and Country Rest Home in Salineville Dec. 18 and present Christmas gifts when it met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Nadine Leatherberry.

It also will visit the County Home at Easter. Twelve, including members and their husbands, paid a visit Nov. 20 to the Salineville rest home and took a fruit and candy treat for Thanksgiving.

Roll call response was "What I Am Thankful For." Mrs. Peggy Rose, president reported on the singspiration service and the collection for the classroom fund of the church. Members reported 46 sick calls made during the month.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Catherine Leatherberry, who used the topic "Beware of the Tragic Sin of Unthankfulness".

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Carol and Mrs. Catherine Leatherberry and Mrs. Rose.

There are 132 rooms in the White House.

There is something about a candle . . . something about a flame . . . something about fire itself . . . that has fascinated man throughout the centuries. Despite the fact that you can translate fire, these days, into a known chemical formula, it is still a mystery, a wonder, and sometimes a fear.

It is an elemental thing that this little girl is studying as she watches the candle flicker. And, like so many of the elemental things—like Nature itself, and like Faith, for that matter—it is awesome.

Faith, too, is a mystery and a wonder. Yet the only fear that Faith engenders is the fear, deep within one's heart, that it might be lost.

So that this essential ingredient of life does not elude you and does not diminish during misfortune, make it a habit of attending the church of your choice regularly. Here you will be given spiritual strength and inspiration and kindle the mystery of love and joy within your heart.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Devil To Digger

1911 ELHS Graduate Keeps Busy With Latest Of Many Colorful Careers In Successful Life

By CLARA HALL

From printer's devil to horticulturist, with a teaching career in between, is a thumb print of a self-made man who recently visited in the city for the reunion of the 1911 Class of East Liverpool High School.

Carol Snowden Kennedy of Dublin, 13 miles northeast of Columbus, recalls his first job at the Morning Tribune when he got up at 4:15 in the morning to pass papers for some 220 customers between 5th and 6th Sts.

After school hours, he was a printer's devil, emptying the battered type for remelting and doing the odd jobs that no one else would do.

His most pleasant memory was his venture as the "roaming rooter" of the Evening Review, a publicity stunt in advance of the annual company picnic. He would walk around town, and anyone who recognized him and said the words, "You are the roaming rooter for the Evening Review" and have in his possession a copy of the day's issue would receive $10.

The papers would print false clues as to his whereabouts at a particular time, and warn him not to be anywhere near. Kennedy's rear view picture was published before the event started, and a front view afterward with a list of the winners who had located him.

WHEN HE LIVED in East Liverpool he resided at 288 W. 2nd St. and later 4th and Wash. Sts. He attended the so-called "Deidrick University," a residence near the present high school which housed the 7th and 8th grades. He was graduated from the present Central School, then high school.

Following graduation, he worked as a draftsman at Patterson Foundry for three years. In 1914, he landed in Columbus with 27c with which he bought six loaves of bread —his food for the next couple of days.

After working at many odd jobs, he entered the Army and served 23 months in World War I in the 7th division of the 8th regimental Battery F in the field artillery.

C. S. (as he became known) resumed working, but then came the crash of 1929 in which he lost everything, and once more he started from scratch.

Determined to get an education, he studied "piecemeal" for a number of years, and finally was awarded a bachelor of science degree in education from Ohio State University.

Kennedy taught drafting for 36 years — five years at Trades High School and 31 at West High School in Columbus —retiring in 1956.

HIS ABILITY as a teacher and the scholastic standards of his classes were reflected in the consistently high standard of work produced by his drafting students. Better known as a "builder of character," he taught them not only to blue print but to chart their lives.

He translated facts learned from books and lectures into action and promoted practical projects in his classrooms. A miniature model home, built to scale with actual material by the boys, was an example of his theory put into practice.

The students in his classes claimed top awards at all the statewide competitions in drafting and no other school even came near. Their drawings included such variety as house plans, elevations, pictorial drawings, machine drawings and miscellaneous specialized classes.

He was presented with Ford Motor Co. industrial arts award certificates of achievement in 1952 and 1953 in recognition of the instruction and guidance given to students who have earned honors for their entries in industrial arts. These certificates were awarded by Henry Ford.

With a background of drafting, C. S. personally built over 250 homes. He recalls his first projects when he dug out the foundations himself and did most of the work. As his business advanced, he procured additional help as he could afford it.

He is a qualified carpenter, pipe fitter, machinist, painter and foundry man. Among his diverse occupations were that of a shoeshine boy, messenger boy, revival leader and collector of bad debts. He served as state Civil Service examiner for 10 years.

FOR MOST of his life, Carol Kennedy has been interested in plants, so it was quite natural that he should seek an avocation with them.

His particular interest centered on the hibiscus, a genus in the mallow family of which the most familiar member is the common hollyhock. Other members of this plant family are the rose of sharon, the common rose mallow and the rose of China.

The hibiscus is not grown in home gardens, although it ought to be, he commented. It is a bold striking plant of shrub-like habit with large flowers in various colors which bloom over a long period in midsummer until fall. Kennedy once had 25,000 seedling hibiscus in bloom in his gardens.

With a land tract of 120 acres, his is one of the most extensive projects to improve a garden perennial flower being carried on in the United States today. His particular interest in plant hybridizing is with hibiscus, dahlias and iris, and he works with thousands of plants each year to develop a new variety.

In concentrating on the development of new strains of hibiscus, he was able to produce a scarlet one with a white crescent on each of the five petals. This year he had a bloom with 41 petals.

HE HAS CREATED five new basic colors and four new forms never existing before. With an investment of $130,000 in his flowers, C. S. hopes to sell the plants to nurserymen.

So deeply interested in hybridizing, he prepares and has printed extensive annual progress reports. He also wrote a story "The Garden of Enchantment," telling in detail the miracles of the hibiscus.

Some of his plants for experimental purposes have been growing in the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens, the New York Botanical Garden and the United States National Arboretum.

He has been a member of the American Horticultural Society since 1932 and is one of the founders of the Northern Garden Club about 30 years ago.

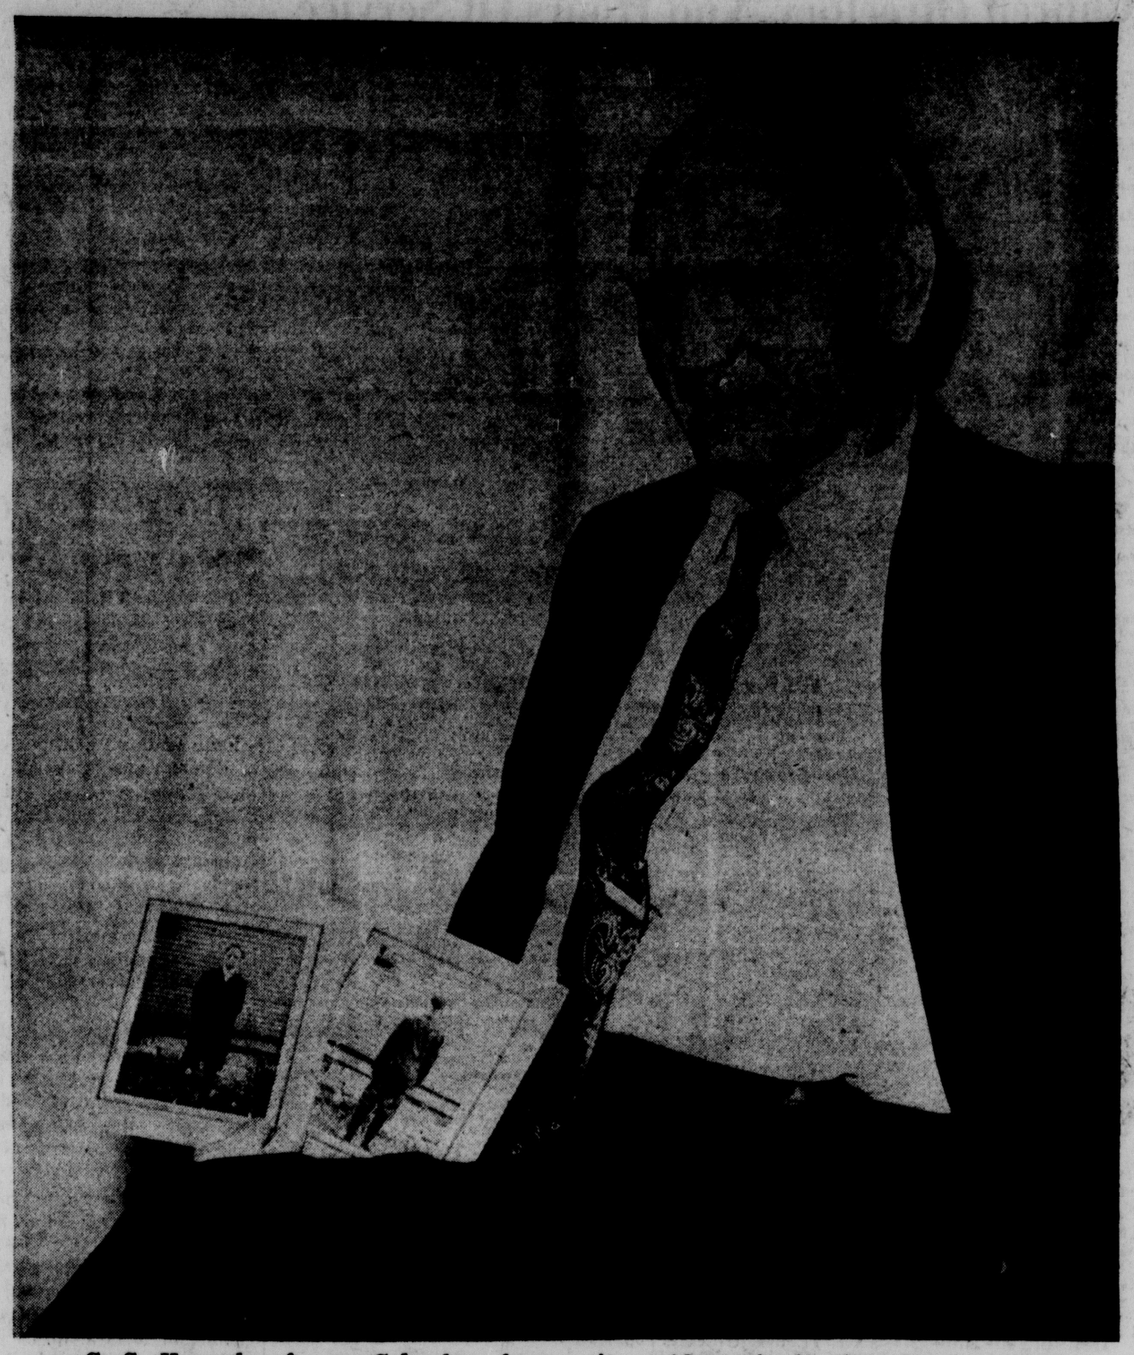

Several of the articles Kennedy has had published were "Breeding a New Shrub" appearing in The Gardener's Forum; "Hibiscus—A Gambler's Paradise" in the Garden Journal; "Chalice-Hibiscus—A Miracle of Nature" in the American Horticultural Society magazine, and "Adventures With Hardy Herbaceous Hibiscus" and "A Coming Spectacular—New Hardy Hibiscus" in the Home Garden Magazine.

Kennedy's gardens were featured in color on the front page of the Columbus Dispatch Sunday Magazine section which included an article "Hybridizing Hibiscus."

At 76 does this spell retirement? No indeed.

In his latest enterprise, he sold a tract of land 17.5 acres on Wilcox Rd., west of Dublin, to the Hoosier Engineering Co., licensed in 43 states, where they plan to erect an office building, testing laboratory and specialized body maintenance department to operate a high power transmission service, supply and equipment company.

He is negotiating with the Consolidated Biomedical Laboratories for a tract of land on which they plan to build plants for blood testing purposes which will serve a large area, and the Federated Department Stores, Inc., for an area on which they plan to build a shopping center.

C. S. Kennedy of near Columbus, former city resident who has been in many successful careers, displays photographs of himself when he was the "Roaming Rooter" for the Evening Review over 50 years ago.

The Lighter Side

By ROBERT POPP

LONG BLACK LIMOUSINES in an endless line purred quietly to the curb in front of 12041 Madison Ave., discharging a steady procession of obviously successful executives who strode importantly through the portals of an 87-story stainless steel skyscrapers, home of Great American Soap Products, Inc.

Sweating traffic cops shunted plebian vehicles into side streets or alleys to give the procession of expensive cars the undisputed right-of-way and unrestricted movement as they halted momentarily and then moved on.

Taxi drivers, resenting the intrusion into their domain, shouted strings of four-letter words at the cops. And the cops shouted back the same words, brandishing their night sticks to emphasize the more exclamatory passages.

It was obvious that a vast assemblage of Very Important Persons was converging on the single street in Manhattan, but neither the cops nor the taxi drivers knew for certain who they were.

High atop the GASP Building, in a board room the size of a football field, a host of the executive types gulped sedatives with their martinis, clapped each other on the back with expletives carried over from prep school days and worried about the seating arrangement at the long mahogany table gleaming underneath the Eighteenth Century chandelier.

IT WAS A DAY to send alternate thrills of excitement and dread through the ranks of the assembling vice presidents.

It was the day the noted advertising firm of Weasel, Wiggle, Wail and Dodge would present its package designs for Great American's new detergent product.

J. Fulbright Weasel, senior partner in the advertising firm, made his entrance as the hands of the clock indicated 11. He was followed by a procession of hirelings and hangers-on like Alexander the Great setting off for the Vale of Kashmir. The mercenaries toted boxes and cartons of material that was obviously secret and highly valuable. They aligned themselves along the inner wall of the room, seeming to come to the position of parade rest, and Weasel made his rounds of the crowd, trailing expansive greetings and the odor of expensive cologne in his wake.

After a pause that obviously was timed to allow Weasel to clap the last vice president on the back and ignore the lower-paid copy-writers, both double doors of the sanctum were flung open by unseen hands. Heads swiveled toward the entrance and a tiny figure marched through the portals with the air of a five star general preparing to review his troops and receive their homage.

It was George Washington Humes, ex-railroad conductor, former carnival barker, onetime steeplejack and now president and chairman of the board of the multi-million-dollar Great American Soap enterprises. Designing to speak only to executive vice presidents and close relatives of the principal stockholders, he strode purposefully to the head of the mammoth table, seated himself and coughed once discreetfully.

It was the signal for the meeting to begin—a meeting that meant millions to GASP and just might spell the difference between solvency and bankruptcy for the ad agency.

WEASEL AROSE with just the proper show of diffidence to the great man at the head of the table, taking care that the soft light from the chandelier caught the highlights in his heavy shock of grey hair and showed off his Ivy League tie to the best advantage.

"Well, G. W., this is The Day," he said in a booming baritone that had charmed clients since the days of Sapolio Soap. "We have done more than $2 million in product research, we have designed a package that will bowl 'em over and we have mapped out a campaign that will sell this new product to Indian Fakirs and unlettered aboriginese in the far reaches of the Outback in Australia. We are ready to suggest the proper test markets. We have a winner, I'm dead certain!"

His opening gambit proved to be a piece of stage business to allow the underlings to set up a gleaming marble-topped table to serve as the setting for display of the new package. With an imperious wave of his hand, Humus gave the signal to his crew.

The lights in the chandelier blinked off and at the same instant a powerful spotlight burst forth from the ceiling, setting off the table. A heavy swatch of purple velvet covered a bulky object in the center of the table.

The sound of trumpets and drums roared forth from a concealed amplifier as Weasel snapped his fingers. The purple velvet, controlled by unseen wires, drifted away into the darkness like a magic carpet, revealing an oblong box done in eye-shattering hues of purple, orange, red and green.

"THIS IS IT!" Weasel shouted in his most sincere voice. "Atomic Gems, the newest creation of Great American Soap Products."

The music swelled to a crescendo and all eyes turned toward George Washington Humus. The great one sat immobile, but his eyes regarded the package in a fixed stare.

Weasel, shaken but unbowed, continued in a confident voice.

"This product contains more chlorine bleach, more borax and more colored granules than any competitive brand. Our laboratory analysis showed there's even a little soap in each cubic foot, but the quantities are negligible."

Humus continued to regard the package with a fixed stare.

Weasel plunged ahead, rattled and unsure now, but sticking essentially to the presentation speech that had been written by the best minds in his creative branch.

"We have picked Albany, N. Y., for the test market," he said. "Atomic Gems will be advertised in every possible way for a week before the product goes on sale in 10 major supermarkets. We will blast it with full color ads in the newspapers, and we will hammer it home with plenty of time on radio and television. We have bought most of the available billboard space. Seventeen of the best-known cowboy actors will endorse this product simultaneously. We will give away a 72-piece set of sterling silver with every box.

"On the face of the carton, in the largest possible type, there will be the words: "Fifty Cents Off!" And the small type underneath will explain it gives the purchaser 50 cents off on his next purchase of an atomic submarine or nuclear reactor. I tell you we can't miss."

The door behind Humus edged open cautiously and a young fellow in a shoddy blue suit walked in diffidently, clasping an envelope in his right hand.

He placed the message at Humus' right elbow and then stepped back to await a reply. Humus opened the envelope with the air of one who has just been entrusted with one of the missing books of the Old Testament.

The Verse Box

What To Do Till The Doctor's Ready

Leaf through Life; look at Look;
Sneak a children's comic book;
Write a note to Uncle Fred;
Count how many folks ahead.

Estimate who hurts the most;
Read the Saturday Evening Post;
Wonder if you locked the door;
Count the tiles upon the floor;

Watch your watch; wave at baby;
Work a crossword puzzle, maybe;
Wish they'd tune another station;
Listen in on conversation;

Try not to stare at you-know-whom
Sitting there across the room—
(Is she expecting—but of course!
Wonder what—a baby horse?)

Look outside; check the traffic;
Select another Geographic;
Breathe quite deeply, shake off slumber;
Give the eye to that nifty number;

(Who's that coming through the door?
Never saw HER face before);
Beset by the cruel and nagging fear;
Are patients sneaking in the rear?

Wonder if the doctor died
Or if he's really there inside.
Girl says, "O.K. Mr. Ball!"
Things are moving after all.

Sweetie Pie will be annoyed . . .
Being late for supper, can't avoid . . .
Do doctors ever come up for air
Or do they always stay in there?

Guess I'll go—can't spend my life
So long away from kids and wife;
They've passed me over anyhow . . .
"The Doctor, Sir, will see you now!"

Hey! It hasn't been so long —
All the world is like a song —
They'll take me in, tuck me away . .
I might see the doctor yet today!

You And The Law

Charlie was held liable for an accident, and was ordered to pay more than his insurance coverage. In fact, the order was for more than everything he owned.

He decided to go through bankruptcy. Although this left him poor, at least he was relieved of his overwhelming burden of debt.

In a similar predicament, Tom also tried bankruptcy, but that didn't help. Even after going through bankruptcy, the liability for the accident was still there.

BANKRUPTCY does not cancel all debts. One debt it does not cancel is liability for "wilful and malicious" injuries inflicted on others.

Charlie had caused his accident by just driving too fast, but the court held this was not "wilful and malicious."

But Tom had been driving on the wrong side of the road, while under the influence of liquor. The court decided this was "wilful and malicious" conduct. Therefore, not even bankruptcy could save him from responsibility for it.

Any kind of wilful and malicious act may put the offender beyond the relief of bankruptcy.

In one case a disgruntled boy friend spread slanderous stories about a girl's reputation.

IN ANOTHER case, the owner of a dog known to be vicious let it run loose on the streets, where it attacked a passing pedestrian.

After a judgment for damages, the offender in each case went into bankruptcy, but each was held still liable for the wilful and malicious harm he had done.

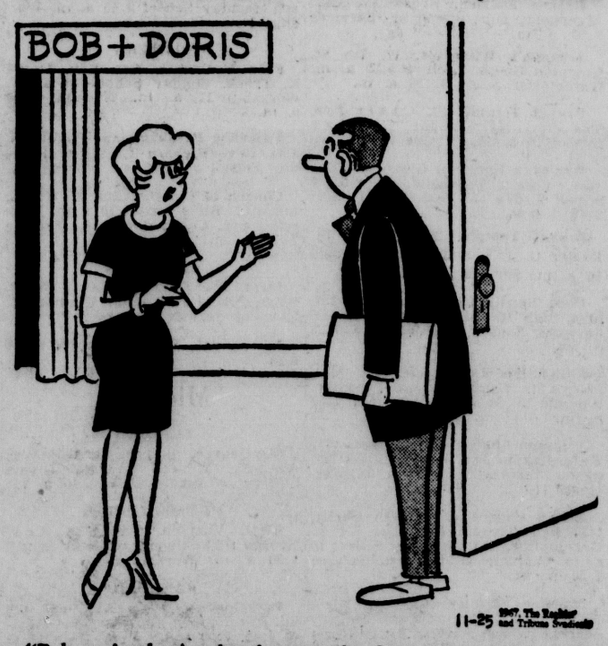

The Bankruptcy Act is designed for the hapless debtor. In the "wilful and malicious" cases, the law is not there to alibi for behavior that is not just foolish but wrongful.

The law owes consideration not only to the debtor, but also to the person who has been injured.

The students in his classes claimed top awards at all the statewide competitions in drafting and no other school even came near. Their drawings included such variety as house plans, elevations, pictorial drawings, machine drawings and miscellaneous specialized classes.

He was presented with Ford Motor Co. industrial arts award certificates of achievement in 1952 and 1953 in recognition of the instruction and guidance given to students who have earned honors for their entries in industrial arts. These certificates were awarded by Henry Ford.

With a background of drafting, C. S. personally built over 250 homes. He recalls his first projects when he dug out the foundations himself and did most of the work. As his business advanced, he procured additional help as he could afford it.

He is a qualified carpenter, pipe fitter, machinist, painter and foundry man. Among his diverse occupations were that of a shoeshine boy, messenger boy, revival leader and collector of bad debts. He served as state Civil Service examiner for 10 years.

FOR MOST of his life, Carol Kennedy has been interested in plants, so it was quite natural that he should seek an avocation with them.

His particular interest centered on the hibiscus, a genus in the mallow family of which the most familiar member is the common hollyhock. Other members of this plant family are the rose of sharon, the common rose mallow and the rose of China.

The hibiscus is not grown in home gardens, although it ought to be, he commented. It is a bold striking plant of shrub-like habit with large flowers in various colors which bloom over a long period in midsummer until fall. Kennedy once had 25,000 seedling hibiscus in bloom in his gardens.

With a land tract of 120 acres, his is one of the most extensive projects to improve a garden perennial flower being carried on in the United States today. His particular interest in plant hybridizing is with hibiscus, dahlias and iris, and he works with thousands of plants each year to develop a new variety.

In concentrating on the development of new strains of hibiscus, he was able to produce a scarlet one with a white crescent on each of the five petals. This year he had a bloom with 41 petals.

HE HAS CREATED five new basic colors and four new forms never existing before. With an investment of $130,000 in his flowers, C. S. hopes to sell the plants to nurserymen.

So deeply interested in hybridizing, he prepares and has printed extensive annual progress reports. He also wrote a story "The Garden of Enchantment," telling in detail the miracles of the hibiscus.

Some of his plants for experimental purposes have been growing in the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens, the New York Botanical Garden and the United States National Arboretum.

He has been a member of the American Horticultural Society since 1932 and is one of the founders of the Northern Garden Club about 30 years ago.

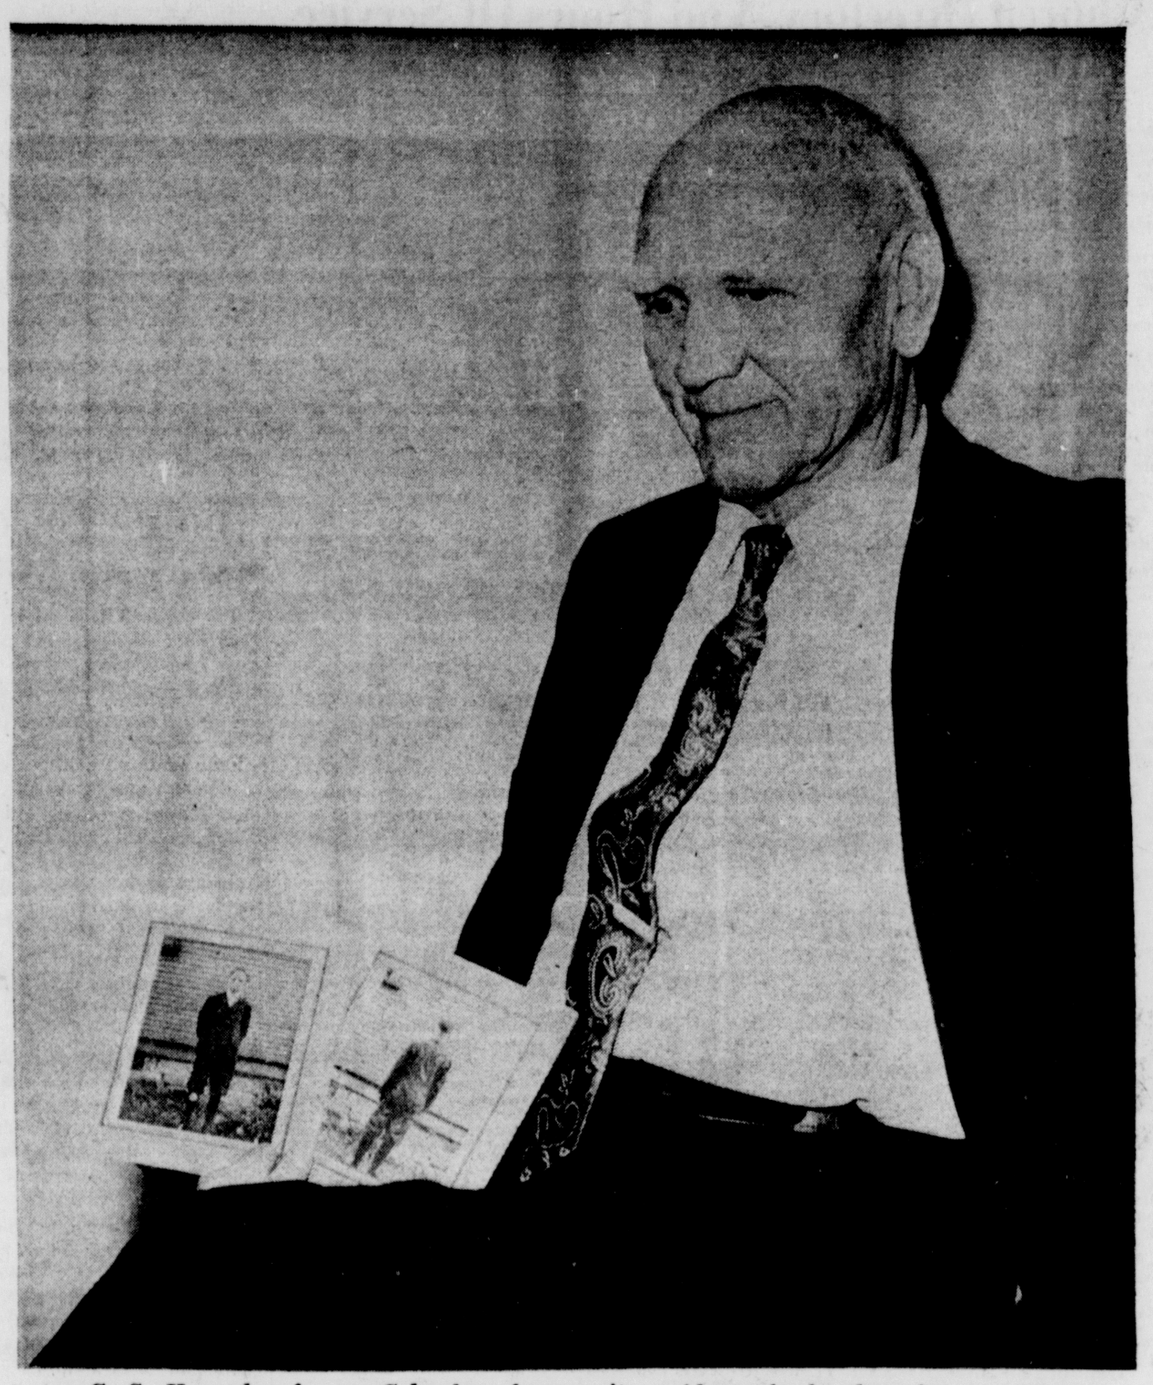

Several of the articles Kennedy has had published were "Breeding a New Shrub" appearing in The Gardener's Forum; "Hibiscus—A Gambler's Paradise" in the Garden Journal; "Chalice-Hibiscus—A Miracle of Nature" in the American Horticultural Society magazine, and "Adventures With Hardy Herbaceous Hibiscus" and "A Coming Spectacular—New Hardy Hibiscus" in the Home Garden Magazine.

Kennedy's gardens were featured in color on the front page of the Columbus Dispatch Sunday Magazine section which included an article "Hybridizing Hibiscus."

At 76 does this spell retirement? No indeed.

In his latest enterprise, he sold a tract of land 17.5 acres on Wilcox Rd., west of Dublin, to the Hoosier Engineering Co., licensed in 43 states, where they plan to erect an office building, testing laboratory and specialized body maintenance department to operate a high power transmission service, supply and equipment company.

He is negotiating with the Consolidated Biomedical Laboratories for a tract of land on which they plan to build plants for blood testing purposes which will serve a large area, and the Federated Department Stores, Inc., for an area on which they plan to build a shopping center.

The Lighter Side

By ROBERT POPP

LONG BLACK LIMOUSINES in an endless line purred quietly to the curb in front of 12041 Madison Ave., discharging a steady procession of obviously successful executives who strode importantly through the portals of an 87-story stainless steel skyscrapers, home of Great American Soap Products, Inc.

Sweating traffic cops shunted plebian vehicles into side streets or alleys to give the procession of expensive cars the undisputed right-of-way and unrestricted movement as they halted momentarily and then moved on.

Taxi drivers, resenting the intrusion into their domain, shouted strings of four-letter words at the cops. And the cops shouted back the same words, brandishing their night sticks to emphasize the more exclamatory passages.

It was obvious that a vast assemblage of Very Important Persons was converging on the single street in Manhattan, but neither the cops nor the taxi drivers knew for certain who they were.

High atop the GASP Building, in a board room the size of a football field, a host of the executive types gulped sedatives with their martinis, clapped each other on the back with expletives carried over from prep school days and worried about the seating arrangement at the long mahogany table gleaming underneath the Eighteenth Century chandelier.

IT WAS A DAY to send alternate thrills of excitement and dread through the ranks of the assembling vice presidents.

It was the day the noted advertising firm of Weasel, Wiggle, Wail and Dodge would present its package designs for Great American's new detergent product.

J. Fulbright Weasel, senior partner in the advertising firm, made his entrance as the hands of the clock indicated 11. He was followed by a procession of hirelings and hangers-on like Alexander the Great setting off for the Vale of Kashmir. The mercenaries toted boxes and cartons of material that was obviously secret and highly valuable. They aligned themselves along the inner wall of the room, seeming to come to the position of parade rest, and Weasel made his rounds of the crowd, trailing expansive greetings and the odor of expensive cologne in his wake.

After a pause that obviously was timed to allow Weasel to clap the last vice president on the back and ignore the lower-paid copy-writers, both double doors of the sanctum were flung open by unseen hands. Heads swiveled toward the entrance and a tiny figure marched through the portals with the air of a five star general preparing to review his troops and receive their homage.

It was George Washington Humes, ex-railroad conductor, former carnival barker, onetime steeplejack and now president and chairman of the board of the multi-million-dollar Great American Soap enterprises. Designing to speak only to executive vice presidents and close relatives of the principal stockholders, he strode purposefully to the head of the mammoth table, seated himself and coughed once discreetfully.

It was the signal for the meeting to begin—a meeting that meant millions to GASP and just might spell the difference between solvency and bankruptcy for the ad agency.

WEASEL AROSE with just the proper show of diffidence to the great man at the head of the table, taking care that the soft light from the chandelier caught the highlights in his heavy shock of grey hair and showed off his Ivy League tie to the best advantage.

"Well, G. W., this is The Day," he said in a booming baritone that had charmed clients since the days of Sapolio Soap. "We have done more than $2 million in product research, we have designed a package that will bowl 'em over and we have mapped out a campaign that will sell this new product to Indian Fakirs and unlettered aboriginese in the far reaches of the Outback in Australia. We are ready to suggest the proper test markets. We have a winner, I'm dead certain!"

His opening gambit proved to be a piece of stage business to allow the underlings to set up a gleaming marble-topped table to serve as the setting for display of the new package. With an imperious wave of his hand, Humus gave the signal to his crew.

The lights in the chandelier blinked off and at the same instant a powerful spotlight burst forth from the ceiling, setting off the table. A heavy swatch of purple velvet covered a bulky object in the center of the table.

The sound of trumpets and drums roared forth from a concealed amplifier as Weasel snapped his fingers. The purple velvet, controlled by unseen wires, drifted away into the darkness like a magic carpet, revealing an oblong box done in eye-shattering hues of purple, orange, red and green.

"THIS IS IT!" Weasel shouted in his most sincere voice. "Atomic Gems, the newest creation of Great American Soap Products."

The music swelled to a crescendo and all eyes turned toward George Washington Humus. The great one sat immobile, but his eyes regarded the package in a fixed stare.

Weasel, shaken but unbowed, continued in a confident voice.

"This product contains more chlorine bleach, more borax and more colored granules than any competitive brand. Our laboratory analysis showed there's even a little soap in each cubic foot, but the quantities are negligible."

Humus continued to regard the package with a fixed stare.

Weasel plunged ahead, rattled and unsure now, but sticking essentially to the presentation speech that had been written by the best minds in his creative branch.

"We have picked Albany, N. Y., for the test market," he said. "Atomic Gems will be advertised in every possible way for a week before the product goes on sale in 10 major supermarkets. We will blast it with full color ads in the newspapers, and we will hammer it home with plenty of time on radio and television. We have bought most of the available billboard space. Seventeen of the best-known cowboy actors will endorse this product simultaneously. We will give away a 72-piece set of sterling silver with every box.

"On the face of the carton, in the largest possible type, there will be the words: "Fifty Cents Off!" And the small type underneath will explain it gives the purchaser 50 cents off on his next purchase of an atomic submarine or nuclear reactor. I tell you we can't miss."

The door behind Humus edged open cautiously and a young fellow in a shoddy blue suit walked in diffidently, clasping an envelope in his right hand.

He placed the message at Humus' right elbow and then stepped back to await a reply. Humus opened the envelope with the air of one who has just been entrusted with one of the missing books of the Old Testament.

What To Do Till The Doctor's Ready

Leaf through Life; look at Look;
Sneak a children's comic book;
Write a note to Uncle Fred;
Count how many folks ahead.

Estimate who hurts the most;
Read the Saturday Evening Post;
Wonder if you locked the door;
Count the tiles upon the floor;

Watch your watch; wave at baby;
Work a crossword puzzle, maybe;
Wish they'd tune another station;
Listen in on conversation;

Try not to stare at you-know-whom
Sitting there across the room—
(Is she expecting—but of course!
Wonder what—a baby horse?)

Look outside; check the traffic;
Select another Geographic;
Breathe quite deeply, shake off slumber;
Give the eye to that nifty number;

(Who's that coming through the door?
Never saw HER face before);
Beset by the cruel and nagging fear;
Are patients sneaking in the rear?

Wonder if the doctor died
Or if he's really there inside.
Girl says, "O.K. Mr. Ball!"
Things are moving after all.

Sweetie Pie will be annoyed . . .
Being late for supper, can't avoid . . .
Do doctors ever come up for air
Or do they always stay in there?

Guess I'll go—can't spend my life
So long away from kids and wife;
They've passed me over anyhow . . .
"The Doctor, Sir, will see you now!"

Hey! It hasn't been so long —
All the world is like a song —
They'll take me in, tuck me away . .
I might see the doctor yet today!

You And The Law

Charlie was held liable for an accident, and was ordered to pay more than his insurance coverage. In fact, the order was for more than everything he owned.

He decided to go through bankruptcy. Although this left him poor, at least he was relieved of his overwhelming burden of debt.

In a similar predicament, Tom also tried bankruptcy, but that didn't help. Even after going through bankruptcy, the liability for the accident was still there.

BANKRUPTCY does not cancel all debts. One debt it does not cancel is liability for "wilful and malicious" injuries inflicted on others.

Charlie had caused his accident by just driving too fast, but the court held this was not "wilful and malicious."

But Tom had been driving on the wrong side of the road, while under the influence of liquor. The court decided this was "wilful and malicious" conduct. Therefore, not even bankruptcy could save him from responsibility for it.

Any kind of wilful and malicious act may put the offender beyond the relief of bankruptcy.

In one case a disgruntled boy friend spread slanderous stories about a girl's reputation.

IN ANOTHER case, the owner of a dog known to be vicious let it run loose on the streets, where it attacked a passing pedestrian.

After a judgment for damages, the offender in each case went into bankruptcy, but each was held still liable for the wilful and malicious harm he had done.

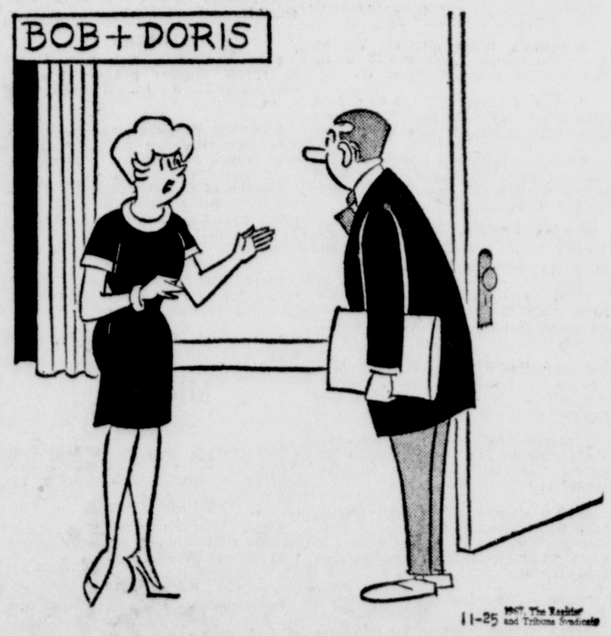

The Bankruptcy Act is designed for the hapless debtor. In the "wilful and malicious" cases, the law is not there to alibi for behavior that is not just foolish but wrongful.

The law owes consideration not only to the debtor, but also to the person who has been injured.

GUNS DON'T HURT PEOPLE! But sometimes people do, with guns.

This is a very good safety slogan used by various groups and individuals promoting gun safety.

Safe gun handling is necessary, and even those who do not hunt should familiarize themselves with any weapon they might have on hand. All firearm accidents do not involve hunters.

But, to date in Columbiana County, there have been two non-fatal accidents since hunting season opened. Investigation shows both could have been avoided if basic safe practices had been observed.

In 1966, there was only one hunting mishap. There has not been a hunting fatality in the county since 1964, when two were recorded.

In Ohio, the record to date this year stands at 5 fatal accidents and 36 non-fatal mishaps. The total of 41 is not high, but is more than necessary.

A few years ago, in 1958, there were 170 accidents during the hunting season. Eighteen were were killed.

The record has improved over the years. This indicates that the educational program by various state agencies, writers, Boy Scout groups and others has made the public aware of the dangers.

The majority of hunting accidents in Ohio occur in November, during rabbit season. Of the six fatalities recorded in 1966, five were the result of hunters seeking rabbits. The other was a squirrel hunter who stumbled and fell, causing the gun to discharge.

In three cases the victim was either in or moved into the line of fire. Another stumbled and fell and the fifth was removing a loaded gun from a car.

A GUN IS MADE of metal and wood. It has no mind. A gun could set for years in a corner and never injure anyone. But, let someone pick it up, load it, point the muzzle at someone, and pull the trigger — you now have an instrument which can inflict a serious wound or take a life.

For those who do not own guns or have never handled them, the best rule would be to leave them alone. If a gun is strange to you, it would be wise to at least familiarize yourself with them.

A TOTAL OF 7,530 firearm casualties were reported to the National Rifle Association in the four year period from 1961 to 1964, inclusive. This covered 46 states and seven Canadian provinces.

This includes fatalities, non-fatalities, and self inflicted wounds.

Included in the "firearms" used were rifles, shotguns, handguns, bow and arrow and "others."

The leading cause was "victim out of sight of shooter," pointing to the need for extreme caution in the field. In the national survey, hunters in the field after rabbits led in accidents. Deer hunting was next, followed by squirrel and pheasant.

Most of the accidents occured between 2 and 4 p. m.

WITH THE STRONG emotional feeling against firearms today, facts and figures such as these are used by those promoting legislation to outlaw ownership of guns.

Of course, opponents of such legislation can point to the figures and show guns do not account for nearly as many deaths as automobiles, home accidents, fires, and so forth. But, this is not the entire answer.

Gun owners should strive to cut down on accidents, both in the field and at home. This would quiet the opposition and save lives at the same time.

EACH YEAR at this time, many guns are sold. Persons who have never owned weapons decide they want to take up hunting. They secure a gun and head into the woods or fields. They cause accidents.

Parents purchase guns for a young son. He is handed a rifle or shotgun, a box of ammunition and sent out on his own. The result is more accidents.

If the father is not a hunter, or has never had much to do with guns, chances are he doesn't know enough to inform his son of the rudiments of safety. At best, it can be hoped that someone — a neighbor or a friend — will take time to teach the youth.

Because shooting is a part of the American tradition, almost all youngsters want to shoot. They read of exploits of pioneers and war heroes in history books at school and would like to try their own hand at shooting.

And it is fun — clean, honest fun that can be enjoyed by both boys and girls. That is if it is carried on in a sensible manner.

There are facilities for shooting in the area. Take advantage of them. Join a gun club and use the range. Set up a range in the basement of your home. Gravel pits, sand banks or safe hillsides make fine ranges.

Obtain books on gun safety and give them to your offspring. In fact, there are some adults who call themselves hunters who could do well to learn a little gun safety.

ONE HEARTENING fact in this area is the number of high schools that are having gun safety courses presented to the students.

In the majority of cases, the entire student body enrolls for the course. Ohio Wildlife Division officials conduct the classes and say the students are very attentive.

Many of the youths probably will never hunt or even target shoot. But they are anxious to learn gun safety.

Often, we all get tired of hearing or reading of gun safety. But, it doesn't hurt to renew in our minds the need for caution at all times.

DEER SEASON OPENS Monday in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

In the Keystone state, some one million hunters are expected in the woods. Officials are predicting a record harvest of whitetail deer. The two week season will end Dec. 9.

Small game season closes today in Pennsylvania, along with bear season. Hunters bagged 200 bears Monday, the opening day.

Because of the number of hunters expected, officials have been issuing special pleas for the use of clothing of conspicuous color. Fluorescent blaze orange is the best. If you don't believe it, pay close attention to hunters wearing this brilliant color. They stand out like a sore thumb. Bright red doesn't compare with the new color, which is easily seen on a dark, cloudy day.

IN OHIO, not as many hunters will be in the field, but chances are the deer they get will be trophies.

Buckeye state deer are classed the biggest and best in North America. Ohio's deer herd is continuing to increase, but the season only extends through Friday. A shotgun, with slugs, or a muzzle-loading rifle can be used.

The hunting hours are from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

A buck or doe ruling will be in effect on Monday only in Ashtabula, Geauga, Lake, Mahoning, Portage, Stark, Summit and Trumbull Counties.

Deer killed in Ohio must be tagged and checked. In Columbiana County, the checking stations will be Eskew's American Service on Route 164 at Gavers, about six miles out of Lisbon, or at Jack Williams Sohio Service at the corner of E. Lincoln Way and Jefferson St., Lisbon.

Deer taken in Jefferson County can be checked at Boroski's Service at Dillonvale or the George E. Thompson Service at 875 Main St., Wintersville.

In Carroll County, the station is the Carrollton Locker Plant a half block south of the intersection of Routes 39 and 43 in Carrollton.

WEST VIRGINIA deer hunters have been having good success. Several residents of the area have reported taking nice bucks.

THE WINTER FISHING season opens next Friday in Pennsylvania. The season on trout will close at midnight, Feb. 15. The other species will be fair game through March 14.

Trout will be stocked in many streams and lakes, including Raccoon Creek State Park Lake in Beaver County.

PARENTS OF YOUNG trappers are urged to check the activities of their offspring.

Ralph Drake, Columbiana County game protector, says he has had several complaints of youths lifting traps not belonging to them.

A check by parents on the number of traps a youngster has could help halt this, he says.

It is illegal to move, or remove, traps belonging to someone else. Traps also should be marked with a waterproof tag showing ownership.

Stamps In The News

HUNGARY has issued three interesting new sets of stamps. One shows the poet Milton dictating "Paradise Lost" to his daughter. It is based on a painting by Soma Petrics. The stamp was issued to honor the International Stamp Show in Amsterdam. The second stamp was issued to mark the International Tourist Year and depicted a map of Hungary with tourist symbols. The third set consisting of seven stamps, commemorating the 25th session of the Danube Commission, showed different Hungarian commercial vessels plying the Danube.

IN ANSWER to Miss Mary Vincent of New Bedford, Mass., the beginners stamp collecting book may be purchased directly from Minkus Publications, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

To Mrs. Walter B. Cox of Marion, Ohio, I suggest you show your stamp album to a local dealer who will be able to examine the items and give you an appraisal. If there are no dealers in your immediate area, you can take the albums to Columbus where there are several dealers who can help you.

To Mrs. Alvina Hemsath of Ossian, Iowa, you may purchase the catalogs directly from Scott Publications, 461 8th Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001 or Minkus Publications, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

CANADA'S EXPO 1967 is certainly getting a philatelic "ride" from various countries as new stamps honoring the event are being issued by participating nations. Most depict the pavilions of the countries. A new EXPO stamp from Iceland, however, shows two maps. On the left is a map of 1590 illustrating Iceland's position in the then-known world. The map at the left shows a modern map version.

ITALY has issued a special set of four stamps honoring its national parks. The 20 lire shows a mountain goat in Gran Paradiso Park which was created in Italy's Alpine regions in 1922 to conserve wildlife.

The 40 lire depicts a grizzly bear in Abruzzo Park located in southern Italy. Abruzzo Park was originally reserved exclusively for bear hunting. The 90 lire features an antlered stag against the mountain peaks of Stelvio Park created in 1934. The 170 lire illustrates one of the huge oak trees which characterize the Circeo Park in Lazio located north of Rome and chartered in 1933.

The Younger Set

Area high school students, caught in a rather pleasant whirl of classwork, club projects and holiday madness, have juggled their schedules admirably. At East Liverpool High School, an "underground" magazine is in the process of being published. It is expected to be available in December. Everyone in the club — under the leadership of co-editors Candy Burcham and Odelia Douglas — is contributing to the multi-sectioned publication. Poems, stories and popularity polls will fill the pages with interesting results. Be sure and claim a copy as your very own — who knows, it might be valuable some day as a collectors piece! Don Thorne, adviser, deserves a standing ovation from all for managing to live through the harrowing experience; let's tell him that we appreciate his help, okay? . . . "ROMEO, ROMEO" — After receiving a large dose of inspiration from the plays last Saturday, undoubtedly everyone is determined to go to Hollywood and become a star. Well, if by chance you're a little interested in show biz, why not check out the Little Theater happening Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Potters Savings and Loan Co. annex downtown? Young and old alike gather to try to add culture to our nearly cultureless existence. The groundwork is under way now and soon the "show will get on the road." Look out Pittsburgh Playhouse, here we come! . . . ROTC RESCUE — Members are learning to plot maps to pinpoint various positions of the "enemy," providing they're tops in math! If you need help finding your girl, they could help you. Of course, she may not WANT to be found! . . .

RAMS BOOSTERS, RIGHT? WRITE! — South Side High School wanted to make sure everyone knew the 1967-'68 basketball schedule, so they had the senior class sell pens with the complete schedule on them! Some of the black and white pens, just to add variety, have pictures of a ram's head (the animals, not the players!) on them. Well, everyone knows the first game is Tuesday against Burgettstown, so let's attend in full force! . . . FLASHIN' FASHIONS — Black and white hounds-tooth patterned jumpers (how appropriate!) will be worn by the cheerleaders at the game. Black jerseys and knee socks will set off the girls' outfits . . . XMAS WRAPPING PAPER SALE — how are you coming along with the wrapping paper sale for Christmas packages? If you work really hard, you might be fortunate enough to claim as your own an AM-FM radio, a stuffed animal or other goodies!

HEY, BUSTER! — Buster (Eddie Mae) Murphy, has been chosen to lead the Wellsville High School senior class! Joe Farrell, vice president, Sharry Dinch, secretary, and Jesse Hawk, treasurer, make up a team that'll be hard to beat! . . . SWEATSHORTS — No, we aren't lisping, sweatshorts is a new style in the Wellsville Gym classes. Gwen Wright, designer, said that any sweatshirt will adapt itself — simply sew the neck opening closed and make darts at the waistline (what waistline, Gwen?) and you've got a pair of the neatest sweatshorts around! Just put your legs through the sleeves — and tie a rope around the waist? — and go get 'em, Tiger! . . . "I'M IN THE MOOD FOR" — Ping-pong? Basketball? How about a fast game of checkers? The only question is what to do FIRST at the Wellsville gym during recreation night. After 9 p.m., all the latest records are played, topping off a perfect evening of fun and games! The price is a dime and the "night" is held every Thursday, providing a variety of activities for idle students — and a relaxing way to figure out those pressing homework problems! (We know it's a sneaky idea to keep us off the streets at night, but let's cooperate — who knows, we may even like it!) . . . CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN — Cheerleaders have been selected, with the honors going to the girls with the most ability and the strongest set of lungs. In the Varsity lineup are Becky Davidson, Sonnie Richards, Sharry Dinch, Paula Todd and Penny Pringle. The reserves are Vickie Cataldo, Sandy and Randy Young, Portia Pulliam and Francie Hawk. Come on, be a sport; attend the first game (against Midland) and give our lovable loud-mouths some help, cheerfully!

MO-O-O-OVE OVER! — Couples who attended the Beaver Local High School Sadie Hawkins dance last Saturday had their photos taken while astride a charming cow. Maureen Bell was Daisy Mae and Fred Brown was Little Abner . . . OKAY, DONALD LANGSDALE — Just what is so special about question 33 on the last senior English test you gave? . . . SO WHO WANTS AN IRIDESCENT ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL? — Egad, our assistant principal, Mr. Frank Sturgeon, is simply "glowing" about his newly painted office. That brilliant turquoise, applied by competent hands of Key Clubbers, is enough to make you seasick — but a pleasant seasick. Mrs. Manning, Dean of Girls, plans to get a "suntan" from the glowing yellow the Key Club members painted on her office's wall . . . "JINGLE BELL ROCK" — The ELHS Band marched in the Kaufman's Thanksgiving Day parade Thursday in Pittsburgh. The agile band members also managed to dance to the old favorite, "Jingle Bell Rock" . . . TURN IN YOUR BACHELOR BUTTON — Richard Parsons, our second most "confirmed" bachelor is now married. The Home Economics class baked two cakes Wednesday to celebrate.

"THE TWELFTH NIGHT" Seniors at East Palestine High School attended a play Thursday by the drama class of Mt. Union College . . . STARRING REPRESENTATIVE — Jim Taucher, senior end, was selected by a unanimous vote by coaches of the Tri-County League for the first team. Joe Thompson and John Zalick were selected to the second Tri-County team, and both received honorable mention in the county selections . . . '68 MONITOR CAPTAINS — Ginny Wilhelm and John Zalick have been elected as captains for the 1967-'68 school monitors . . . . . CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN — Reserve cheerleaders were picked last Friday. They are Barb Keresty, Liz Johnston, Joan Wilhelm and Melody Keating. Melody is the only freshman; the others are sophomores. They were chosen from a group of 25 and will begin their "duties" Dec. 1 when the Bulldogs clash with Canfield . . . GRUMPY GROOM — David McKay, teacher of American government and assistant football coach, has every right to be a grumpy bridegroom at his wedding today. He was injured in an auto accident Nov. 15 and, though mobile, he's not going to be the most charming Prince Charming in his bandages and bruises! Cheer up.

DECISIONS, DECISIONS — It's not a question of reading a good book from the Southern Local High School library, it's just choosing between the 7,500 volumes! The library is exceptional in its quantity as well as quality, but just think of the space saved if the adage, "A picture's worth a thousand words," had been employed! . . . SOUTHERN SQUAWS — Fifty-one basketball cheerleaders have organized a group called the Cheering Squaws. They plan to wear a distinctive costume for the home games. Be Brave (s) and don't miss this . . . (natch!). Toronto, Beaver Local, Jefferson Union, Wellsville and Leetonia . . . SERIOUSLY SPEAKING — The Future Teachers took a trip to the Elkton School for Retarded Children Nov. 15. There they were divided into groups and observed the teaching procedures used in this area of special education. The apparent thirst for knowledge seemed to reaffirm the goal of teaching for the members of the club . . . PROGRESS — In an informal "census" we've discovered that more than one-fourth of last year's graduates are furthering their education at colleges and other schools.

SUPER SUPERINTENDENT Charles Henderson, Lincoln High School superintendent, led a rousing cheer during a pep assembly Wednesday in the auditorium. He said plans are being made for a combined junior-senior play.

If only half of the proposed activities become "happenings" it's going to be a great year! . . . CREPES SUZETTE ANYONE?—The French Club sponsored a bake sale today at the McGeehan Agencey . . . BOWLING CLINIC—No, the bowling clinic wasn't for sick bowling balls, but was held Tuesday for anyone who wanted to learn to bowl. (Ah hah, a clinic for sick BOWLERS! . . . WHITE SOCKS IN VOGUE? OUI!— For the initiation into the French Club, seven new members had to wear white socks (horrors!) and signs on their backs explaining their strange dress. Gary Spanik and Mike Roknich tried to play it cool and wore white socks, under black ones. John Bender, chemistry prof. is a firm believer in fair play (and white socks?) and made the guys shed the black socks in front of the class.

"THE BELLS ARE RINGING . . ."—Today is the wedding day for Miss Bernadette Pokropski, French teacher at Western Beaver High School, and Wayne Cymbor. She will continue teaching. She received gifts from her French class and her homeroom. Congratulations! . . . ART INTERNATIONAL—Fifty students of the art elective class here attended the Pittsburgh International Art show at Carnegie Institute. Don Nelson, instructor, accompanied the group . . . THE HIGHLIGHTER—The school newspaper is expected to be available next week with our own Younger Set correspondent, Jane McCreery, as editor! Senior homeroom 214 couldn't wait for the publication though, and printed its own rag last week, "The Funny Dude Times." The three-page edition was admirably done.

LISBON HIGH SOPHOMORES will sponsor a dance tonight in the gym. Music by the New Breed . . . A lot of last year's seniors are back in town this Thanksgiving weekend as college frosh . . . Looking months ahead, the seniors will stand straight Dec. 4 to be measured for graduation gowns . . . A group of juniors and seniors from area high schools will be here Dec. 2 to take the college entrance examination board scholastic aptitude test . . . OF THE 13 senior girls in the cooperative office education course, Debbie Spencer is the only one who doesn't have to travel to work. She is "Girl Friday" every afternoon in the principal's office.

This is a very good safety slogan used by various groups and individuals promoting gun safety.

Safe gun handling is necessary, and even those who do not hunt should familiarize themselves with any weapon they might have on hand. All firearm accidents do not involve hunters.

But, to date in Columbiana County, there have been two non-fatal accidents since hunting season opened. Investigation shows both could have been avoided if basic safe practices had been observed.

In 1966, there was only one hunting mishap. There has not been a hunting fatality in the county since 1964, when two were recorded.

In Ohio, the record to date this year stands at 5 fatal accidents and 36 non-fatal mishaps. The total of 41 is not high, but is more than necessary.

A few years ago, in 1958, there were 170 accidents during the hunting season. Eighteen were were killed.

The record has improved over the years. This indicates that the educational program by various state agencies, writers, Boy Scout groups and others has made the public aware of the dangers.

The majority of hunting accidents in Ohio occur in November, during rabbit season. Of the six fatalities recorded in 1966, five were the result of hunters seeking rabbits. The other was a squirrel hunter who stumbled and fell, causing the gun to discharge.

In three cases the victim was either in or moved into the line of fire. Another stumbled and fell and the fifth was removing a loaded gun from a car.

A GUN IS MADE of metal and wood. It has no mind. A gun could set for years in a corner and never injure anyone. But, let someone pick it up, load it, point the muzzle at someone, and pull the trigger — you now have an instrument which can inflict a serious wound or take a life.

For those who do not own guns or have never handled them, the best rule would be to leave them alone. If a gun is strange to you, it would be wise to at least familiarize yourself with them.

A TOTAL OF 7,530 firearm casualties were reported to the National Rifle Association in the four year period from 1961 to 1964, inclusive. This covered 46 states and seven Canadian provinces.

This includes fatalities, non-fatalities, and self inflicted wounds.

Included in the "firearms" used were rifles, shotguns, handguns, bow and arrow and "others."

The leading cause was "victim out of sight of shooter," pointing to the need for extreme caution in the field. In the national survey, hunters in the field after rabbits led in accidents. Deer hunting was next, followed by squirrel and pheasant.

Most of the accidents occured between 2 and 4 p. m.

WITH THE STRONG emotional feeling against firearms today, facts and figures such as these are used by those promoting legislation to outlaw ownership of guns.

Of course, opponents of such legislation can point to the figures and show guns do not account for nearly as many deaths as automobiles, home accidents, fires, and so forth. But, this is not the entire answer.

Gun owners should strive to cut down on accidents, both in the field and at home. This would quiet the opposition and save lives at the same time.

EACH YEAR at this time, many guns are sold. Persons who have never owned weapons decide they want to take up hunting. They secure a gun and head into the woods or fields. They cause accidents.

Parents purchase guns for a young son. He is handed a rifle or shotgun, a box of ammunition and sent out on his own. The result is more accidents.

If the father is not a hunter, or has never had much to do with guns, chances are he doesn't know enough to inform his son of the rudiments of safety. At best, it can be hoped that someone — a neighbor or a friend — will take time to teach the youth.

Because shooting is a part of the American tradition, almost all youngsters want to shoot. They read of exploits of pioneers and war heroes in history books at school and would like to try their own hand at shooting.

And it is fun — clean, honest fun that can be enjoyed by both boys and girls. That is if it is carried on in a sensible manner.

There are facilities for shooting in the area. Take advantage of them. Join a gun club and use the range. Set up a range in the basement of your home. Gravel pits, sand banks or safe hillsides make fine ranges.

Obtain books on gun safety and give them to your offspring. In fact, there are some adults who call themselves hunters who could do well to learn a little gun safety.

ONE HEARTENING fact in this area is the number of high schools that are having gun safety courses presented to the students.

In the majority of cases, the entire student body enrolls for the course. Ohio Wildlife Division officials conduct the classes and say the students are very attentive.

Many of the youths probably will never hunt or even target shoot. But they are anxious to learn gun safety.

Often, we all get tired of hearing or reading of gun safety. But, it doesn't hurt to renew in our minds the need for caution at all times.

DEER SEASON OPENS Monday in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

In the Keystone state, some one million hunters are expected in the woods. Officials are predicting a record harvest of whitetail deer. The two week season will end Dec. 9.

Small game season closes today in Pennsylvania, along with bear season. Hunters bagged 200 bears Monday, the opening day.

Because of the number of hunters expected, officials have been issuing special pleas for the use of clothing of conspicuous color. Fluorescent blaze orange is the best. If you don't believe it, pay close attention to hunters wearing this brilliant color. They stand out like a sore thumb. Bright red doesn't compare with the new color, which is easily seen on a dark, cloudy day.

IN OHIO, not as many hunters will be in the field, but chances are the deer they get will be trophies.

Buckeye state deer are classed the biggest and best in North America. Ohio's deer herd is continuing to increase, but the season only extends through Friday. A shotgun, with slugs, or a muzzle-loading rifle can be used.

The hunting hours are from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

A buck or doe ruling will be in effect on Monday only in Ashtabula, Geauga, Lake, Mahoning, Portage, Stark, Summit and Trumbull Counties.

Deer killed in Ohio must be tagged and checked. In Columbiana County, the checking stations will be Eskew's American Service on Route 164 at Gavers, about six miles out of Lisbon, or at Jack Williams Sohio Service at the corner of E. Lincoln Way and Jefferson St., Lisbon.

Deer taken in Jefferson County can be checked at Boroski's Service at Dillonvale or the George E. Thompson Service at 875 Main St., Wintersville.

In Carroll County, the station is the Carrollton Locker Plant a half block south of the intersection of Routes 39 and 43 in Carrollton.

WEST VIRGINIA deer hunters have been having good success. Several residents of the area have reported taking nice bucks.

THE WINTER FISHING season opens next Friday in Pennsylvania. The season on trout will close at midnight, Feb. 15. The other species will be fair game through March 14.

Trout will be stocked in many streams and lakes, including Raccoon Creek State Park Lake in Beaver County.

PARENTS OF YOUNG trappers are urged to check the activities of their offspring.

Ralph Drake, Columbiana County game protector, says he has had several complaints of youths lifting traps not belonging to them.

A check by parents on the number of traps a youngster has could help halt this, he says.

It is illegal to move, or remove, traps belonging to someone else. Traps also should be marked with a waterproof tag showing ownership.

Stamps In The News

HUNGARY has issued three interesting new sets of stamps. One shows the poet Milton dictating "Paradise Lost" to his daughter. It is based on a painting by Soma Petrics. The stamp was issued to honor the International Stamp Show in Amsterdam. The second stamp was issued to mark the International Tourist Year and depicted a map of Hungary with tourist symbols. The third set consisting of seven stamps, commemorating the 25th session of the Danube Commission, showed different Hungarian commercial vessels plying the Danube.

IN ANSWER to Miss Mary Vincent of New Bedford, Mass., the beginners stamp collecting book may be purchased directly from Minkus Publications, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

To Mrs. Walter B. Cox of Marion, Ohio, I suggest you show your stamp album to a local dealer who will be able to examine the items and give you an appraisal. If there are no dealers in your immediate area, you can take the albums to Columbus where there are several dealers who can help you.

To Mrs. Alvina Hemsath of Ossian, Iowa, you may purchase the catalogs directly from Scott Publications, 461 8th Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001 or Minkus Publications, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

CANADA'S EXPO 1967 is certainly getting a philatelic "ride" from various countries as new stamps honoring the event are being issued by participating nations. Most depict the pavilions of the countries. A new EXPO stamp from Iceland, however, shows two maps. On the left is a map of 1590 illustrating Iceland's position in the then-known world. The map at the left shows a modern map version.

ITALY has issued a special set of four stamps honoring its national parks. The 20 lire shows a mountain goat in Gran Paradiso Park which was created in Italy's Alpine regions in 1922 to conserve wildlife.

The 40 lire depicts a grizzly bear in Abruzzo Park located in southern Italy. Abruzzo Park was originally reserved exclusively for bear hunting. The 90 lire features an antlered stag against the mountain peaks of Stelvio Park created in 1934. The 170 lire illustrates one of the huge oak trees which characterize the Circeo Park in Lazio located north of Rome and chartered in 1933.

The Younger Set

Area high school students, caught in a rather pleasant whirl of classwork, club projects and holiday madness, have juggled their schedules admirably. At East Liverpool High School, an "underground" magazine is in the process of being published. It is expected to be available in December. Everyone in the club — under the leadership of co-editors Candy Burcham and Odelia Douglas — is contributing to the multi-sectioned publication. Poems, stories and popularity polls will fill the pages with interesting results. Be sure and claim a copy as your very own — who knows, it might be valuable some day as a collectors piece! Don Thorne, adviser, deserves a standing ovation from all for managing to live through the harrowing experience; let's tell him that we appreciate his help, okay? . . . "ROMEO, ROMEO" — After receiving a large dose of inspiration from the plays last Saturday, undoubtedly everyone is determined to go to Hollywood and become a star. Well, if by chance you're a little interested in show biz, why not check out the Little Theater happening Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Potters Savings and Loan Co. annex downtown? Young and old alike gather to try to add culture to our nearly cultureless existence. The groundwork is under way now and soon the "show will get on the road." Look out Pittsburgh Playhouse, here we come! . . . ROTC RESCUE — Members are learning to plot maps to pinpoint various positions of the "enemy," providing they're tops in math! If you need help finding your girl, they could help you. Of course, she may not WANT to be found! . . .

RAMS BOOSTERS, RIGHT? WRITE! — South Side High School wanted to make sure everyone knew the 1967-'68 basketball schedule, so they had the senior class sell pens with the complete schedule on them! Some of the black and white pens, just to add variety, have pictures of a ram's head (the animals, not the players!) on them. Well, everyone knows the first game is Tuesday against Burgettstown, so let's attend in full force! . . . FLASHIN' FASHIONS — Black and white hounds-tooth patterned jumpers (how appropriate!) will be worn by the cheerleaders at the game. Black jerseys and knee socks will set off the girls' outfits . . . XMAS WRAPPING PAPER SALE — how are you coming along with the wrapping paper sale for Christmas packages? If you work really hard, you might be fortunate enough to claim as your own an AM-FM radio, a stuffed animal or other goodies!

HEY, BUSTER! — Buster (Eddie Mae) Murphy, has been chosen to lead the Wellsville High School senior class! Joe Farrell, vice president, Sharry Dinch, secretary, and Jesse Hawk, treasurer, make up a team that'll be hard to beat! . . . SWEATSHORTS — No, we aren't lisping, sweatshorts is a new style in the Wellsville Gym classes. Gwen Wright, designer, said that any sweatshirt will adapt itself — simply sew the neck opening closed and make darts at the waistline (what waistline, Gwen?) and you've got a pair of the neatest sweatshorts around! Just put your legs through the sleeves — and tie a rope around the waist? — and go get 'em, Tiger! . . . "I'M IN THE MOOD FOR" — Ping-pong? Basketball? How about a fast game of checkers? The only question is what to do FIRST at the Wellsville gym during recreation night. After 9 p.m., all the latest records are played, topping off a perfect evening of fun and games! The price is a dime and the "night" is held every Thursday, providing a variety of activities for idle students — and a relaxing way to figure out those pressing homework problems! (We know it's a sneaky idea to keep us off the streets at night, but let's cooperate — who knows, we may even like it!) . . . CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN — Cheerleaders have been selected, with the honors going to the girls with the most ability and the strongest set of lungs. In the Varsity lineup are Becky Davidson, Sonnie Richards, Sharry Dinch, Paula Todd and Penny Pringle. The reserves are Vickie Cataldo, Sandy and Randy Young, Portia Pulliam and Francie Hawk. Come on, be a sport; attend the first game (against Midland) and give our lovable loud-mouths some help, cheerfully!

MO-O-O-OVE OVER! — Couples who attended the Beaver Local High School Sadie Hawkins dance last Saturday had their photos taken while astride a charming cow. Maureen Bell was Daisy Mae and Fred Brown was Little Abner . . . OKAY, DONALD LANGSDALE — Just what is so special about question 33 on the last senior English test you gave? . . . SO WHO WANTS AN IRIDESCENT ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL? — Egad, our assistant principal, Mr. Frank Sturgeon, is simply "glowing" about his newly painted office. That brilliant turquoise, applied by competent hands of Key Clubbers, is enough to make you seasick — but a pleasant seasick. Mrs. Manning, Dean of Girls, plans to get a "suntan" from the glowing yellow the Key Club members painted on her office's wall . . . "JINGLE BELL ROCK" — The ELHS Band marched in the Kaufman's Thanksgiving Day parade Thursday in Pittsburgh. The agile band members also managed to dance to the old favorite, "Jingle Bell Rock" . . . TURN IN YOUR BACHELOR BUTTON — Richard Parsons, our second most "confirmed" bachelor is now married. The Home Economics class baked two cakes Wednesday to celebrate.

"THE TWELFTH NIGHT" Seniors at East Palestine High School attended a play Thursday by the drama class of Mt. Union College . . . STARRING REPRESENTATIVE — Jim Taucher, senior end, was selected by a unanimous vote by coaches of the Tri-County League for the first team. Joe Thompson and John Zalick were selected to the second Tri-County team, and both received honorable mention in the county selections . . . '68 MONITOR CAPTAINS — Ginny Wilhelm and John Zalick have been elected as captains for the 1967-'68 school monitors . . . . . CHEERLEADERS CHOSEN — Reserve cheerleaders were picked last Friday. They are Barb Keresty, Liz Johnston, Joan Wilhelm and Melody Keating. Melody is the only freshman; the others are sophomores. They were chosen from a group of 25 and will begin their "duties" Dec. 1 when the Bulldogs clash with Canfield . . . GRUMPY GROOM — David McKay, teacher of American government and assistant football coach, has every right to be a grumpy bridegroom at his wedding today. He was injured in an auto accident Nov. 15 and, though mobile, he's not going to be the most charming Prince Charming in his bandages and bruises! Cheer up,

DECISIONS, DECISIONS — It's not a question of reading a good book from the Southern Local High School library, it's just choosing between the 7,500 volumes! The library is exceptional in its quantity as well as quality, but just think of the space saved if the adage, "A picture's worth a thousand words," had been employed! . . . SOUTHERN SQUAWS — Fifty-one basketball cheerleaders have organized a group called the Cheering Squaws. They plan to wear a distinctive costume for the home games. Be Brave (s) and don't miss this . . . (natch!). Toronto, Beaver Local, Jefferson Union, Wellsville and Leetonia . . . SERIOUSLY SPEAKING — The Future Teachers took a trip to the Elkton School for Retarded Children Nov. 15. There they were divided into groups and observed the teaching procedures used in this area of special education. The apparent thirst for knowledge seemed to reaffirm the goal of teaching for the members of the club . . . PROGRESS — In an informal "census" we've discovered that more than one-fourth of last year's graduates are furthering their education at colleges and other schools.

SUPER SUPERINTENDENT Charles Henderson, Lincoln High School superintendent, led a rousing cheer during a pep assembly Wednesday in the auditorium. He said plans are being made for a combined junior-senior play.

If only half of the proposed activities become "happenings" it's going to be a great year! . . . CREPES SUZETTE ANYONE?—The French Club sponsored a bake sale today at the McGeehan Agencey . . . OUI!— For the initiation into the French Club, seven new members had to wear white socks (horrors!) and signs on their backs explaining their strange dress. Gary Spanik and Mike Roknich tried to play it cool and wore white socks, under black ones. John Bender, chemistry prof. is a firm believer in fair play (and white socks?) and made the guys shed the black socks in front of the class.

"THE BELLS ARE RINGING . . ."—Today is the wedding day for Miss Bernadette Pokropski, French teacher at Western Beaver High School, and Wayne Cymbor. She will continue teaching. Arnheiter Decision Stands

Navy Closes The Books On 'Caine-Type' Mutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of the Navy has closed the books on the case of Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter, who tried unsuccessfully to appeal his relief from command of a ship.

The Navy said Friday night Secretary Paul R. Ignatius, "after very personal consideration," has concluded "there is no valid reason for altering the decision that Lt. Cmdr. Arnheiter's further assignment to command would be inappropriate."

Ignatius refused Arnheiter's request to authorize a court of inquiry.

Arnheiter was relieved after three months in command of the radar picket ship USS Vance while patrolling South Vietnamese waters in 1966.

The Arnheiter case attracted wide attention in Navy circles, with some retired admirals reported on his side. And Capt. Richard G. Alexander, recently designated skipper of the Vietnam-bound battleship New Jersey, personally appealed to Ignatius on behalf of the 42-year-old Arnheiter.

Alexander, who has been in the Navy 24 years, told Ignatius in a written statement: "Mr. Secretary, what all of your officers will demand to know is just how in hell this could happen in the United States Navy."

Arnheiter was relieved after a Navy investigation concluded he showed "gross lack of judgment and inability to command and lead people."

Testimony in the probe alleged questionable conduct which was complained of by some officers serving under him.

Navy legal sources said uncontested findings showed that Arnheiter:

—Made false position reports in apparent zeal to operate the Vance in areas other than authorized;

—Required crewmen to attend lectures with religious overtones;

—Established a schedule of small fines—25 cents or so—for men not following etiquette or customs;

—Allowed liquor aboard ship, including eggnog at Christmas, in violation of regulations.

Arnheiter assumed command of the Vance in Pearl Harbor, three days before Christmas 1965, for what normally would have been a two-year tour. He was summarily relieved March 31, 1966, by an officer who came aboard for the investigation.

The Washington Post reported that officers aboard the Vance kept a log of Arnheiter's actions somewhat similar to the one compiled by the officers of the Caine in Herman Wouk's novel, "The Caine Mutiny."

Contents of the reported log on Arnheiter have not been disclosed.

Arnheiter told the Post he felt most of his troubles stemmed from the "guidance" sessions held on the ship's fantail.

"They'd last 25 minutes or so," he said "Someone would open with an invocation—the Prayers at Sea from the U.S. Naval Institute book, for example—and then I'd speak. The idea was to prepare the men to go into battle."

The sessions irked one Catholic officer who complained to a chaplain not on the ship that they were Protestant in nature and a breach of his constitutional righs. The complaint led to the investigation.

Action Taken To Nip New Malaysian Riots

PENANG, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian government extended its curfew for another 24 hours today in an effort to prevent a new eruption of the Chinese-Malay clashes that killed at least eight persons Friday.

The day-long racial rioting, which developed during demonstrations against a currency devaluation, also injured at least 119 persons.

Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak said 24 leaders of the Malaysian leftist opposition Labor party have been arrested on suspicion of being responsible for the violence. He said the government had closed eight Labor party branches and the division headquarters in Penang because they were directly involved in the disturbances.

general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived in Athens after Greeks and Turks agreed to accept his good offices as NATO members. "An armed conflict among allies would be disastrous and unthinkable to me," Brosio said.

—Cyrus Vance, President Johnson's special envoy, scheduled a meeting with Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil after returning to Ankara from Athens with what a Greek foreign ministry source described as "compromise proposals" for the withdrawal of troops and guaranteeing the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. The compromise arrangement could be worked out with the cooperation of "friendly nations", the source said.

—Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, headed for Athens and Ankara, after both Greece and Turkey agreed to accept his good offices as NATO allies.

—Jose Rolz-Bennett, a special U.N. representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Cyprus, about 40 miles off the Turkish coast and 500 miles from the Greek mainland, has been a center of stress for the two nations for centuries. The island's 600,000 inhabitants are predominantly Greek Orthodox, but Turkey claims the territory as historically its own.

The fear of open fighting, calmed somewhat since a crisis in 1964 and the establishment of a U.N. peace keeping force, rose quickly after a clash Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish-Cypriots were killed.

Turkey charged that Greece was augmenting the 12,000 troops it reportedly has on the island and threatened to land its own forces unless they were withdrawn.

The threat, backed up by Turkey's superior strategic position and greater military might, triggered troop movements in both countries and the possibility of imminent fighting.

Turkey has demanded, besides removal of any Greek troops in excess of treaty provisions, the return of arms seized from Turkish Cypriots after the Nov. 15 fighting and payment of compensation for those killed and for property damaged.

The tenuous situation caused the State Department to fly out 500 American women and children to Beirut Friday in chartered airliners. Most of the group were dependents of U.S. government employes and many lived in a coastal area where it was thought Turkey might land troops.

Some of the women wept at the airport as they arrived carrying what they could jam into a few suitcases. Most were put up at Beirut hotels.

At the same time, nearly 1,000 British women and children moved in a motor convoy loaded with clothing and bedding from Nicosia to the British base at Dhekelia, 35 miles away on Cyprus' south coast.

Calcutta Motorist Escapes Injury In Area Accident

A Calcutta man escaped injury when his car rammed a utility pole at 1:50 a.m. today on County Rd. 435 three-tenths a mile north of East Liverpool.

The Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Robert Madish, 48, of Shadybrook Trailer Park, Calcutta, was northbound in his 1953 coach when he failed to make a left curve.

The car ran off the right side and struck the power pole. The front of the car was demolished, officers said.

A car operated by Chester A. Rutecki, 58, of 125 Morton St., Lisbon, was severely damaged in a collision with a truck Friday at 1:15 p.m. on County Rd. 416 two and a half miles north of Route 164.

The truck driver was Richard L. Cope, 29, of Leetonia RD 1, who was cited for failure to yield the right of - way on the through highway.

Cope pulled into the path of the northbound Rutecki car, officers said. Rutecki and his wife, Mrs. Mary Rutecki, 51, complained of injuries and were to see their family physician.

New York-Moscow Flights Set Dec. 15

NEW YORK (AP) — Regular air service between New York and Moscow will begin on or about Dec. 15, says a Soviet airline spokesman.

The new Russian IL-62 jet, operated by Aeroflot, touched down Friday at Kennedy Airport after a flight from Washington.

Dmitri I. Petrov, head of a Soviet technical delegation, told newsmen that talks in Washington with Federal Aviation Agency officials were successful.

He added that some questions still had to be ironed out with the Port of New York Authority and Pan American World Airways, which will fly to the Soviet Union under an air agreement and also service the Russian plane here.

has been fixed for the invasion of Cyprus," Rossides declared.

The Cypriot envoy spoke after Thant had called on all three parties involved to show restraint because signs indicated that "Greece and Turkey are at the brink of war over Cyprus."

Turkey's Ambassador Orhan Eralp contended that Greece has been moving toward annexation of Cyprus and this was behind a recent attack on the Turkish Cypriot minority on the island.

Greek Ambassador Dimitri S. Bitsios accused the Turks of "provocative incidents" and violation of Greek air space. He warned the council that "we are confronted by the threat of the use of force."

Thant's message to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey urged them to reduce and eventually eliminate all non-U.N. and non- Cypriot forces.

Such a move would involve a basic change in the present treaties involving the island. The pacts permit contingents of Greek, Turkish and British troops on Cyprus.

Besides these, the United Nations maintains a peacekeeping force on the island and Greek and Turkish Cypriots have their own units.

Rossides filed his request for a council meeting, informants said, after learning that Thants' personal representative in the area, Undersecretary Jose Rolz-Bennett, had sent word that war was imminent.

Rossides told newsmen earlier that he would have asked for an emergency session Wednesday night but held back after he learned that Thant had sent Rolz-Bennett to try to reduce tensions.

Rossides said that Cypriot authorities would welcome Rolz-Bennett, but made plain that he felt that the U.N. official's efforts would be hamstrung by what he called "continuous threats of invasion and force by Turkey."

From London Dealers

Buying Orders Reported At Stage Of 'Near Panic'

LONDON (AP) — London gold dealers report buying orders are arriving in "near panic" proportions from all over the world in the challenge to the U.S. dollar touched off by Britain's devaluation of the pound. But Washington says the dollar is safe.

British financial writers cast French President Charles de Gaulle as the villain whipping on speculators in hopes of ruining the dollar and making gold the No. 1 international currency.

Neither the U.S. Treasury nor financial experts elsewhere joined in the finger pointing, however. In Paris Albin Chalandon, an influential Gaullist deputy in the National Assembly, said the gold run was "not the fault of the French government" but could be traced simply to private buyers who mistrust tht present world financial setup.

Chalandon said, "The French government in no way wishes the fall of the dollar and never wanted the fall of the pound.

"It simply notes that the international monetary system comprises grave risks because of the American balance of payments deficit. France wants as a consequence that diverse countries take measures in time to avoid an international monetary crisis in which all countries, including France, would be the victims," he added.

France did help to spur the bullion flurry, however, by announcing it again would demand U.S. gold for its dollar earnings.

In Washington, officials generally agreed that the U.S. gold supply could outlast the speculative fever.

Reports channelled from Europe to Franz Pick, a New York expert on world finance, indicated that 370 tons of gold were sold on European markets from Wednesday through Friday's market close. Pick said $415 million was involved in that trading and estimated the U.S. gold loss at $600 million since the pound's devaluation one week ago. Other sources said this figure was too high.

Normal turnover on the London Exchange, which handles the bulk of European gold business, is about 6 tons a day, although the exact figures are kept secret. More than 100 tons of the metal were sold Friday and record sales also were chalked up in Paris and Zurich.

Scenes of "near pandemonium" were reported in bidding on gold mine issues on the Johannesburg stock exchange. Brokers said Friday was the most hectic day of trading anyone could remember. Gold share prices soared in the morning but declined somewhat in the afternoon.

Gold opened on Hong Kong's free market today with dealers a bit more bullish than usual but only a mild flurry of activity. There was a lack of pressure for gold from Chinese buyers, indicating faith in the Hong Kong dollar is still strong.

In New York the news of the world gold run weakened stocks on the New York Stock Exchange in early trading but later prices rallied and actually managed a gain over Thursday.

Fritz Berg, president of the Federation of German Industry, dismissed as "quite improbable" any speculation that the dollar might be weakened in the wake of the pound devaluation. Berg, in Tokyo on a trade mission, said the dollar will keep its present value despite efforts by some European quarters to undermine it. He did not identify the countries.

But he said he disagreed with the so-called French theory that dollars are not as good as gold and that the world's money structure must be overhauled. He said devaluation of the dollar would make international trade virtually impossible.

Arnheiter Decision Stands

Navy Closes The Books On 'Caine-Type' Mutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of the Navy has closed the books on the case of Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter, who tried unsuccessfully to appeal his relief from command of a ship.

The Navy said Friday night Secretary Paul R. Ignatius, "after very personal consideration," has concluded "there is no valid reason for altering the decision that Lt. Cmdr. Arnheiter's further assignment to command would be inappropriate."

Ignatius refused Arnheiter's request to authorize a court of inquiry.

Arnheiter was relieved after three months in command of the radar picket ship USS Vance while patrolling South Vietnamese waters in 1966.

The Arnheiter case attracted wide attention in Navy circles, with some retired admirals reported on his side. And Capt. Richard G. Alexander, recently designated skipper of the Vietnam-bound battleship New Jersey, personally appealed to Ignatius on behalf of the 42-year-old Arnheiter.

Alexander, who has been in the Navy 24 years, told Ignatius in a written statement: "Mr. Secretary, what all of your officers will demand to know is just how in hell this could happen in the United States Navy."

Arnheiter was relieved after a Navy investigation concluded he showed "gross lack of judgment and inability to command and lead people."

Testimony in the probe alleged questionable conduct which was complained of by some officers serving under him.

Navy legal sources said uncontested findings showed that Arnheiter:

—Made false position reports in apparent zeal to operate the Vance in areas other than authorized;

—Required crewmen to attend lectures with religious overtones;

—Established a schedule of small fines—25 cents or so—for men not following etiquette or customs;

—Allowed liquor aboard ship, including eggnog at Christmas, in violation of regulations.

Arnheiter assumed command of the Vance in Pearl Harbor, three days before Christmas 1965, for what normally would have been a two-year tour. He was summarily relieved March 31, 1966, by an officer who came aboard for the investigation.

The Washington Post reported that officers aboard the Vance kept a log of Arnheiter's actions somewhat similar to the one compiled by the officers of the Caine in Herman Wouk's novel, "The Caine Mutiny."

Contents of the reported log on Arnheiter have not been disclosed.

Arnheiter told the Post he felt most of his troubles stemmed from the "guidance" sessions held on the ship's fantail.

"They'd last 25 minutes or so," he said "Someone would open with an invocation—the Prayers at Sea from the U.S. Naval Institute book, for example—and then I'd speak. The idea was to prepare the men to go into battle."

The sessions irked one Catholic officer who complained to a chaplain not on the ship that they were Protestant in nature and a breach of his constitutional righs. The complaint led to the investigation.

Action Taken To Nip New Malaysian Riots

PENANG, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian government extended its curfew for another 24 hours today in an effort to prevent a new eruption of the Chinese-Malay clashes that killed at least eight persons Friday.

The day-long racial rioting, which developed during demonstrations against a currency devaluation, also injured at least 119 persons.

Deputy Premier Tun Abdul Razak said 24 leaders of the Malaysian leftist opposition Labor party have been arrested on suspicion of being responsible for the violence. He said the government had closed eight Labor party branches and the division headquarters in Penang because they were directly involved in the disturbances.

general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived in Athens after Greeks and Turks agreed to accept his good offices as NATO members. "An armed conflict among allies would be disastrous and unthinkable to me," Brosio said.

—Cyrus Vance, President Johnson's special envoy, scheduled a meeting with Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil after returning to Ankara from Athens with what a Greek foreign ministry source described as "compromise proposals" for the withdrawal of troops and guaranteeing the safety of the Turkish Cypriot minority. The compromise arrangement could be worked out with the cooperation of "friendly nations", the source said.

—Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, headed for Athens and Ankara, after both Greece and Turkey agreed to accept his good offices as NATO allies.

—Jose Rolz-Bennett, a special U.N. representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Cyprus, about 40 miles off the Turkish coast and 500 miles from the Greek mainland, has been a center of stress for the two nations for centuries. The island's 600,000 inhabitants are predominantly Greek Orthodox, but Turkey claims the territory as historically its own.

The fear of open fighting, calmed somewhat since a crisis in 1964 and the establishment of a U.N. peace keeping force, rose quickly after a clash Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish-Cypriots were killed.

Turkey charged that Greece was augmenting the 12,000 troops it reportedly has on the island and threatened to land its own forces unless they were withdrawn.

The threat, backed up by Turkey's superior strategic position and greater military might, triggered troop movements in both countries and the possibility of imminent fighting.

Turkey has demanded, besides removal of any Greek troops in excess of treaty provisions, the return of arms seized from Turkish Cypriots after the Nov. 15 fighting and payment of compensation for those killed and for property damaged.

The tenuous situation caused the State Department to fly out 500 American women and children to Beirut Friday in chartered airliners. Most of the group were dependents of U.S. government employes and many lived in a coastal area where it was thought Turkey might land troops.

Some of the women wept at the airport as they arrived carrying what they could jam into a few suitcases. Most were put up at Beirut hotels.

At the same time, nearly 1,000 British women and children moved in a motor convoy loaded with clothing and bedding from Nicosia to the British base at Dhekelia, 35 miles away on Cyprus' south coast.

Calcutta Motorist Escapes Injury In Area Accident

A Calcutta man escaped injury when his car rammed a utility pole at 1:50 a.m. today on County Rd. 435 three-tenths a mile north of East Liverpool.

The Highway Patrol at Lisbon said Robert Madish, 48, of Shadybrook Trailer Park, Calcutta, was northbound in his 1953 coach when he failed to make a left curve.

The car ran off the right side and struck the power pole. The front of the car was demolished, officers said.

A car operated by Chester A. Rutecki, 58, of 125 Morton St., Lisbon, was severely damaged in a collision with a truck Friday at 1:15 p.m. on County Rd. 416 two and a half miles north of Route 164.

The truck driver was Richard L. Cope, 29, of Leetonia RD 1, who was cited for failure to yield the right of - way on the through highway.

Cope pulled into the path of the northbound Rutecki car, officers said. Rutecki and his wife, Mrs. Mary Rutecki, 51, complained of injuries and were to see their family physician.

New York-Moscow Flights Set Dec. 15

NEW YORK (AP) — Regular air service between New York and Moscow will begin on or about Dec. 15, says a Soviet airline spokesman.

The new Russian IL-62 jet, operated by Aeroflot, touched down Friday at Kennedy Airport after a flight from Washington.

Dmitri I. Petrov, head of a Soviet technical delegation, told newsmen that talks in Washington with Federal Aviation Agency officials were successful.

He added that some questions still had to be ironed out with the Port of New York Authority and Pan American World Airways, which will fly to the Soviet Union under an air agreement and also service the Russian plane here.

has been fixed for the invasion of Cyprus," Rossides declared.

The Cypriot envoy spoke after Thant had called on all three parties involved to show restraint because signs indicated that "Greece and Turkey are at the brink of war over Cyprus."

Turkey's Ambassador Orhan Eralp contended that Greece has been moving toward annexation of Cyprus and this was behind a recent attack on the Turkish Cypriot minority on the island.

Greek Ambassador Dimitri S. Bitsios accused the Turks of "provocative incidents" and violation of Greek air space. He warned the council that "we are confronted by the threat of the use of force."

Thant's message to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey urged them to reduce and eventually eliminate all non-U.N. and non- Cypriot forces.

Such a move would involve a basic change in the present treaties involving the island. The pacts permit contingents of Greek, Turkish and British troops on Cyprus.

Besides these, the United Nations maintains a peacekeeping force on the island and Greek and Turkish Cypriots have their own units.

Rossides filed his request for a council meeting, informants said, after learning that Thants' personal representative in the area, Undersecretary Jose Rolz-Bennett, had sent word that war was imminent.

Rossides told newsmen earlier that he would have asked for an emergency session Wednesday night but held back after he learned that Thant had sent Rolz-Bennett to try to reduce tensions.

Rossides said that Cypriot authorities would welcome Rolz-Bennett, but made plain that he felt that the U.N. official's efforts would be hamstrung by what he called "continuous threats of invasion and force by Turkey."

From London Dealers

Buying Orders Reported At Stage Of 'Near Panic'

LONDON (AP) — London gold dealers report buying orders are arriving in "near panic" proportions from all over the world in the challenge to the U.S. dollar touched off by Britain's devaluation of the pound. But Washington says the dollar is safe.

British financial writers cast French President Charles de Gaulle as the villain whipping on speculators in hopes of ruining the dollar and making gold the No. 1 international currency.

Neither the U.S. Treasury nor financial experts elsewhere joined in the finger pointing, however. In Paris Albin Chalandon, an influential Gaullist deputy in the National Assembly, said the gold run was "not the fault of the French government" but could be traced simply to private buyers who mistrust tht present world financial setup.

Chalandon said, "The French government in no way wishes the fall of the dollar and never wanted the fall of the pound.

"It simply notes that the international monetary system comprises grave risks because of the American balance of payments deficit. France wants as a consequence that diverse countries take measures in time to avoid an international monetary crisis in which all countries, including France, would be the victims," he added.

France did help to spur the bullion flurry, however, by announcing it again would demand U.S. gold for its dollar earnings.

In Washington, officials generally agreed that the U.S. gold supply could outlast the speculative fever.

Reports channelled from Europe to Franz Pick, a New York expert on world finance, indicated that 370 tons of gold were sold on European markets from Wednesday through Friday's market close. Pick said $415 million was involved in that trading and estimated the U.S. gold loss at $600 million since the pound's devaluation one week ago. Other sources said this figure was too high.

Normal turnover on the London Exchange, which handles the bulk of European gold business, is about 6 tons a day, although the exact figures are kept secret. More than 100 tons of the metal were sold Friday and record sales also were chalked up in Paris and Zurich.

Scenes of "near pandemonium" were reported in bidding on gold mine issues on the Johannesburg stock exchange. Brokers said Friday was the most hectic day of trading anyone could remember. Gold share prices soared in the morning but declined somewhat in the afternoon.

Gold opened on Hong Kong's free market today with dealers a bit more bullish than usual but only a mild flurry of activity. There was a lack of pressure for gold from Chinese buyers, indicating faith in the Hong Kong dollar is still strong.

In New York the news of the world gold run weakened stocks on the New York Stock Exchange in early trading but later prices rallied and actually managed a gain over Thursday.

Fritz Berg, president of the Federation of German Industry, dismissed as "quite improbable" any speculation that the dollar might be weakened in the wake of the pound devaluation. Berg, in Tokyo on a trade mission, said the dollar will keep its present value despite efforts by some European quarters to undermine it. He did not identify the countries.

But he said he disagreed with the so-called French theory that dollars are not as good as gold and that the world's money structure must be overhauled. He said devaluation of the dollar would make international trade virtually impossible.

Casket Holds Wrong Victim

Another Mixup In Bodies Occurs In Viet Fighting

By The Associated Press

Even as a Tennessee soldier was reunited with his mother who had thought him killed in action in Vietnam, a California couple reported another Army mixup in bodies returned from Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of Chico, Calif., said they were told their son was killed in action and prepared for his funeral. Then they were told Thursday he had been relisted as missing in action.

A casket which the couple believed carried the body of their son, Spec. 5 John R. Adams, 21, arrived at the Oakland Army Terminal earlier this week. But the Army told Adams it was another soldier.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that young Adams, crew chief on a helicopter which was shot down by the enemy, was reported missing Nov. 9.

Subsequently, the Pentagon said, the remains of another soldier named Adams were mistakenly identified as those of John R. Adams and the Chico couple were told on Nov. 17 that their son had been killed.

An Army officer visited them to make arrangements to bring the body back to Chico and the parents planned the funeral for next week.

When the body was positively identified and proved not to be John R. Adams, his name was removed from the killed in action list and was relisted as missing in action, the Pentagon said.

The other soldier's family then was notified of his death.

"We're not even sure now it was our son that was shot down," Adams said in Chico. "It's like we've been through this twice ... We don't know whether to get our hopes up or not."

Pfc. John W. Guinn, 23, whose family had thought him dead and buried, was reunited Friday with his mother, Blanche Guinn, at the Tri-City Ariport near his hometown of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"God bless you! God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she said, over and over, as her son embraced her, then Mrs. Guinn fainted. Six younger brothers and sisters watched the reunion.

Mrs. Guinn's heartbreak—borne for two weeks—has become that of Mrs. Samuel H. Tichenor of Louisville, Ky. It was her son, Pfc. Quinn W. Tichenor, 23, also serving in Vietnam, who was buried in Guinn's grave in the East Tennessee hills Tuesday along with a wristwatch intended for Guinn's Christmas.

Nagging doubts as to Guinn's death caused an uncle to seek a doublecheck. Then the Army Wednesday confirmed through fingerprints that Guinn, indeed, was alive and Tichenor had been buried in his place.

Rarick Plans To Run Again Against Abel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Donald C. Rarick, an unknown steelworker who startled labor with a strong showing in the first contested presidential election in United Steelworkers' history, says he'll try again.

Rarick, who spearheaded a rank-and-file rebellion against a $2 dues hike 10 years ago, said Friday he'll run against USW President I. W. Abel.

He accused Abel of selling the million-member union "down the river."

Although the election isn't until February, 1969, Rarick's announcement comes when Abel reportedly is weathering his first major union upheaval since taking office in 1965.

The controversy stems from a no-strike plan for next year's basic steel contract negotiations, favored by steel and under discussion by the union. Abel is pictured as chief architect of the proposal which would be a precedent-setting step if adopted.

It calls for submitting unresolved contract issues to binding arbitration. Thus, removing strike threats that bring on industry - jarring steel inventory buildups and an increase of foreign steel into the country.

But it would take away the union's right to strike, which Rarick calls "the only weapon we have."

"Abel has sold the rank and file down the river," said Rarick, "and the crowning blow is to give away the union through binding arbitration."

Anti-Trust Suit Entered By U.S. In Funeral Costs

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Justice Department has charged the National Funeral Directors Association and its affiliated local organizations with conspiring to eliminate competition by not advertising the costs of funerals.

The charges were in an anti-trust suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Milwaukee.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark asked the court to order the alleged conspirators to eliminate all provisions which limit or restrict advertising of funeral costs.

"The freedom of the directors to advertise their own individual prices has been restrained," Clark said.

Howard Raether, executive secretary of the national group, which has headquarters in Milwaukee, said the government's action would be discussed by the association's executive committee.

A similar suit, brought three years ago, is pending before a state court. That suit contends that the 14,000-member national group and the Wisconsin Funeral Directors Association conspired to suppress competition in funeral services and supplies.

William G. Hardy Jr. of Louisville, Ky., president of the national group, said he felt the government was being "manifestly unfair" in filing an anti-trust suit in federal court while the Wisconsin court case "presumably involving the same issues" is undecided.

Storm Period Was Light As Seasons Go

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Although the second most severe storm in history smashed into Texas this year, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reports that the 1967 storm season was light as storm seasons go.

Despite the havoc when killer Hurricane Beulah smashed the Texas gulf coast and spawned 47 tornadoes, the 1967 damage figures were $100 million below the United States' average annual damage reports.

The death toll for 1967—49 dead, including 15 in the United States—was far less severe than the 1966 season when 76 persons were killed or the disastrous 1965 season when 1,094 were killed.

The damage toll for 1967, originally set at $1 billion, was reduced to $207,650,000 by the report released Friday. In 1966, destruction was up to $1.5 billion and the year before that at $432,650,000.

Only two hurricanes reached the mainland. The hurricane center said one, Hurricane Doria, was more beneficial than destructive, although she was blamed for three deaths off Ocean City, N.J.

"Damages for Doria can be considered minor," said Arnold Sugg, acting chief of the center. "A damage of $150,000 is attributed to the storm but this amount should not be part of the damage accounting since beneficial rains and sand deposits on the beaches more than made up for the losses."

Hope For Accord, Davis Says After Trial Separation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Negro entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. says he has agreed to a trial separation in his seven-year interracial marriage to Swedish actress Mai Britt.

"I must admit it comes as a blow to me," Davis said at Las Vegas, Nev., after a spokesman announced the couple's decision Friday in Hollywood. "Mai told me she wanted a trial separation."

The couple, both converts to Judaism, have three children—a daughter, Tracey Hillevi, 6, and two adopted sons, Mark, 7, and Jeff, 3.

Two days before the announcement, the trial separation of singer Frank Sinatra and Mia Farrow was announced. Sinatra was best man when Davis and Miss Britt were married in Los Angeles on Nov. 13, 1960.

An usher at the wedding, actor Peter Lawford, since has been divorced from his wife, Pat.

"Certainly my not being home and traveling around so much has a great deal to do with Mai's decision," Davis said. "Our problems are a combination of a lot of things. But we hope to work it out somehow."

Davis is 40 and Miss Britt is 30.

Soviet Says U.S. Sailors 'Won't Talk'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign ministry told the U.S. embassy today that the four American sailors who left their ship in Japan and came here to protest the Vietnam war do not want to meet an embassy representative.

On instructions from Washington, the embassy asked the foreign ministry Wednesday to arrange a meeting with the four. But today's reply left the embassy no further line of action to reach the defectors.

The young sailors also do not want to meet Western newsmen, Soviet spokesmen said.

They are Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; John Michael Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Craig W. Anderson, 20, of San Jose, Calif., and Michael A. Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.

They last appeared in Moscow on Wednesday and it was not known whether they were still here. The four said they came here on their way to a neutral country where they could work against the U.S. war effort in Vietnam.

Revival Services To Begin Monday

The Rev. Lawrence Walker, evangelist of Warren, will conduct revival services Monday through Dec. 3 at the Gardendale Church of the Nazarene.

They will be held each weekday evening at 7:30 and at 10:45 a. m. on Sunday.

The Rev. Gordon D. Hall, pastor of the church, said the services are open to the public. The church is located at Woodbine and Gaddes Sts.

Activities Of Mission Are Reviewed For Club

The past year's activities of the East Liverpool Rescue Mission were reviewed when the Lions Club met Friday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

William Rea, a member of the mission board of trustees, told the group costs, which might otherwise be tremendous, have been kept low by the many donations of food and other items.

Rea pointed out that during the mission's fall festival 7,500 cans of food were donated. The mission also received 20 bushels of potatoes, 200 pounds of flour and 500 pounds of sugar.

It always is in need of detergents and soap, he emphasized.

Rea said the mission presently is asking residents to take donations to their churches where they will be picked up after Nov. 30 by workers. Or, he added, "they may call at the mission and the donations will be picked up by Carl Mansfield," superintendent, in the mission's new truck.

Rea told the club 3,678 were provided beds from September 1966 through September 1967. In that time period, 12,053 meals were provided, 866 attended the children's Bible school, 3,825 attended the chapel services, 100 families were aided and 125 homes were visited.

Rea said he and Mansfield are constantly fulfilling speaking engagements. "I made 50 speeches myself last year," he explained.

President Charles Haugh reminded there will be no meeting at noon next Friday. Instead, the group will hold a "Ladies' Night" at the Holiday Inn on Route 66 in Hancock County beginning at 7.

Pentagon Denies Network Charge Of Gag On News

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department denies a charge by an official of the Armed Forces Network in Europe that it imposed news control on the network.

William Slatter, managing editor of AFN, told a press luncheon in Frankfurt, Germany, on Oct. 26 that his editors were hampered in reporting some news concerning U.S. troops in Europe because they had to first get clearance from military authorities.

The Pentagon's denial dealt with four cases it said were cited by Slatter. These were an alleged scandal in the European Exchange Service, the stabbing of a lieutenant, a reported reduction of U.S. troop strength in Europe and restrictions on local opinion interviews conducted by AFN.

Truck Joins Parade, Then Heads For Fire

The East Liverpool fire department's new emergncy truck was used for the first time Friday night shortly after it appeared in the annual Christmas parade.

The auto, owned by Russell Ryman of 740 Cartwright Ave., caught fire when the motor backfired through the carburetor. Wiring and hose around the motor were damaged, firemen said.

U.S. Would Curb Loss Of Pension In Job Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you decide to change jobs after several years, a major factor in your decision probably will be the pension you lose.

But Thomas R. Donahue, assistant secretary of labor, says the government is looking over proposals to assure workers against losing earned pension credits when they leave for another job.

Donahue said Friday that one proposal is that workers who leave their jobs after 10 years of continuous service performed after the age of 25 would be entitled to a permanent pension benefit. This would be based on the amount of service performed.

Then, upon retirement, the worker would get at least a partial pension, even though he left the company long before reaching retirement age.

Casket Holds Wrong Victim

Another Mixup In Bodies Occurs In Viet Fighting

By The Associated Press

Even as a Tennessee soldier was reunited with his mother who had thought him killed in action in Vietnam, a California couple reported another Army mixup in bodies returned from Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of Chico, Calif., said they were told their son was killed in action and prepared for his funeral. Then they were told Thursday he had been relisted as missing in action.

A casket which the couple believed carried the body of their son, Spec. 5 John R. Adams, 21, arrived at the Oakland Army Terminal earlier this week. But the Army told Adams it was another soldier.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that young Adams, crew chief on a helicopter which was shot down by the enemy, was reported missing Nov. 9.

Subsequently, the Pentagon said, the remains of another soldier named Adams were mistakenly identified as those of John R. Adams and the Chico couple were told on Nov. 17 that their son had been killed.

An Army officer visited them to make arrangements to bring the body back to Chico and the parents planned the funeral for next week.

When the body was positively identified and proved not to be John R. Adams, his name was removed from the killed in action list and was relisted as missing in action, the Pentagon said.

The other soldier's family then was notified of his death.

"We're not even sure now it was our son that was shot down," Adams said in Chico. "It's like we've been through this twice ... We don't know whether to get our hopes up or not."

Pfc. John W. Guinn, 23, whose family had thought him dead and buried, was reunited Friday with his mother, Blanche Guinn, at the Tri-City Ariport near his hometown of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"God bless you! God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she said, over and over, as her son embraced her, then Mrs. Guinn fainted. Six younger brothers and sisters watched the reunion.

Mrs. Guinn's heartbreak—borne for two weeks—has become that of Mrs. Samuel H. Tichenor of Louisville, Ky. It was her son, Pfc. Quinn W. Tichenor, 23, also serving in Vietnam, who was buried in Guinn's grave in the East Tennessee hills Tuesday along with a wristwatch intended for Guinn's Christmas.

Nagging doubts as to Guinn's death caused an uncle to seek a doublecheck. Then the Army Wednesday confirmed through fingerprints that Guinn, indeed, was alive and Tichenor had been buried in his place.

Rarick Plans To Run Again Against Abel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Donald C. Rarick, an unknown steelworker who startled labor with a strong showing in the first contested presidential election in United Steelworkers' history, says he'll try again.

Rarick, who spearheaded a rank-and-file rebellion against a $2 dues hike 10 years ago, said Friday he'll run against USW President I. W. Abel.

He accused Abel of selling the million-member union "down the river."

Although the election isn't until February, 1969, Rarick's announcement comes when Abel reportedly is weathering his first major union upheaval since taking office in 1965.

The controversy stems from a no-strike plan for next year's basic steel contract negotiations, favored by steel and under discussion by the union. Abel is pictured as chief architect of the proposal which would be a precedent-setting step if adopted.

It calls for submitting unresolved contract issues to binding arbitration. Thus, removing strike threats that bring on industry - jarring steel inventory buildups and an increase of foreign steel into the country.

But it would take away the union's right to strike, which Rarick calls "the only weapon we have."

"Abel has sold the rank and file down the river," said Rarick, "and the crowning blow is to give away the union through binding arbitration."

Anti-Trust Suit Entered By U.S. In Funeral Costs

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Justice Department has charged the National Funeral Directors Association and its affiliated local organizations with conspiring to eliminate competition by not advertising the costs of funerals.

The charges were in an anti-trust suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Milwaukee.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark asked the court to order the alleged conspirators to eliminate all provisions which limit or restrict advertising of funeral costs.

"The freedom of the directors to advertise their own individual prices has been restrained," Clark said.

Howard Raether, executive secretary of the national group, which has headquarters in Milwaukee, said the government's action would be discussed by the association's executive committee.

A similar suit, brought three years ago, is pending before a state court. That suit contends that the 14,000-member national group and the Wisconsin Funeral Directors Association conspired to suppress competition in funeral services and supplies.

William G. Hardy Jr. of Louisville, Ky., president of the national group, said he felt the government was being "manifestly unfair" in filing an anti-trust suit in federal court while the Wisconsin court case "presumably involving the same issues" is undecided.

Storm Period Was Light As Seasons Go

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Although the second most severe storm in history smashed into Texas this year, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reports that the 1967 storm season was light as storm seasons go.

Despite the havoc when killer Hurricane Beulah smashed the Texas gulf coast and spawned 47 tornadoes, the 1967 damage figures were $100 million below the United States' average annual damage reports.

The death toll for 1967—49 dead, including 15 in the United States—was far less severe than the 1966 season when 76 persons were killed or the disastrous 1965 season when 1,094 were killed.

The damage toll for 1967, originally set at $1 billion, was reduced to $207,650,000 by the report released Friday. In 1966, destruction was up to $1.5 billion and the year before that at $432,650,000.

Only two hurricanes reached the mainland. The hurricane center said one, Hurricane Doria, was more beneficial than destructive, although she was blamed for three deaths off Ocean City, N.J.

"Damages for Doria can be considered minor," said Arnold Sugg, acting chief of the center. "A damage of $150,000 is attributed to the storm but this amount should not be part of the damage accounting since beneficial rains and sand deposits on the beaches more than made up for the losses."

Hope For Accord, Davis Says After Trial Separation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Negro entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. says he has agreed to a trial separation in his seven-year interracial marriage to Swedish actress Mai Britt.

"I must admit it comes as a blow to me," Davis said at Las Vegas, Nev., after a spokesman announced the couple's decision Friday in Hollywood. "Mai told me she wanted a trial separation."

The couple, both converts to Judaism, have three children—a daughter, Tracey Hillevi, 6, and two adopted sons, Mark, 7, and Jeff, 3.

Two days before the announcement, the trial separation of singer Frank Sinatra and Mia Farrow was announced. Sinatra was best man when Davis and Miss Britt were married in Los Angeles on Nov. 13, 1960.

An usher at the wedding, actor Peter Lawford, since has been divorced from his wife, Pat.

"Certainly my not being home and traveling around so much has a great deal to do with Mai's decision," Davis said. "Our problems are a combination of a lot of things. But we hope to work it out somehow."

Davis is 40 and Miss Britt is 30.

Soviet Says U.S. Sailors 'Won't Talk'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign ministry told the U.S. embassy today that the four American sailors who left their ship in Japan and came here to protest the Vietnam war do not want to meet an embassy representative.

On instructions from Washington, the embassy asked the foreign ministry Wednesday to arrange a meeting with the four. But today's reply left the embassy no further line of action to reach the defectors.

The young sailors also do not want to meet Western newsmen, Soviet spokesmen said.

They are Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; John Michael Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Craig W. Anderson, 20, of San Jose, Calif., and Michael A. Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.

They last appeared in Moscow on Wednesday and it was not known whether they were still here. The four said they came here on their way to a neutral country where they could work against the U.S. war effort in Vietnam.

Revival Services To Begin Monday

The Rev. Lawrence Walker, evangelist of Warren, will conduct revival services Monday through Dec. 3 at the Gardendale Church of the Nazarene.

They will be held each weekday evening at 7:30 and at 10:45 a. m. on Sunday.

The Rev. Gordon D. Hall, pastor of the church, said the services are open to the public. The church is located at Woodbine and Gaddes Sts.

Activities Of Mission Are Reviewed For Club

The past year's activities of the East Liverpool Rescue Mission were reviewed when the Lions Club met Friday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

William Rea, a member of the mission board of trustees, told the group costs, which might otherwise be tremendous, have been kept low by the many donations of food and other items.

Rea pointed out that during the mission's fall festival 7,500 cans of food were donated. The mission also received 20 bushels of potatoes, 200 pounds of flour and 500 pounds of sugar.

It always is in need of detergents and soap, he emphasized.

Rea said the mission presently is asking residents to take donations to their churches where they will be picked up after Nov. 30 by workers. Or, he added, "they may call at the mission and the donations will be picked up by Carl Mansfield," superintendent, in the mission's new truck.

Rea told the club 3,678 were provided beds from September 1966 through September 1967. In that time period, 12,053 meals were provided, 866 attended the children's Bible school, 3,825 attended the chapel services, 100 families were aided and 125 homes were visited.

Rea said he and Mansfield are constantly fulfilling speaking engagements. "I made 50 speeches myself last year," he explained.

President Charles Haugh reminded there will be no meeting at noon next Friday. Instead, the group will hold a "Ladies' Night" at the Holiday Inn on Route 66 in Hancock County beginning at 7.

Pentagon Denies Network Charge Of Gag On News

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department denies a charge by an official of the Armed Forces Network in Europe that it imposed news control on the network.

William Slatter, managing editor of AFN, told a press luncheon in Frankfurt, Germany, on Oct. 26 that his editors were hampered in reporting some news concerning U.S. troops in Europe because they had to first get clearance from military authorities.

The Pentagon's denial dealt with four cases it said were cited by Slatter. These were an alleged scandal in the European Exchange Service, the stabbing of a lieutenant, a reported reduction of U.S. troop strength in Europe and restrictions on local opinion interviews conducted by AFN.

U.S. Would Curb Loss Of Pension In Job Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you decide to change jobs after several years, a major factor in your decision probably will be the pension you lose.

But Thomas R. Donahue, assistant secretary of labor, says the government is looking over proposals to assure workers against losing earned pension credits when they leave for another job.

Donahue said Friday that one proposal is that workers who leave their jobs after 10 years of continuous service performed after the age of 25 would be entitled to a permanent pension benefit. This would be based on the amount of service performed.

Then, upon retirement, the worker would get at least a partial pension, even though he left the company long before reaching retirement age.

Gophers Smell Roses But Need Help From Purdue Today

Minnesota Coach Fears Winless Foe

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the day the remaining half of the Rose Bowl football puzzle is solved, and coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota hopes that winless Wisconsin doesn't put it all together.

"We know they've got some fine personnel, and it's just a matter of putting it together," said Warmath, referring to the Badgers, who've lost eight games and tied one.

"I'd rather they had won a few games because they're certainly not as bad a football team as their record, and they would have won some with a few breaks."

While the Gophers go for broke against Wisconsin today, they'll need help from Purdue's Boilermakers in order to represent the Big Ten in the Pasadena New Year's Day classic. Top-ranked Southern California, which has completed its schedule, will represent the West Coast.

Purdue, you see, leads the conference with a 6-0 record followed by Minnesota and Indiana at 5-1. For everything to come up Roses for the Gophers, they'll have to beat Wisconsin while Purdue defeats Indiana.

A victory for the Hoosiers would automatically put them in the Bowl because they never have visited Pasadena. The Gophers have, and the third-ranked Boilermakers aren't eligible this time because they made the trip a year ago.

In Friday night's big college game, Notre Dame's Fighting Irish visited Miami, Fla., and eked out a 24-22 victory over the Hurricanes, who'd already accepted a bid to play Colorado in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 23.

A crowd of 77,265, largest ever to see a game in the Orange Bowl, saw the Irish move ahead 24-16 in the final period on Terry Hanratty's passes and the rushing of Jeff Zimmerman and Bob Gladieux. Gladieux raced 10 yards for the clincher as Notre Dame snapped the Hurricanes' six-game winning streak.

The outcome of a bruising battle was in doubt until, with three minutes left, Miami went for two points after its last touchdown and failed on a pass by Bill Miller intended for Jerry Daanen.

Tennessee, UCLA, Houston, Florida and Florida State were among the other teams involved in important games on the final big weekend of the regular season today.

The Volunteers, ranked second behind Southern Cal in the latest Associated Press poll, hoped to improve their standing by beating Kentucky. The final poll determining the national champion will be announced next Tuesday. Tennessee already has accepted an invitation to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Gary Beban, UCLA's brilliant quarterback and a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy, closed out his career against Syracuse and its hard-running fullback, Larry Csonka. The Bruins are No. 4 in the poll.

Tenth-rated Houston was the only other member of the Top Ten in action. The Cougars took on Tulsa.

The winner of the Florida-Florida State game at Gainesville is slated to oppose Penn State in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.

The other major Bowl games line up this way: Cotton—Texas A&M vs. Alabama; Sugar—Wyoming vs. Louisiana State; Liberty—Georgia against an unnamed opponent.

Regional doubleheaders were scheduled for television screening (ABC). Michigan-Ohio State starting at 1:15 P.M., EST, followed by Georgia-Georgia Tech at 4:30 P.M., EST, was slated for the eastern half of the country. The Western half had as its fare Texas Tech and Arkansas at 1:15 p.m., EST, and Washington-Washington State at 4:30 p.m. EST.

Other major games included: Yale-Harvard, Penn State-Pitt, Princeton-Penn, Michigan State-Northwestern, Illinois-Iowa, Missouri-Kansas, LSU-Tulane, Clemson-South Carolina, Virginia-Maryland, Baylor-SMU, TCU-Rice and Colorado-Air Force.

Notre Dame Squeezes By Miami In Thriller, 24-22

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Breaking up a two-point Miami conversion pass with three minutes to go, Notre Dame squeezed by the Hurricanes 24-22 Friday night in a game that left the biggest football crowd in Florida history in a state of nervous exhaustion.

"It was a helluva ball game," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian after Bob Olson broke up Bill Miller's pass and kept the Irish among the nation's top ten football teams.

Miami hit Notre Dame with a 16-point barrage in the second period, dropped behind 24-16 in the fourth, then fell just short in a last ditch drive for a tie.

If Miller's conversion pass after the last Miami touchdown had connected, the teams would have deadlocked for the second time in a row.

They battled to a scoreless standoff in their last meeting in 1965.

At the half, with Notre Dame trailing by six points, Parseghian said he told the team: "This is the fourth year we have been in the top ten. You've got to go out there and stay in the top ten."

The sixth-ranked Irish responded by forging ahead on a one-yard run by sophomore fullback Fred Zimmerman and clinching the victory with a 10-yard gallop by Bob Gladieux.

The victory before 77,265 fans, snapped a six-game winning streak by the Hurricanes.

David Olivo passed nine yards to Doug McGee for the first touchdown after a 49-yard punt return by Jimmy Dye. On the next kickoff, Phil Tracy recovered Dan Harshman's fumble on the Notre Dame 12 and Olivo scored from the one.

Notre Dame struck 62 yards for a touchdown in four plays, with Terry Hanratty getting 49 yards on two passes and Ed Ziegler scoring from a yard out. Tracy booted a 37-yard field goal to move Miami into halftime with a 16-10 margin.

Negro Athletes Divided In Reaction To Boycott

LOS ANGELES (AP) — America's Negro athletes were divided in their reaction today to plans of one group, hoping to illustrate racial discontent, to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games.

A spokesman for the amateur sports classic expressed dismay at such a possibility but said he thought the Negroes who refuse to compete will lose most.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said the United States can find enough talented white athletes if necessary to represent it in the October games in Mexico City.

In the 1964 games at Tokyo, 22 of the 126 medals won by Americans went to Negroes.

After hearing of the decision announced by a Negro youth conference in Los Angeles, Brundage said in nearby Santa Barbara:

"These misguided young men are being badly advised. If these boys are serious, they're making a very bad mistake."

Several Negro athletic stars, including Rafer Johnson and Ralph Boston, echoed Brundage's comment that those who refuse to compete would "only be depriving themselves of an opportunity that comes once in a lifetime."

In addition to announcing plans to boycott the Olympics, a spokesman said "50 or 60" Negro athletes voted with 150 other young men at the conference Thursday to refuse participation in any athletic event in which there are participants from South Africa or Rhodesia.

Harry Edwards, 24-year-old assistant professor of sociology at San Jose State College, said "the black man has to be given everything that's due him." The boycott, he said, will be extended to include events connected with the New York Athletic Club. A spokesman for the New York club, which annually sponsors an indoor track and field meet in Madison Square Garden, denied the statement by Edwards that it restricts membership to white Christians.

Two other public statements by Edwards, bearded sponsor of the boycott, were disputed by two of the athletes he said attended the meeting.

The closed-door vote, which Edwards said was unanimous, actually was a vote of acclamation—"everything was done anonymously"—said Lew Alcindor, All-America basketball player at the University of California at Los Angeles.

His teammate, Mike Warren, said he didn't attend the meeting as Edwards had announced. But Warren declined to say any more.

"I haven't made up my mind," Alcindor said of a boycott.

Expressions of support for Edwards' plan came from Cassius Clay, former world heavyweight boxing champion who won an Olympic gold medal in 1960, and Lee Evans of San Jose State, a member of the U.S. team which broke the 800-meter relay record last year.

Evans said he wouldn't participate in the games if it meant "slamming the potential door to freedom in the face of black people."

Commented Charlie Greene, six-time NCAA sprint champion from Nebraska: "It comes down to a matter if you're an American or if you're not. I am American, and I'm going to run."

The U.S. Olympic teams won't be selected until next year.

Penguins Bow To Kings 5-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The cellar-dwellers of the National Hockey League's West Division will play a major role in determining who occupies the attic during the next eight days.

Three of the St. Louis Blues' next five games will be with the division's two top contenders, the Los Angeles Kings and the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Kings, with a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins, stretched their lead in the West to three points over the Flyers in the only NHL game Friday night.

Philadelphia has a chance to slim that margin tonight in St. Louis. The Flyers will head home after the game for a Sunday night confrontation with the front-running Kings.

After that it will be Los Angeles' chance to tackle St. Louis next Wednesday and on Sunday, Dec. 3, the Flyers and Blues will face off again.

The Kings' victory Friday night was their third straight and their second in two meetings with Pittsburgh this season. Both were by 5-3 scores.

The Kings and New York Rangers have tonight off, the Flyers will be in St. Louis, Montreal will host the Boston Bruins, co-leader Toronto will take on Detroit, Chicago will be in Minnesota and Pittsburgh journeys to Oakland.

Vanlier's 24, Bynum Spark Leopards Win

Trailing throughout most of the first half, the Midland Leopards spurted late in the second quarter then went on to record a 69-55 victory over a battling Western Beaver team Friday night on the Golden Beavers' court.

The victory marked a successful debut for Ed Olkowski, Midland's new head coach, but not for Western coach John Dudo also in his first game.

Western Beaver dominated the first 10 minutes of play and led early in the second quarter by a 24-15 margin after holding a 22-15 first period lead.

Midland finally found the ange and went on to outscore Western, 16-2, and moved in front 31-6. Midland's rally was led by substitute Bub Bynum who scored five points at one stretch to put the Leopards in front.

The game remained close throughout the third period with Midland holding a 46-41 lead after three quarters. With three minutes to go Midland was on top 56-51 then with the help of four goals by Howard Leak in the closing minutes pulled away to the 14 - point winning margin.

The Leopards were paced by their lone letterman Dave Vanlier who dropped in 24 points by scoring consistently throughout the contest. Bynum played a key role coming off the bench in the second quarter and wound up with 14 markers.

Darryl Dye paced Western with 18 points while Sam Liberatore and John Petchel contributed 12 each. The Beavers showed a big advantage in the rebounding department with Liberatore grabbing 22 and Petchel 18.

The Midland reserves paced by Anthony Pate's 16 points won the preliminary contest, 55-33.

Foyt Nearing Another Title

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP—All A.J. Foyt has to do Sunday is finish among the top four drivers in the Rex Mays 300 road race at Riverside International Raceway. If he does, he will win the United States Auto Club championship.

Foyt was second Friday in the first day of qualifying for the Riverside race, the first race in 30 years of Indianapolis-type cars in Southern California.

Topping Friday's qualifiers was Jimmy Clark of Duns, Scotland, who piloted his Bryant Special to a course record one minute, 20.8 seconds over the 2.6-mile road course.

The time bettered George Follmer's set early this year in a Lola Chevrolet sports car—1:24.3. Clark's time equals 115.841 miles an hour; Follmer's record was 111.032 m.p.h.

The top 10 qualifiers all drove rear-engine Fords.

Foyt has scored 3,280 points on the 19-race USAC circuit. His nearest competitor, Mario Andretti, has 2,940 points and can only win the driving championship if he wins and Foyt finishes lower than fourth.

Chris Brown pumped in 19 points for the visitors while Rick Liber's 16 points paced Salem.

Colts Continue To Fight For Lives In Close Race

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas is going great, the season is more than two-thirds gone, and Baltimore is unbeaten. But the Colts still are fighting for their lives in the National Football League's Coastal Division.

The Colts, 8-0-2, have only a one-half game lead over Los Angeles, which kept the pressure on the Colts with a 31-7 rout of Detroit on Thanksgiving Day. That boosted the defensively-tough Rams' record to 8-1-2 and put the Colts in a position of needing a victory or a tie against San Francisco Sunday to stay ahead.

The Colts, who beat the 49ers 41-7 at Baltimore earlier this season, are heavily favored to do it again in San Francisco. The Colts now have a string of 10 straight victories against the 49ers.

In the other NFL games on a trimmed-down Sunday schedule, Green Bay, 7-2-1, is at Chicago, 5-5; Washington, 4-4-2, is at Cleveland 6-4; Philadelphia, 5-5, is at New York, 5-5; Minnesota, 2-6-2, is at Pittsburgh, 2-7-1, and Atlanta, 1-8-1, is at New Orleans, 1-9.

Only two games are scheduled in the American Football League, Boston, 3-7-1, at Houston, 5-3-1, and Buffalo, 3-7, at Miami, 1-8.

Unitas, the Colts' all-everything quarterback, shares the League's No. 1 passer rating with Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, and is leading Baltimore in its quest of becoming the first unbeaten team in the league in 25 years. Willie Richardson of the Colts is the league's leading receiver.

The game is part of a television (CBS-TV) doubleheader to most of the country.

The Packers, with sub running backs Ben Wilson and Donny Anderson still filling in ably for injured Jim Grabowski and Elijah Pitts, could clinch the Central Division title with a victory at Chicago. The Bears, 2½ games back, must win to keep alive their chances. The Packers won the first meeting this year 13-10, but Jack Concannon passed for 336 yards and three touchdowns in the Bears' last outing.

The Redskins will match their passing game of Jurgensen to Jerry Smith, Bobby Mitchell and Charley Taylor against Cleveland's ground game of Leroy Kelly and Ernie Green. The Redskins still have a chance in the Capitol Division while the Browns lead the Century by one game.

The Philadelphia-New York affair also is a big game for each, with the Giants sharing the No. 2 spot in the Century and the Eagles needing a victory to stay alive in the Capitol. Each is bothered with injuries, the Giants lacking at least back Tucker Frederickson, defensive tackle Jim Moran and defensive back Henry Carr, and the Eagles missing offensive tackle Roger Brown and receiver Gary Ballman.

Minnesota and Pittsburgh both were troubled by mistakes in their last outings. A fumble in the closing minutes led to the winning touchdown in the Vikings' 14-10 loss to Cleveland while Steeler mistakes wined out a good performance by Bill Nelsen in a loss to New York.

The Atlanta at New Orleans game offers a meeting of 1966 and 1967 expansion clubs. Each is looking for only its second victory of the year.

Houston is coming off a bye for its game against Boston, the first of four straight at home for the Oilers. The long home stand should have a lot to do with Houston's chances of making up the 1½-game deficit to New York in the AFL's Eastern Division.

Buffalo beat Miami 35-13 in an earlier meeting this year and is solidly favored to do it again. Buffalo's Jack Kemp and Miami's Bob Griese both are coming off good performances in losses last week.

New Coach Doesn't Change Things For Kentucky Five

By The Associated Press

The Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association got a new coach this week.

The change made no difference in the club's losing way, at least in the first game under 40-year-old Gene Rhodes.

Rhodes, former assistant coach at Western Kentucky who replaced Johnny Givens after the Colonels had lost 12 of their first 17 games, got a rude initiation by the New Orleans Buccaneers at Louisville Friday night.

The Buccaneers, Western Division leaders, hit a sizzling 51 per cent from the field and chalked up an easy 126-99 victory. Doug Moe, with 30 points; Austin Robbins, with 26, and Jack Moreland, with 25, led the winners. Louie Dampier topped Kentucky with 24.

New Jersey made it three in a row by whipping Dalls 102-93, Pittsburgh routed Houston 124-84 and Oakland downed Denver 113-90 in the other scheduled ABA games.

Bob Verga, former Duke star, scored 33 points for Dallas in his first appearance as a pro in his home state, but the Chaparrals fell behind early against the Americans at Teaneck, N.J., and never caught up. Tony Jackson led New Jersey with 20 points.

Pittsburgh piled up a 34-point first quarter lead at 43-9 for an easy home court triumph over Houston. The Pipers had five players in double figures, led by Chico Vaughn's 18 points. Jerry Pettway was high for the Mavericks with 15.

The Oakland Oaks, down by six points, piled up a 35-17 margin in the second quarter for their road triumph over Denver. Mel Peterson led the Oaks with 23 points.

Gophers Smell Roses But Need Help From Purdue Today

Minnesota Coach Fears Winless Foe

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the day the remaining half of the Rose Bowl football puzzle is solved, and coach Murray Warmath of Minnesota hopes that winless Wisconsin doesn't put it all together.

"We know they've got some fine personnel, and it's just a matter of putting it together," said Warmath, referring to the Badgers, who've lost eight games and tied one.

"I'd rather they had won a few games because they're certainly not as bad a football team as their record, and they would have won some with a few breaks."

While the Gophers go for broke against Wisconsin today, they'll need help from Purdue's Boilermakers in order to represent the Big Ten in the Pasadena New Year's Day classic. Top-ranked Southern California, which has completed its schedule, will represent the West Coast.

Purdue, you see, leads the conference with a 6-0 record followed by Minnesota and Indiana at 5-1. For everything to come up Roses for the Gophers, they'll have to beat Wisconsin while Purdue defeats Indiana.

A victory for the Hoosiers would automatically put them in the Bowl because they never have visited Pasadena. The Gophers have, and the third-ranked Boilermakers aren't eligible this time because they made the trip a year ago.

In Friday night's big college game, Notre Dame's Fighting Irish visited Miami, Fla., and eked out a 24-22 victory over the Hurricanes, who'd already accepted a bid to play Colorado in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 23.

A crowd of 77,265, largest ever to see a game in the Orange Bowl, saw the Irish move ahead 24-16 in the final period on Terry Hanratty's passes and the rushing of Jeff Zimmerman and Bob Gladieux. Gladieux raced 10 yards for the clincher as Notre Dame snapped the Hurricanes' six-game winning streak.

The outcome of a bruising battle was in doubt until, with three minutes left, Miami went for two points after its last touchdown and failed on a pass by Bill Miller intended for Jerry Daanen.

Tennessee, UCLA, Houston, Florida and Florida State were among the other teams involved in important games on the final big weekend of the regular season today.

The Volunteers, ranked second behind Southern Cal in the latest Associated Press poll, hoped to improve their standing by beating Kentucky. The final poll determining the national champion will be announced next Tuesday. Tennessee already has accepted an invitation to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Gary Beban, UCLA's brilliant quarterback and a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy, closed out his career against Syracuse and its hard-running fullback, Larry Csonka. The Bruins are No. 4 in the poll.

Tenth-rated Houston was the only other member of the Top Ten in action. The Cougars took on Tulsa.

The winner of the Florida-Florida State game at Gainesville is slated to oppose Penn State in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 30.

The other major Bowl games line up this way: Cotton—Texas A&M vs. Alabama; Sugar—Wyoming vs. Louisiana State; Liberty—Georgia against an unnamed opponent.

Regional doubleheaders were scheduled for television screening (ABC). Michigan-Ohio State starting at 1:15 P.M., EST, followed by Georgia-Georgia Tech at 4:30 P.M., EST, was slated for the eastern half of the country. The Western half had as its fare Texas Tech and Arkansas at 1:15 p.m., EST, and Washington-Washington State at 4:30 p.m. EST.

Other major games included: Yale-Harvard, Penn State-Pitt, Princeton-Penn, Michigan State-Northwestern, Illinois-Iowa, Missouri-Kansas, LSU-Tulane, Clemson-South Carolina, Virginia-Maryland, Baylor-SMU, TCU-Rice and Colorado-Air Force.

Notre Dame Squeezes By Miami In Thriller, 24-22

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Breaking up a two-point Miami conversion pass with three minutes to go, Notre Dame squeezed by the Hurricanes 24-22 Friday night in a game that left the biggest football crowd in Florida history in a state of nervous exhaustion.

"It was a helluva ball game," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian after Bob Olson broke up Bill Miller's pass and kept the Irish among the nation's top ten football teams.

Miami hit Notre Dame with a 16-point barrage in the second period, dropped behind 24-16 in the fourth, then fell just short in a last ditch drive for a tie.

If Miller's conversion pass after the last Miami touchdown had connected, the teams would have deadlocked for the second time in a row.

They battled to a scoreless standoff in their last meeting in 1965.

At the half, with Notre Dame trailing by six points, Parseghian said he told the team: "This is the fourth year we have been in the top ten. You've got to go out there and stay in the top ten."

The sixth-ranked Irish responded by forging ahead on a one-yard run by sophomore fullback Fred Zimmerman and clinching the victory with a 10-yard gallop by Bob Gladieux.

The victory before 77,265 fans, snapped a six-game winning streak by the Hurricanes.

Trailing 3-0 entering the second period, Miami shocked the Irish by scoring twice in two minutes.

David Olivo passed nine yards to Doug McGee for the first touchdown after a 49-yard punt return by Jimmy Dye. On the next kickoff, Phil Tracy recovered Dan Harshman's fumble on the Notre Dame 12 and Olivo scored from the one.

Notre Dame struck 62 yards for a touchdown in four plays, with Terry Hanratty getting 49 yards on two passes and Ed Ziegler scoring from a yard out. Tracy booted a 37-yard field goal to move Miami into halftime with a 16-10 margin.

Negro Athletes Divided In Reaction To Boycott

LOS ANGELES (AP) — America's Negro athletes were divided in their reaction today to plans of one group, hoping to illustrate racial discontent, to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games.

A spokesman for the amateur sports classic expressed dismay at such a possibility but said he thought the Negroes who refuse to compete will lose most.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said the United States can find enough talented white athletes if necessary to represent it in the October games in Mexico City.

In the 1964 games at Tokyo, 22 of the 126 medals won by Americans went to Negroes.

After hearing of the decision announced by a Negro youth conference in Los Angeles, Brundage said in nearby Santa Barbara:

"These misguided young men are being badly advised. If these boys are serious, they're making a very bad mistake."

Several Negro athletic stars, including Rafer Johnson and Ralph Boston, echoed Brundage's comment that those who refuse to compete would "only be depriving themselves of an opportunity that comes once in a lifetime."

In addition to announcing plans to boycott the Olympics, a spokesman said "50 or 60" Negro athletes voted with 150 other young men at the conference Thursday to refuse participation in any athletic event in which there are participants from South Africa or Rhodesia.

Harry Edwards, 24-year-old assistant professor of sociology at San Jose State College, said "the black man has to be given everything that's due him." The boycott, he said, will be extended to include events connected with the New York Athletic Club. A spokesman for the New York club, which annually sponsors an indoor track and field meet in Madison Square Garden, denied the statement by Edwards that it restricts membership to white Christians.

Two other public statements by Edwards, bearded sponsor of the boycott, were disputed by two of the athletes he said attended the meeting.

The closed-door vote, which Edwards said was unanimous, actually was a vote of acclamation—"everything was done anonymously"—said Lew Alcindor, All-America basketball player at the University of California at Los Angeles.

His teammate, Mike Warren, said he didn't attend the meeting as Edwards had announced. But Warren declined to say any more.

"I haven't made up my mind," Alcindor said of a boycott.

Expressions of support for Edwards' plan came from Cassius Clay, former world heavyweight boxing champion who won an Olympic gold medal in 1960, and Lee Evans of San Jose State, a member of the U.S. team which broke the 800-meter relay record last year.

Evans said he wouldn't participate in the games if it meant "slamming the potential door to freedom in the face of black people."

Commented Charlie Greene, six-time NCAA sprint champion from Nebraska: "It comes down to a matter if you're an American or if you're not. I am American, and I'm going to run."

The U.S. Olympic teams won't be selected until next year.

Penguins Bow To Kings 5-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The cellar-dwellers of the National Hockey League's West Division will play a major role in determining who occupies the attic during the next eight days.

Three of the St. Louis Blues' next five games will be with the division's two top contenders, the Los Angeles Kings and the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Kings, with a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins, stretched their lead in the West to three points over the Flyers in the only NHL game Friday night.

Philadelphia has a chance to slim that margin tonight in St. Louis. The Flyers will head home after the game for a Sunday night confrontation with the front-running Kings.

After that it will be Los Angeles' chance to tackle St. Louis next Wednesday and on Sunday, Dec. 3, the Flyers and Blues will face off again.

The Kings' victory Friday night was their third straight and their second in two meetings with Pittsburgh this season. Both were by 5-3 scores.

The Kings and New York Rangers have tonight off, the Flyers will be in St. Louis, Montreal will host the Boston Bruins, co-leader Toronto will take on Detroit, Chicago will be in Minnesota and Pittsburgh journeys to Oakland.

Trailing throughout most of the first half, the Midland Leopards spurted late in the second quarter then went on to record a 69-55 victory over a battling Western Beaver team Friday night on the Golden Beavers' court.

The victory marked a successful debut for Ed Olkowski, Midland's new head coach, but not for Western coach John Dudo also in his first game.

Western Beaver dominated the first 10 minutes of play and led early in the second quarter by a 24-15 margin after holding a 22-15 first period lead.

Midland finally found the ange and went on to outscore Western, 16-2, and moved in front 31-6. Midland's rally was led by substitute Bub Bynum who scored five points at one stretch to put the Leopards in front.

The game remained close throughout the third period with Midland holding a 46-41 lead after three quarters. With three minutes to go Midland was on top 56-51 then with the help of four goals by Howard Leak in the closing minutes pulled away to the 14 - point winning margin.

The Leopards were paced by their lone letterman Dave Vanlier who dropped in 24 points by scoring consistently throughout the contest. Bynum played a key role coming off the bench in the second quarter and wound up with 14 markers.

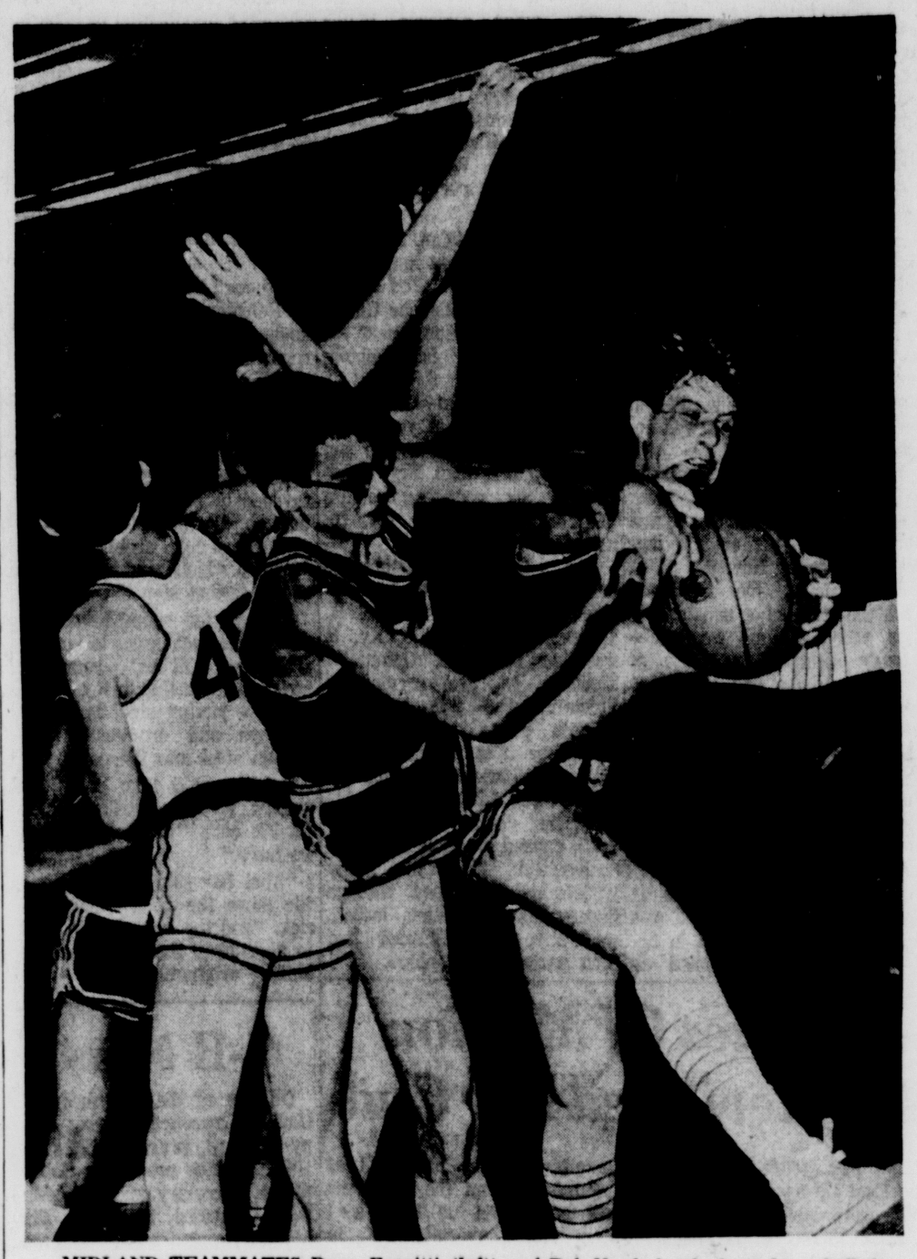

Darryl Dye paced Western with 18 points while Sam Liberatore and John Petchel contributed 12 each. The Beavers showed a big advantage in the rebounding department with Liberatore grabbing 22 and Petchel 18.

The Midland reserves paced by Anthony Pate's 16 points won the preliminary contest, 55-33.

Royals Score, 153-133, Victory In NBA Romp

By The Associated Press

Big Wilt Chamberlain, who would like to win the rebounding and assist titles in the National Basketball Association this year, still can score plenty of baskets in the clutch.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who holds the NBA single game scoring record of 100 points, threw in 34 to lead the champion Philadelphia 76ers over the Chicago Bulls 122-104 Friday night.

A record Chicago turnout of 10,103 saw Chamberlain click on seven of nine shots for 14 points in the final period to help keep the Bulls at bay after the 76ers had erased a 59-54 Chicago halftime lead. Wally Jones, with 24, and Chet Walker, with 21, were next high for the 76ers. Flynn Robinson topped the Bulls with 19.

The Seattle SuperSonics, who had scored an astounding 133-106 upset over the Boston Celtics at Philadelphia Thursday, scored 133 points again at Cleveland against Cincinnati. They lost this time, however, as the Royals threw in 153 points to equal their club record for a single game.

Detroit, playing at home, beat San Diego 130-122 and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 122-121 in overtime at Oakland in the other scheduled NBA games.

Connie Dierking, with 27 points, Oscar Robertson, with 26, and Happy Hairston, with 25, combined for 78 points to lead the Royals to their 153-133 victory over Seattle. Walt Hazzard led the SuperSonics with 19.

Dave DeBusschere threw in 35 points and Dave Bing got 31 to help Detroit hand San Diego its sixth straight defeat. The Rockets, led by Don Kojis' 22 points, led by 99-97 after three quarters before the Pistons went on a 17-5 burst to sew it up.

Los Angeles, led by the outside shooting of Jerry West, rallied to tie San Francisco 112-112 at the end of regulation time, but the Warriors won in the overtime on two free throws by Jimmy King with six seconds left. Fred Hetzel led San Francisco with 29 points. Elgin Baylor threw in the same total for the Lakers with West adding 26.

New Jersey beat Dallas 102-93, Pittsburgh trounced Houston 124-84, New Orleans whipped Kentucky 126-99 and Oakland humbled Denver 113-90 in the American Basketball Association.

Salem Area Man Hurt In Lisbon Traffic Mishap

LISBON — A Salem area man, a passenger in his own car, was injured in a traffic accident at 11:15 p. m. Friday in the 300-block of E. Washington St.

Cecil Rogers, 63, of Salem RD 2 is in Salem City Hospital with face and head injuries. Police said he received multiple lacerations and lost several teeth when his head went through the windshield.

The multiple - vehicle crash interrupted police investigation of a hit - skip sideswiping at 9:20 p. m. on S. Washington St. beside Bill's Laundry.

Mrs. Helen Dorothy Gamble of Elkton told police a dark blue or black Pontiac scraped the left side of her 1962 sedan while she was in the laundry. Her car was at the west curb headed south.

Police said Rogers' car was driven by Randall Temple, 15, of 270 W. Sherman St., Lisbon. The youth, driving east, ran into a parked car owned by Robert Taylor of 276 E. Pine St., police said, and knocked it forward into another parked car owned by Alice McGraw of 314 E. Washington. Both parked cars were headed east at the south curb.

Lisbon volunteer firemen took Rogers to the hospital in their ambulance. Police charged him with permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his car and referred the youth to the Courthouse for a juvenile traffic hearing.

Royals Score, 153-133, Victory In NBA Romp

By The Associated Press

Big Wilt Chamberlain, who would like to win the rebounding and assist titles in the National Basketball Association this year, still can score plenty of baskets in the clutch.

The 7-foot-1 Chamberlain, who holds the NBA single game scoring record of 100 points, threw in 34 to lead the champion Philadelphia 76ers over the Chicago Bulls 122-104 Friday night.

A record Chicago turnout of 10,103 saw Chamberlain click on seven of nine shots for 14 points in the final period to help keep the Bulls at bay after the 76ers had erased a 59-54 Chicago halftime lead. Wally Jones, with 24, and Chet Walker, with 21, were next high for the 76ers. Flynn Robinson topped the Bulls with 19.

The Seattle SuperSonics, who had scored an astounding 133-106 upset over the Boston Celtics at Philadelphia Thursday, scored 133 points again at Cleveland against Cincinnati. They lost this time, however, as the Royals threw in 153 points to equal their club record for a single game.

Detroit, playing at home, beat San Diego 130-122 and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 122-121 in overtime at Oakland in the other scheduled NBA games.

Connie Dierking, with 27 points, Oscar Robertson, with 26, and Happy Hairston, with 25, combined for 78 points to lead the Royals to their 153-133 victory over Seattle. Walt Hazzard led the SuperSonics with 19.

Dave DeBusschere threw in 35 points and Dave Bing got 31 to help Detroit hand San Diego its sixth straight defeat. The Rockets, led by Don Kojis' 22 points, led by 99-97 after three quarters before the Pistons went on a 17-5 burst to sew it up.

Los Angeles, led by the outside shooting of Jerry West, rallied to tie San Francisco 112-112 at the end of regulation time, but the Warriors won in the overtime on two free throws by Jimmy King with six seconds left. Fred Hetzel led San Francisco with 29 points. Elgin Baylor threw in the same total for the Lakers with West adding 26.

New Jersey beat Dallas 102-93, Pittsburgh trounced Houston 124-84, New Orleans whipped Kentucky 126-99 and Oakland humbled Denver 113-90 in the American Basketball Association.

Salem Area Man Hurt In Lisbon Traffic Mishap

LISBON — A Salem area man, a passenger in his own car, was injured in a traffic accident at 11:15 p. m. Friday in the 300-block of E. Washington St.

Cecil Rogers, 63, of Salem RD 2 is in Salem City Hospital with face and head injuries. Police said he received multiple lacerations and lost several teeth when his head went through the windshield.

The multiple - vehicle crash interrupted police investigation of a hit - skip sideswiping at 9:20 p. m. on S. Washington St. beside Bill's Laundry.

Mrs. Helen Dorothy Gamble of Elkton told police a dark blue or black Pontiac scraped the left side of her 1962 sedan while she was in the laundry. Her car was at the west curb headed south.

Police said Rogers' car was driven by Randall Temple, 15, of 270 W. Sherman St., Lisbon. The youth, driving east, ran into a parked car owned by Robert Taylor of 276 E. Pine St., police said, and knocked it forward into another parked car owned by Alice McGraw of 314 E. Washington. Both parked cars were headed east at the south curb.

Lisbon volunteer firemen took Rogers to the hospital in their ambulance. Police charged him with permitting an unlicensed driver to operate his car and referred the youth to the Courthouse for a juvenile traffic hearing.

Gunman Gets $6,800 In Robbery At Bank

WATERFORD, Pa. (AP) — A young man dressed in black and waving a sawed-off shotgun robbed a bank here of $6,800.

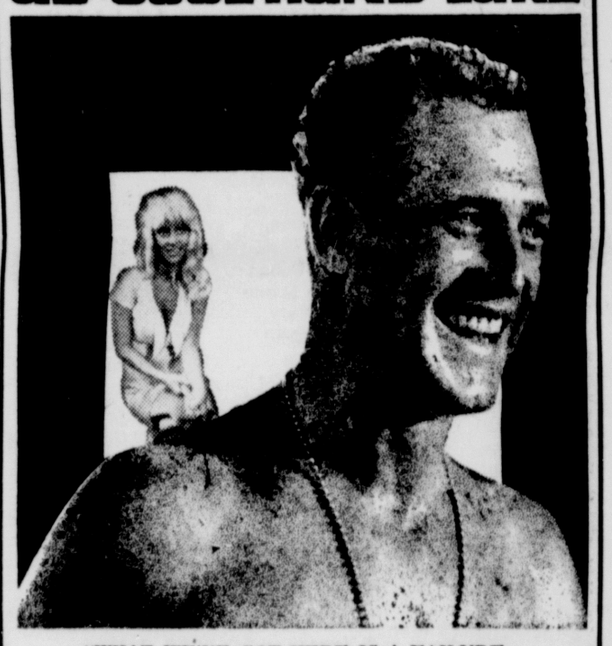

The bandit, believed to have been in his twenties, walked into the Waterford branch of the First National Bank of Erie Friday. He told the employes and customers to stay put for five minutes, then fled on foot with the loot in a paper sack, state police said.

California, of all the states of the Union, has the highest amount of land under irrigation.

It's 2, Not 50, U.S. Replies To Russian Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles used by North Vietnam have been successful in knocking out American planes two per cent of the time, not 50 per cent as claimed by a Soviet writer, the Pentagon says.

The Defense Department statement Friday was in response to a report by Soviet correspondent Yevgvny V. Kobelev.

Kobelev, writing in the Soviet magazine Life Abroad, reported that new North Vietnamese units which went into action in August have downed an average of one U.S. warplane for every two of the so-called SAM missiles fired, for a 50 per cent kill rate.

The Defense Department said about 1,300 SAMs have been fired at American planes since Aug. 17 with 26 planes knocked down—a two per cent kill rate.

The Pentagon added that a total of 4,800 SAMs have been launched against the raiding U.S. planes and that so far, 102 planes have been lost. Again, the Pentagon said, this reflects a two per cent kill rate.

The United States has officially acknowledged the loss of 755 American planes in action over North Vietnam. Conventional antiaircraft artillery is credited by U.S. military officials with downing most of them.

Widening Of Highway To 4 Lanes Planned

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Plans to widen Pennsylvania 119 from two lanes to four between West Virginia and the Pennsylvania Turnpike have been announced by the State Highways Department.

A department spokesman said Friday the plans will be completed this year and construction will begin within two years.

Only about 10 miles of the 45-mile stretch, between Pennsville and Mount Braddock in Fayette County, are four - lane.

The Western Pennsylvania artery extends from West Virginia northward to Dubois in Clearfield County. There, it is joined by Pennsylvania 219, a two - lane road, which continues into New York state, above Bradford McKean County.

Pickets Complain Of Police Tactics

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 40 pickets, some wearing sweatshirts emblazoned with "Sock It To Me Baby — Black Power," marched around the Public Safety Building Friday while another group went inside to complain about police tactics.

The group, calling itself the Northside Negro Clergy and Citizens Committee on Police Brutality, met with Safety Director David Craig for two hours. They accused him of not trying to solve their grievances.

Among their complaints was police use of a chemical riot control agent and the "flagrant behavior of police" in a racial disturbance at Oliver High School Nov. 1.

Craig said he tried to answer the group's demands but that they left before he could finish. He said he would put his answer in writing.

As for the riot control chemical, Craig said he would not stop its use "because it has been proven safe—safer than a billy club or gun."

Auto, Truck Damaged In Broadway Mishap

The mishap involved a southbound 1963 two - door sedan driven by Karen A. Calhoun, 23, of 936 St. George St. and a 1963 model truck operated by Woodrow W. Travis, 44, of Post Office Box 213.

The woman had halted at the site of a street excavation and Travis was backing from a private driveway. He said he did not see the halted car. The mishap damaged the left front door of the car and the rear bumper of the truck, officers said.

Application Studied

EAST PALESTINE — The Ohio Department of Liquor Control is processing an application for a C2 carry-out permit for beer and wine filed by Esther P. Manley of the Hilltop at 1012 N. Market St. The application was filed July 24.

Henry Clay, American statesman, was the man who said "I would rather be right than be president."

News Of Area Residents In Armed Forces

A former East Liverpool resident was selected as "student of the month" at Canon Air Force base in New Mexico.

He is M. Sgt. Robert L. Mead, son of Mrs. Vernon Crytzer of 523 College St. and a grandson of Mrs. Margaret Butcher of W. 3rd St.

Sgt. Mead, a graduate of East Liverpool High School in 1949, enlisted in the service in September 1950. He is stationed with Detachment 25 of the 4500 Support Squadron.

The sergant now has a college degree to his credit and is working toward his master's at Eastern New Mexico University. He began his pursuit of a degree while stationed in Europe in 1956. He was reassigned to Cannon in September 1959 and began studies at Eastern New Mexico.

Last Aug. 4 he received his bachelor of arts degree with a double major — psychology and history. He was graduated with honors in psychology, maintaining an "A" average.

Sgt. Mead is a management engineering technician and plans to continue this type of work after retirement from the Air Force.

Marine Pfc. Terry L. Malone, husband of Mabel Malone of 140 W. Martin St., East Palestine, has left for a 13-month tour of duty in Vietnam.

He is the son of Harry L. Malone of Lisbon RD 3.

James C. Shaw, son of Mrs. Betty Shaw of East Liverpool, has been promoted to specialist 4 while stationed with the Army at Ft. Irwin, Calif.

He is a graduate of Beaver Local High School. His wife, the former Janet Snyder of 351 Grant St., is with him in California.

Marine Pvt. William R. Hess, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Hess of 841 Chester Ave., has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Depot at Parris Island, S. C.

Pvt. Harold Edward Watson, 18, son of Mrs. Edna Watson of 314 W. 7th St., is home on leave from Ft. Jackson, S. C. He was graduated from East Liverpool High School in June.

Watson, a radio operator, will report to Ft. Dix, N. J., en route to Munich, Germany.

It's 2, Not 50, U.S. Replies To Russian Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles used by North Vietnam have been successful in knocking out American planes two per cent of the time, not 50 per cent as claimed by a Soviet writer, the Pentagon says.

The Defense Department statement Friday was in response to a report by Soviet correspondent Yevgvny V. Kobelev.

Kobelev, writing in the Soviet magazine Life Abroad, reported that new North Vietnamese units which went into action in August have downed an average of one U.S. warplane for every two of the so-called SAM missiles fired, for a 50 per cent kill rate.

The Defense Department said about 1,300 SAMs have been fired at American planes since Aug. 17 with 26 planes knocked down—a two per cent kill rate.

The Pentagon added that a total of 4,800 SAMs have been launched against the raiding U.S. planes and that so far, 102 planes have been lost. Again, the Pentagon said, this reflects a two per cent kill rate.

The United States has officially acknowledged the loss of 755 American planes in action over North Vietnam. Conventional antiaircraft artillery is credited by U.S. military officials with downing most of them.

Widening Of Highway To 4 Lanes Planned

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Plans to widen Pennsylvania 119 from two lanes to four between West Virginia and the Pennsylvania Turnpike have been announced by the State Highways Department.

A department spokesman said Friday the plans will be completed this year and construction will begin within two years.

Only about 10 miles of the 45-mile stretch, between Pennsville and Mount Braddock in Fayette County, are four - lane.

The Western Pennsylvania artery extends from West Virginia northward to Dubois in Clearfield County. There, it is joined by Pennsylvania 219, a two - lane road, which continues into New York state, above Bradford McKean County.

Pickets Complain Of Police Tactics

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 40 pickets, some wearing sweatshirts emblazoned with "Sock It To Me Baby — Black Power," marched around the Public Safety Building Friday while another group went inside to complain about police tactics.

The group, calling itself the Northside Negro Clergy and Citizens Committee on Police Brutality, met with Safety Director David Craig for two hours. They accused him of not trying to solve their grievances.

Among their complaints was police use of a chemical riot control agent and the "flagrant behavior of police" in a racial disturbance at Oliver High School Nov. 1.

Craig said he tried to answer the group's demands but that they left before he could finish. He said he would put his answer in writing.

As for the riot control chemical, Craig said he would not stop its use "because it has been proven safe—safer than a billy club or gun."

Auto, Truck Damaged In Broadway Mishap

A car and a truck were damaged in a collision Friday on Broadway near E. 3rd St., police reported.

The mishap involved a southbound 1963 two - door sedan driven by Karen A. Calhoun, 23, of 936 St. George St. and a 1963 model truck operated by Woodrow W. Travis, 44, of Post Office Box 213.

The woman had halted at the site of a street excavation and Travis was backing from a private driveway. He said he did not see the halted car. The mishap damaged the left front door of the car and the rear bumper of the truck, officers said.

Application Studied

EAST PALESTINE — The Ohio Department of Liquor Control is processing an application for a C2 carry-out permit for beer and wine filed by Esther P. Manley of the Hilltop at 1012 N. Market St. The application was filed July 24.

Henry Clay, American statesman, was the man who said "I would rather be right than be president."

Junior Editors Quiz on TOTEM POLES

QUESTION: Why did Indians make totem poles?

ANSWER: Totem poles were the work of northwestern Indian tribes such as the Chinook, the Haida and the Tlingit. These Indians led comparatively settled lives. Since wood was plentiful in the areas in which they lived they built houses of cedar planks and developed a special art of woodcarving. In front of each house they carved a pole which told the history of the people who lived there. Figures, or totems, on the pole represented the animals connected with a particular family. Almost all primitive tribes selected sacred animals to denote each clan. If you belonged to the wolf clan, the wolf would be your totem and you could not harm a real wolf. If you married a killer-whale woman, you'd carve the symbols of wolf and killer whale on your totem pole. Carved with a strong sense of design and style and painted in exciting colors, totem poles rank high among primitive arts and crafts.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, Nov. 25, the 239th day of 1967. There are 36 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1783, the British evacuated New York —their last military position in the United States in the Revolutionary War.

On this date:

In 1758, in the French and Indian War, the British captured Ft. Duquesne. The site is now Pittsburgh.

In 1861, Carson City was selected as the capital of Nevada.

In 1863, Federal troops captured missionary Ridge in the final day of the Civil War at Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

In 1913, President and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's daughter, Jessie, was married in the White House to France B. Sayre.

In 1950, nearly 300 deaths were blamed on a storm that whipped across 22 Eastern and Midwestern states.

In 1963, President John F Kennedy was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Ten years ago: It was disclosed that President Dwight D. Eisenhower had suffered a mild stroke.

Five years ago: The Soviet negotiator in Cuba during the missile crisis, Anastas I. Mikoyan, left Havana after more than three weeks there.

One year ago: The U.N. Security Council censured Israel for a reprisal attack against Jordan.

The heaviest average rainfall in the world falls on the southern slope of the Himalaya Mountains in India — from 200 to 600 inches a year. Most of this falls during the summer when the warm winds from the Indian Ocean, heavily laden with moisture, lose nearly all of it as they strike the mountains and are forced to rise.

180 Hurried To Safety In Blaze At Jail

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Flames apparently touched off by a boiler room explosion raced through the Dayton Correctional Farm early today, but the jail's 180 prisoners were evacuated safely.

Nearly all of the city's fire-fighting equipment was rushed to the workhouse on the West Side as firemen fought into the early morning hours to bring the flames under control.

"If we had the equipment and the men it would be a six or seven alarm fire, but Dayton just does not have the equipment," said Fire Chief Louis F. Rozsa.

Firemen were hampered by an inadequate water supply, Rozsa said. Some pumper trucks had to connect to fire hydrants more than a mile away.

Rozsa tentatively estimated damage at $400,000 to the brick and wood workhouse complex.

Meanwhile, city and county officials planned to meet today in an effort to determine where to house the prisoners. During the fire they were led from the complex and taken to the city jail and Montgomery County jail.

The chief said about half of the complex was destroyed.

Court Suspends Jail Sentence In Wounding Case

An East End man who had been held in jail nearly a month on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was allowed to plead guilty Friday afternoon in Municipal Court on a reduced charge of simple assault.

Chester L. Turner of Erie St. was given a suspended 30-day County Jail term by Judge Samuel M. Chertoff on a charge of assault on Will Mercer, 63, of 1213 Erie St.

Turner was accused of firing a .38 - caliber pistol Oct. 29 which wounded Mercer in the upper right arm. Mercer signed the new affidavit yesterday in his room at City Hospital. Mercer told police he was wounded as the climax of an argument when he ordered Turner to leave his home.

Turner was before the judge several times, but a preliminary hearing could not be held because he was not represented by counsel. He was held in default of $2,500 bond, later reduced to $1,000. He appeared before the judge last on the wounding charge Monday. The court then continued the hearing until Dec. 4. The wounding charge was dismissed as part of the proceedings yesterday.

Figure In Rectory Shooting Released From County Jail

LISBON — James Black, 32, of New Castle, Pa., was released from Columbiana County Jail Wednesday after more than two months in confinement — first as a hospital patient for a bullet wound, then as a grand jury defendant.

Judge Joel H. Sharp of Common Pleas Court reduced Black's bond from $2,500 to $1,000 when he pleaded guilty to arraignment on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on a Leetonia priest.

Black asked for probation and the judge ordered a pre-sentence investigation and report.

Black and James T. Martin, 31, of Poland were jointly indicted in connection with an exchange of gunfire Sept. 3 in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic Church at Leetonia.

The Rev. Fr. Thomas Beldue emptied a .25-caliber pistol at the two men when they pushed their way into the rectory kitchen. One was dressed as a priest and the other wore a stocking mask.

Police Chief Allen Gibson of Leetonia said ballistics tests made by experts at London revealed that bullets removed from Black and Martin were fired from the priest's gun. Black was hit twice and Martin three times.

Martin pleaded not guilty at arraignment Sept. 26 and the court granted his request for a bill of particulars and the right to take depositions from several persons, including Fr. Beldue. Martin is free under $5,000 bond.

Black was in St. Francis Hospital at New Castle several weeks before being transferred to Warren State Penitentiary Hospital at Pittsburgh. He had been in the county jail since Oct. 31.

Reminder Given On Holiday Jobs In Beaver Area

Beaver County residents were reminded today by D. Robert Wood, manager, that now is the time to register for holiday employment at the Rochester office of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security.

At the same time, he urged employers to keep the office informed of their worker needs.

"The Rochester Local BES Office maintains applications of qualified workers in all fields," Wood pointed out. "Through its testing procedures, the Bureau's Employment Service guides applicants to the jobs for which they are best suited."

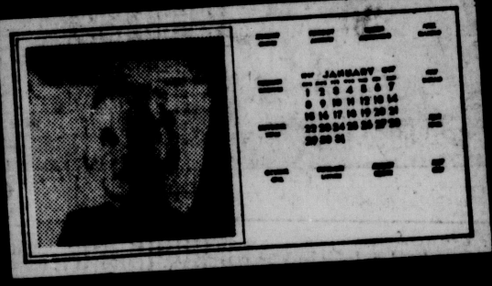

Among those already registered for holiday work, the bureau official noted, are many college students who will be available for jobs during combined term and holiday vacations. Seasonal workers also will come from the ranks of the unemployed and from housewives not usually in the labor market, he said.

Both full- and part-time workers will be needed by local businesses and industries during the Christmas holiday season, the local officer manager said. There will be openings for sales clerks, stock clerks, delivery personnel, general clerical workers and persons in other categories in the wholesale and retail trades, he added.

180 Hurried To Safety In Blaze At Jail

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Flames apparently touched off by a boiler room explosion raced through the Dayton Correctional Farm early today, but the jail's 180 prisoners were evacuated safely.

Nearly all of the city's fire-fighting equipment was rushed to the workhouse on the West Side as firemen fought into the early morning hours to bring the flames under control.

"If we had the equipment and the men it would be a six or seven alarm fire, but Dayton just does not have the equipment," said Fire Chief Louis F. Rozsa.

Firemen were hampered by an inadequate water supply, Rozsa said. Some pumper trucks had to connect to fire hydrants more than a mile away.

Rozsa tentatively estimated damage at $400,000 to the brick and wood workhouse complex.

Meanwhile, city and county officials planned to meet today in an effort to determine where to house the prisoners. During the fire they were led from the complex and taken to the city jail and Montgomery County jail.

The chief said about half of the complex was destroyed.
